Out in the Cold World. Crime Still With Us. Astronomical Paradox. Short Waves Kill Disease.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE SAD lady wandering in the snow, singing "Out in the cold world, out in the street, begging a penny from each one I meet," was no more doleful than the head of the New York Stock Exchange and his broker associates pursued by bloodhounds of taxation.

New York must find more money SOMEWHERE. Real estate is already so heavily taxed that to own it is a liability. ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS SOME.

When it is proposed to put more taxes on the stock exchange, Mr. Whitney, its president, says frankly that the big exchange would move away to another state. There is a limit even to taxation.

NEW YORK STATE taxes the exchange. The national government takes half the earnings in income tax if speculators win on a big scale, nobody catches their falling tears if they lose. The Mayor of Newark, New Jersey, invites the exchange to come there, and offers a home for nothing.

Frank Hague, the mayor of Jersey City, just across the Hudson River, offers greater inducements.

"Come here," says he, "and you will operate in a city where there are no gangsters, or gangster crimes, where you will not be kidnaped, blown up or tormented with tear gas."

Mayor Hague's city is the only one of any size in the East that gangsters never visit. Criminals avoid it because they are invariably jailed, as soon as caught, merely for being vagrants, without asking any other questions.

H. G. WELLS' dream of a world with no crimes of violence and only a few thefts scattered here and there over the earth's surface is still far from realization.

In Silesia yesterday a woman and her son were beheaded, by the ax, for the murder of her husband. The dispatch does not say whether the headsman wore a dress suit, or whether, like the French headsman who beheaded Catherine Howard, he first knelt with clasped hands before the victim to beg pardon for what he was about to do.

AMHERST, Nova Scotia, witnessed the first double execution in the history of the province. Two nineteen-year-old boys were hanged for murdering an aged woman invalid and stealing $10.

"Both youths went to the gallows without a tremor."

The cold brutality that made the hideous crime possible accounts also for the callous deaths.

DETROIT IS interested in another "perfect crime," supposed to be a crime that must forever be a mystery. The head of the victim in this case has not been found. The body was cut up and scattered widely.

But the hands have been found and fingerprints of the dead hands may convince a suspected husband that the "perfect crime" is rare.

SIR ARTHUR EDDINGTON, Great British astronomer, bewilders you with this statement:

"The earth is older than the universe itself."

The universe, he believes, is two thousand million years old, and the earth is older than that probably.

Only a deep astronomer can understand how one grain of sand in the universe can be older than the universe.

The late Lord Kelvin said the age limit of the sun and earth could not be above fifty million years. The high school child laughs at that estimate now and Eddington admits that future generations may laugh at his estimate.

The universe is constantly expanding, according to Eddington, and if you deny that, you "wreck the relativity theory and knock the bottom out of space."

It would be too bad to do either of those things.

DR. SCHLIEPHAKE, sound German scientist, not a quack, tells the British Medical Journal that he has succeeded in treating deepseated abscesses in the human body by passing ultra-short wireless waves through the patient, the latter not in contact with any instrument.

With waves of varying lengths he has treated abscesses of the lungs, following pneumonia, peritonitis and other troubles.

Waves that you cannot see attacking buried diseases out of sight in the human body create a new respect for science.

THE FRENCH, finding public legalized lotteries popular, start another. The idea is to "bring out some of the hoarded money," estimated as high as seventy thousand million francs, three and a half billions of our dollars. Frenchmen resist with difficulty the temptation to put hoarded money into a 100 franc ticket that MAY yield a five million franc prize.

NRA might, but will not, consider such a plan for bringing back from Europe some of the five hundred million dollars that Americans have sent to English banks "for safe keeping." Unless they sent the dollars in gold they will shrink as comfortable over there as they could have done at home.

YESTERDAY, Colorado, Maryland and Minnesota voted on prohibition. Monday's vote in Maine, two to one for repeal, with twenty-six states in succession voting to take bootlegging and well-financed crime out of the Constitution, would appear to settle the prohibition question.

The next problem will be regulating the legal flood of whisky, gin and similar poisons. Let us hope it will be done more successfully than was done with the bootleg flood.

MAGEE GIVES SUPPORT TO M'ARDLE

G. O. P. Independent Urged for Mayor by Council Candidate

Former Mayor William A. Magee today anonunced he will vote for P. J. McArdle for Mayor.

Magee, himself a candidate for City Council, announced his support for McArdle in a speech to the Independent Republican Campaign Committee today.

Declaring that Pittsburgh needs a new deal in local government, Magee said:

"I have many times said that P. J. McArdle is the most competent public official who has entered City Hall in the past 25 years. His logical analysis of intricate municipal questions, his rugged character, his sincerity and courage in standing up against political and economic power place him in by opinion without rival among all the members of Council who have sat in that body since the Council of Nine was inaugurated in 1911."

Magee then promised to vote for McArdle. He declared that his remarks about McArdle were in no way to be considered a disparagement of any of his opponents.

He thanked the committe for its support of his own candidacy.

Other political news appears on pages 10, 11 and 19.

Persecuted Peoples Have Built America, Says W. R. Hearst

"LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10, 1933.

"MORRIS MARGULIES, Secretary,
Zionist Organization of America,
New York.

"Thanks for your kind telegram. We are glad to co-operate in any movement which your organization in its wisdom and experience thinks beneficial to your people.

"I know, of course, that you do not propose to settle all Jews in Palestine. If you did, I could not support such a proposal.

"I personally think that the Jews whom we have in this country have rendered and are rendering great service to the country, and I think that we should welcome here a due proportion of those who are being driven out of Germany.

"It has always been the experience of this free country that the people who have been politically persecuted in foreign lands have become, when received here, some of our most devoted and most valuable citizens. Perhaps their experience in other countries had made them appreciate the benefits of this more liberal land and perhaps, too, it was the very progressiveness of these persecuted peoples which made them unpopular abroad and useful and welcome here.

"AT ANY rate, we have built up our nation to be the greatest in the world out of those people who have had the imagination and courage and the devotion to ideals, to make them dissatisfied with reactionary conditions abroad and eager to become a part of our more progressive and more liberty loving citizenry.

"Our country has been a blessing to them, and they have been a boon to us, and I hope the day will never come when we will close our doors to the peoples whose courage and idealism and progressivism have marked them for persecution under the reactionary governments of other and alien lands.

"WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST."

'STAY ON JOB,' PLEA OF U. S. MEDIATORS; 20,000 MEN OUT

Today's developments in the miners' "Holiday" over delay in drafting NRA coal code:

1—President Roosevelt, impatient over delay to the code, expected to act personally to speed negotiations.

2—Ranks of idle miners increased to 20,000 as many more miners are closed by walkout.

3—NRA coal arbitration board sends plea to meeting of mine leaders at Pricedale to continue at work pending completion of code. Insurgents demand 100 per cent walkout.

President To Call In Operators

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Threatened strikes in Western Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields and prolonged squabbles over a code of competition for the soft coal industry have made President Roosevelt impatient, and indications are that he will talk with the operators soon.

It was plainly indicated at the White House today that the Chief Executive planned to take early steps to bring about the fixing of a code for the industry. He is expected in some quarters to summon the operators to the White House for a final talk.

The Pennsylvania Coal Arbitration Board set up by Mr. Roosevelt appealed today to Western Pennsylvania miners to stay on the job until the code of competition is completed.

Gerard Swope, chairman, sent a telegram to the United Mine Workers at Pricedale, Pa., saying that strikes would not hasten, but rather delay completion of the code.

TOO MUCH TALK

Mr. Roosevelt is saying nothing publicly so far about the lengthy wrangling over the coal code, but

Union Heads Fighting Rebels

With the ranks of idle miners swelled to nearly 20,000 today, union and insurgent leaders were meeting in Pricedale to debate whether a general "holiday" shall be ordered as a protest against delay in drafting the NRA coal code.

An appeal from the NRA coal arbitration board was to be read before the meeting, requesting the miners of Southwestern Pennsylvania to remain at work pending the signing of the code.

80 LOCALS MEET

The Pricedale conference, in which 80 local unions were to be represented, was expected to be a fight between conservative forces led by William Feeney, president of District No. 4, United Mine Workers, and Martin Ryan, militant insurgent, who figured prominently in last month's strike.

The union leaders favor continuing at work, Ryan favors an immediately 100 per cent walkout to impress operators as to necessity for action at Washington.

As the "holiday" movement spread rapidly, involving many mines in Allegheny County, union leaders characterized the walkout of men as due to "misunderstanding and confusion" in the ranks.

ETRIKE PROTESTED

John O'Leary, international board member, and William Hargest, secretary-treasurer of District No. 5, gave out this statement:

"The United Mine Workers of District No. 5 were advised by their officers to remain loyal to our government and union by continuing at work and supporting the NRA.

"We find misunderstanding and confusion in the ranks caused by the delay of the code governing the mining industry. We know it is no easy task for the National Industrial Recovery Administration to get a satisfactory code worked out where there are so many different groups of coal operators to deal with.

"The representatives of our organization in Washington are working night and day co-operating with the federal government to bring about a peaceful solution in the interest of our people. The miners cannot

65,000 ENROLL HERE 2ND DAY

Developments in the registration of voters in Pittsburgh were these:

1—Approximately 65,000 persons registered under the Republican and Democratic banners yesterday, the Republicans polling better than four to one over the Democrats, tabulations today indicated.

2—Democrats continued to make inroads in the Twelfth Ward, bettering the Republican registration in three districts.

3—An injunction was asked today to prevent the Registration Commission from removing names from the books unless public notice is given and public hearings held.

4—County Treasurer Robert S. Cain was to show cause to-

29 States Vote For Repeal; Only 7 More Needed

Associated Press.

Twenty-nine states today marched the repeal path. Only seven more need follow to end national prohibition.

Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado were the latest recruits. All voted yesterday to abolish the Eighteenth Amendment and left the score in 1933's balloting: For repeal, 29; against, 0.

The wets carried Maryland overwhelmingly. Fast-mounting figures put the repeal majority at nearly five to one.

The margins were smaller out substantial in Colorado and Minnesota, home of Andrew J. Volstead, who sponsored the prohibition enforcement law. Late counts listed both in the two-to-one class.

Next week, on Tuesday, Idaho and New Mexico vote on repeal. Two weeks later—October 3—Virginia votes, and a week later—October 10—Florida.

These four end the balloting until November 7 when six more vote: Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Utah.

Pershing Observes 73rd Birthday Quietly

PARIS, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Gen. John J. Pershing observed his 73rd birthday today quietly. He read telegrams of congratulation, and hoped to find time to write his daily stint of the second war book on which he is working.

Noted 'Polar Star' Diamond Stolen

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(INS.)—Smash and grab raiders today broke a jeweler's window at Hatton Garden and stole the famous 33-karat diamond "Polar Star," worth 20,000 pounds ($91,600).

HUNT CONVICTS AS SLAYERS

Two escaped convicts are being sought throughout the state today, suspected of killing Herbert P. Brantlinger, state highway patrolman.

Frank Nedeau, Allegheny County Burglar, and Wayne Daugherty, Crawford County auto thief, escaped from Rockview Penitentiary August 25, stealing civilian clothes, police said, and an automobile from the state police quarters there.

And on the night of September 3, Motorcycle Patrolman Brantlinger brought his wheel up alongside an automobile parked in a gasoline station near Bridgeville.

A shot rang out and Brantlinger dropped, dying en route to Mercy Hospital.

Supt. of Police F. T. McQuaide today asked citizens and police to watch for the two convicts. He said:

"We have strong reasons to suspect they are involved in the killing of Brantlinger."

BLAST PERILS GASOLINE

An electric pump exploded today within a few hundred feet of three tanks containing 2,000 gallons of gasoline, but firemen extinguished the flames before any great damage was done.

The explosion, on the property of the Penn Supreme Oil Company at West North avenue and the Ohio River, blew the roof off a small tin shed in which the pump was located.

The pump at the time was pumping gasoline into a nearby truck. The damage was estimated at $500. Company attaches said they did not know what had caused the explosion.

Downtown Fire Forces 22-Story Climb to Work

A score of employes scurried to fresh air today when fire in the electrical vault sent acrid black smoke swirling through the Clark Building, Liberty avenue and Seventh street, and caused damage estimated at $25,000.

All power was cut off in the building, lights were out and elevators were stopped. Workers in the building had to walk up to their offices, some of them to the top twenty-second floor. The number affected was estimated at 2,000 by the building superintendent, J. H. Krouse.

Trouble shooters for the Duquesne Light Company found the cause of the fire was a short circuit in the main switch panel. The current was turned off and the entire building left without current pending repairs.

Firemen were forced to don gas masks when they entered the vault, in which the building's lighting plant and switches are located. Smoldering flames were extinguished with chemicals.

A dozen people were in Reymer's tearoom on the second floor and a dozen more in the Sun Drug Company on the first floor.

The first five floors of the building were affected by the smoke, and traffic at the intersection was tied up when a crowd of hundreds gathered to watch firemen.

Society Girl Sues Mate Over Kiss Rival Got

Her husband took his women lightly and his liquor heavily, Mrs. Ruth Seman McNeil, social luminary, told Judge James H. Gray today in her divorce suit against Thomas McNeil IV, of 6321 Howe street.

Mrs. McNeil, a debutante of 1927, charged cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities. Judge Gray ordered her counsel to submit a decree based on indignities, an indication, court attaches said, the decree would be granted.

Mrs. McNeil testified that she had seen her husband kiss another girl at the Longvue Country Club shortly after they were married. He was usually under the influence of liquor, she said, and always insulting to her guests.

SCORES MELLON FOR COAL TIEUP

Declaring that the Mellon-controlled bituminous coal industry is retarding national recovery, Thomas J. Gallagher, Democratic candidate for City Council, at a noon meeting at the headquarters of William N. McNair, candidate for Mayor, appealed for the support of the Democratic ticket by patriotic Pittsburghers.

Gallagher pointed out that the largest unit in the soft coal field is "Mellon's Pittsburgh Coal Company." He declared that behind the camouflage of prolonged discussion, the Mellon group is playing for time while the mines are being operated on old scale wage rates and stocks are piled up to be sold at increased prices.

He was paraded through the streets on the way to the jail.

Dr. McGuire Hurt In Auto Collision

Dr. Hugh E. McGuire, staff surgeon at the South Side Hospital, suffered slight lacerations when his automobile collided with a truck at Terminal way and West Carson street today. The truck, carrying a large load of sand, was driven by Oliver W. Robbins, of 2166 Center avenue, police report. Both men have been summoned for a Traffic Court hearing.

65,000 ENROLL IN CITY ON SECOND REGISTRATION DAY day why he should not turn over to the commission all orders for tax receipts.

The second day's registration held up equally as strong as the first with approximately 65,000 persons registering each day. If this number also registers Saturday (the last registration day), Pittsburgh will have approximately 195,000 persons eligible to vote Tuesday, or 26,000 more than in the presidential fight last year.

One hundred and ninety-two out of 408 districts in the city gave the Republicans 25,351 to 5,559 for the Democrats, or better than four to one for the Republicans. Estimates on figures already received indicate that for the two days the Republicans have better than 100,000, while the Democrats will total about 25,000.

In the Twelfth Ward, former Magistrate Charles Papale hit back at the organization leadership there by throwing three districts to the Democrats. He recently was removed from the job of Magistrate by Mayor John S. Herron. In the Third District the registration was 149 Democrats to 31 Republicans. The Fourth District was 54 Democrats to 53 Republicans, and the Sixth District was 87 Democrats to 35 Republicans.

The downtown wards, especially the Second Ward, came through in usual style with an overwhelming Republican registration. There were 667 Republicans to only 28 Democrats registered in the ward yesterday.

Attorney W. Denning Stewart today sought an injunction in Common Pleas Court to prevent the commission from altering registration books over the week-end. A hearing will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. He sought the injunction in behalf of Mrs. Ella T. Steinhauser, of the North Side, who asked that the commission give public notice and hold public hearings in every case. She alleges the commission plans to remove names at secret hearings.

Attorney Stewart, who is filing the petition, is a law partner of Earl F. Reed, special Assistant United States District Attorney handling the vote fraud cases. Stewart was one of the lawyers who prosecuted the late Mayor Charles H. Kline.

SIMILAR CASE

Some years ago a similar injunction was sought in the courts but it was dismissed.

By 1 p. m. today Treasurer Robert S. Cain was to show cause why he should not turn over all the tax receipt orders to the commission. The commission plans to check the orders to determine whether all were authorized. When it is found they were issued without proper authorization, the name will be removed from the registration books.

One hundred and seventy-two registration boards in the city had been ordered by the Registration Commission to deliver their books to the Courthouse last night. The books will be returned Saturday morning.

No real case of disturbance occurred during the registration, although state troopers were called to close a Twenty-fifth Ward board that worked beyond closing time last night. The board pleaded rush of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Amodeo, of 707 Homewood avenue, today asked Common Pleas Court to change their registration from Democratic to Republican. They contended that the registrars in the First District, Thirteenth Ward, had registered them Democrats against their wishes. The Amodeos live within two blocks of Mayor Herron.

The following is the result of yesterday's registration in 11 of the city's 32 wards. The results are complete with the exception of the Fifth Ward, the Thirteenth District of which is missing.

WALL STREET FIGHTS TAX

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A threat of a court fight by bankers and brokers confronted the city today after its board of estimate had approved four new taxes.

The taxes, passed late yesterday, comprise a 5 per cent levy on gross profits of securities brokers, 4 cents a share on stock transfers by residents, 1½ per cent on gross income of public utilities and ¼ of 1 per cent on the value of investments of savings banks and fire and life insurance companies.

Mayor John P. O'Brien said the taxes, devised by Samuel Untermyer, special financial adviser, are for unemployment relief. The estimated yield is $24,700,000 in the next six months.

Savings bank head planned to meet soon to consider possible litigation. Resort to the the courts also has been threatened by Wall street firms. Hints that the stock exchange might move out of the city has brought invitations from New Jersey for the exchange to locate in that state tax-free.

Mrs. A. Mary Schwartz, of 147 Margaret street, Mt. Oliver, a register assessor of the Fourth Precinct of Mt. Oliver, was haled before Justice of the Peace Richard Lawry, of West Homestead, today on a misdemeanor information brought by John J. Hahn, of 601 Margaret street.

Hahn charged that Mrs. Schwartz marked him down on the rolls as "no party," when he has been a Republican all his life. The woman explained that no one was home and that she left a slip, but met Hahn's wife outside and from her learned that the man was of "no party."

Squire Lawry reserved decision.

CODE DEADLINE SET FOR OCT. 1

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(INS.)—A deadline of October 1 was announced today by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, after which firms must comply with the President's re-employment agreement without substitution.

Johnson will no longer approve substitutions of codes by industries of less than 1,000 employes. These must agree with the blanket code and, if unable to comply, must ask for exception.

About 85 per cent of industries and trades which now operate under the Blue Eagle have signed the President's agreement only after substitution.

STORES SHOW SALES GAINS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—An upward leap in department store sales in August, partially indicative of the response to the multiple efforts of the NRA to restore national buying power, was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board.

Board officials, however, attributed part of the rise to heavy buying in expectation of higher price levels later.

The board found sales in August to rate an index of 75 against the 100 or the 1923-25 average, compared with 71 in July and 68 in June. It did not disclose the actual dollar totals of sales and trends.

Preliminary figures showed the August dollar sales total was approximately 16 per cent above August of 1932, and indicative of greater buying power in recent weeks because the sales for the first eight months of the year were 10 per cent less than in the same period last year.

Jeers Greet Herriot Back From Soviet

Five demonstrators believed by officials to be young Royalists, were arrested. Supporters of Herriot staged a counter-demonstration.

DYERS' OFFICIAL PREDICTS END TO STRIKE

Four Large Companies Quit Negotiations With Workers

As four large cleaning companies announced withdrawal from negotiations, W. J. Mooney, secretary and spokesmen for the cleaners and dyers, predicted this afternoon that settlement in the strike would be reached before tonight.

The four large companies, Mooney said, told him they planned to deal through the National Association, rather than confirm any proposal made locally.

At a conference today in the Chamber of Commerce, the employers' group offered a counter proposal to the strikers. Upon this, it was indicated, the basis of settlement will be made.

URGES PEACE

Mooney declared the four companies withdrawing are the Oswald Werner & Son, D. H. Seruset Company, Crandall-McKenzie and American Cleaners and Repairers.

Frank C. Harper, chairman of the NRA group, presided at the meetings. He spoke briefly, calling upon the differing groups, the Cleaners' and Dyers' Local, 18300, and the employers to get together.

Following an initial conference yesterday between the Cleaners and Dyers Union, the operators' group known as the Cleaners and Dyers Association of Western Pennsylvania, and the Mayor, they were to reconvene late yesterday to compromise on an agreement. This was impossible because of the employers' inability to agree in such short time on the proposal they will offer to the workers, according to Mayor Herron.

Demands presented yesterday by the strikers included a 35-hour week, minimum pay of $20 a week ranging to $45 for the skilled workers, union recognition and "closed shop," employment of no minors under 17 and a $15 minimum wage for helpers and solicitors.

PICKETING CONTINUES

Abe Ritt, secretary of the union, stated picketing would continue at all plants until a settlement is reached.

Selig Morov, president of the Cleaners and Dyers Union before presenting the strikers' demands, declared that some men and women have been earning as little as $4 and $5 a week by piecework, in violation of the NRA agreement. W. J. Mooney, secretary of the employers' group, denied this, declaring that member plants in his association are operating "strictly" under the Blue Eagle and are observing "minimum wage and maximum hour provisions." He said:

"Our minimum wage rate is between $12 and $14, depending on the location of the plant. Pay ranges up to $45."

Morov scouted this statement and displayed several alleged copies of payrolls in Pittsburgh cleaning plants that showed a majority of weekly wages were under $10.

Reno Mayor Sues Capital Divorcee

RENO, Nev., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Catherine J. Packer Hill Tillema, daughter of the late David Jayne Hill, was sued for $2,150 legal fees yesterday by Attorney E. E. Roberts, who is also Reno's mayor.

Roberts charged the amount is balance due on a $3,000 fee. Mrs. Tillema was to have paid him for representing her in recent divorce proceedings against Dr. John A. Tillema, of Washington.

CREDIT DRIVE LAUNCHED BY ROOSEVELT

Federal Support for Banks Features Campaign

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Expressly gratified with progress in the recovery endeavor but not satisfied, President Roosevelt has concentrated his immediate attention on a rise in agricultural prices to keep pace with the industrial upswing.

Simultaneously, as outlined today in the highest quarter, plans are afoot for the fullest federal support to banks of a nature that makes Mr. Roosevelt count on increased co-operation from bankers toward spurring business.

To all appearances, he is going to push the upward trend steadily and gradually, avoiding violent fluctuation either upward or downward.

BANKS ASSURED

Renewed assurance has been given to the banks that federal funds were available if needed to reinforce the capital structures.

With this, the President expressed confidence the banks will push out the needed credit to tide over the small merchants, particularly in the first days of the expansion of jobs and wages.

In resurveying the National Recovery effort, the President has come to regard agriculture as the immediate point of need.

He wants the general advance to go much farther, but he recognizes that all the unemployed cannot be put back to work within six months or perhaps within a year, and likewise that farm income cannot be rehabilitated completely at once.

PURCHASING POWER

The President, taking 1914 purchasing power as a desirable point, is described as wanting the total to be lifted eventually to $9,000,000,000 a year, or almost $3,000,000,000 more than the prospective 1933 figure.

The government's method of assisting the banks, it was made clear, would be through the plan, already in operation, of purchases of preferred stock by the Reconstruction Corporation.

Only such banks as are clearly and irrededmably insolvent will be permitted to close.

rM.Roosevelt said this might be taken by the banks as an assurance the government intends to carry through its program and expects them to do their part.

PATRONAGE ROW GROWING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Patronage, that trouble zone of politics, produced in the capital today rumbles of Democratic unrest that resounded even above the intensity of President Roosevelt's recovery drive.

A group of party stalwarts in the Senate was reported to have sponsored a round-robin to the chief executive asking jobs for old-line Democrats. These Senators protested the appointment of Republicans—particularly by Secretaries Ickes, Wallace and Perkins.

At the other end of the Capitol, Speaker Henry T. Rainey blamed the "old Republican set-up" in the farm credit administration for failure to give the farmers "adequate" mortgage relief.

The Senatorial round-robin could not be located. But among its signers was a report that a letter on the same subject had gone to the White House from Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, the Senate's president pro-tempore and Foreign Relations Committee chairman.

3-GUN WILSON FINED $100

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Harold (Three-Gun) Wilson, former deputy prohibition administrator for Delaware and now on furlough from a similar post in Nebraska, yesterday was fined $100 by Federal Judge John P. Nields for contempt of court.

The judgment resulted from Wilson's refusal to tell, during a court proceeding in 1930, where he obtained a key with which he raided the headquarters of the Democratic League of Delaware.

Friends paid the fine for Wilson, who announced today that he would go immediately to Washington and ask the Department of Justice for $100 with which to reimburse them. He said the would also ask that he be allowed expenses in coming here from Omaha to answer the charge.

U. S. PROJECTS UPSET BY NRA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Treasury officials predicted today that many of its public building projects would have to be put back on the market because bidders want more money to carry out NRA requirements governing wages and hours of labor.

Low bidders on 22 buildings or extensions have been asked whether they would proceed without additional money. One said he would. Some of the others have balked. The Treasury is pressing for answers from all.

Department officials said if contractors refuse to go forward with the contracts at prices named in their original bids, it would be necessary either to readvertise the entire project or ask for supplemental bids.

Among projects on which bids have been received and on which negotiations are under way with contractors regarding the NRA regulations is the Greensburg (Pa.) postoffice extension and remodelling, $72,000.

LAMSON FATE IN TUB DEATH NEARS JURY

Prosecution Ridicules Accident Theory In Rebuttal

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The end of David D. Lamson's trial on charges of wife murder appeared in sight today with only one or two witnesses remaining on the prosecution's rebuttal list.

The principal issues—a defense contention the death of Allene Thorpe Lamson in the cottage on the campus of Stanford University last May 30, could have been caused by her falling against an enamel wash stand in the bathroom, and the prosecution theory she was beaten to death with an iron pipe in the hands of her husband—were all but made ready for submission yesterday by quickly developing testimony.

'FALL IMPOSSIBLE'

Holding to the accident theory, the defense rested its case and the prosecution brought its rebuttal to a climax with expert testimony from Dr. Clement H. Arnold, San Francisco, that it would have been "absolutely impossible" for an ordinary fall to have produced the long gashes in Mrs. Lamson's scalp and four fractures of the skull. Dr. Arnold said:

"The force necessary to produce such wounds would have to be tremendous. They must have been made by repeated blows."

DYNAMIC FORCE

Previously, Dr. E. O. Heinrich, criminologist, had testified for the defense he had conducted an experiment at the death scene and had concluded that 790 pounds of dynamic force would have developed in the course of a fall. Dr. Arnold said he doubted that amount of force could produce such injuries.

Mrs. Carol Wilson, editor of the Stanford Illustrated Review and friend of the Lamsons, was prevented by a defense objection from testifying to something Mrs. Lamson allegedly had told her about family affairs.

RIGHTS OF UNION UPHELD BY NRA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A unanimous decision by the National Labor Board today set a standard for labor's NRA rights designed to "point the way out of numerous actual and threatened disputes."

The board's ruling was that the Berkeley Woolen Mills at Martinsburg, W. Va., had violated the recovery law by refusing to deal with worker representatives who were not employes of the mill. Involved was the basic issue of whether an employer is compelled to recognize a national union.

After citing the collective bargaining provision of the Industrial Recovery Act, guaranteeing to labor the right of collective bargaining "through representatives of their own choosing," the board said:

"We rule, therefore, that employes have the right to choose anyone they may wish as their representatives and are not limited in their choice to fellow-employes. To give the code the interpretation sought by the respondent would prevent the employes of a plant from joining any organization already in existence."

Employes of the mill went out on strike August 15, when recognition of the United Textile Workers was refused.

Technocracy Hails NRA 'Roosevelt's Folly'

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Technocracy, the social engineering program designed by Howard Scott to save North America, is reaching its mechanized life lines today in two branches over America.

Chief Technocrat Scott sits in a tall Manhattan office building and smiles grimly at "Roosevelt folly." He says:

"By October of next year the present revival expedient will have failed. I hope technocracy will be ready by then to take over the economic direction of the country."

And in a not far distant office building sits Harold Loeb, good friend of Scott, who is the executive officer of the continental committee on technocracy.

The organizations are independent of each other and each claims more than 200,000 members in North America, principally in the Middlewest and along the West Coast.

Loeb also is sure the Roosevelt NRA program will fail soon unless there is an inflation which will only "postpone the day of failure."

Technocracy, explains Loeb, is "a scientifically planned system of production and distribution in which the purchasing power will equal consumption needs, limited only by production capacity."

"Technocracy is not a philosophy of despair, but a state of despair will exist among the people before they turn to technocracy for guidance."

Nation One-Fourth Way To Recovery—Johnson

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Under the vigorous leadership of President Roosevelt, the country today has been lifted "one-quarter of the way" out of the depression since last March, "and the fight has just begun," Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, told an audience at Madison Square Garden.

Addressing 10,000 persons gathered under the auspices of the foreign language section of the city NRA committee, the leader of the President's war on depression last night lashed out at those opposing the recovery program, appealed for continued confidence and co-operation and declared that "industry is being freed." He said:

"I know you will all be heartened to know the standard of the recovery organization is mighty. I have just come from Washington, where our last word was that 85 per cent of all employers of the nation have enrolled under the NRA."

Johnson told his audience "there are signs of a broad advance everywhere" and that "every economic index has moved substantially upward since last March."

Most of the sniping at the Blue Eagle, he asserted, comes from "the same leadership that led the nation into the 1929 disaster, which told us the rule of the devil take the hindmost was a way to a practical paradise."

The recovery program, Johnson said, may be subject to criticism and no one in the administration objects to "open, forthright criticism." But undercover attacks on the movement, the militant administrator declared, lead to misrepresentation and sabotage.

EX-WIFE WINS $10,000 FROM RIVAL IN HEART BALM SUIT

BANK RAIDERS KIDNAP CLERK BY ERROR

Youth Mistaken For Banker's Son Hurled From Gang's Auto

By GEORGE SHRADLE
Staff Correspondent.

FARRELL, Pa., Sept. 13.—Mistaken identification was believed by police today to have foiled the kidnaping of a wealthy banker's son for ransom by nine armed bandits who held up the S. J. Gully State Bank here yesterday and escaped in two automobiles. Police said the loot totaled $20,000 in cash and bonds.

An employe, Karl W. Wild, 21, of Sharon, was kidnaped by the fleeing gang. When the robbers learned their prisoner was not the son of Sol J. Gully, president of the bank, he was dropped from one of the machines as it sped through Youngstown.

Police Capt. Samuel Fleicher said he believed the bandits thought they had Guy Gully, 25, who is assistant manager in his father's private bank. Young Gully was absent from the bank during the holdup.

Approximately $40,000 in two steel cash boxes, removed from the safe earlier in the day by Guy Gully, was overlooked under the counters as the robbers quickly scooped all available cash from the money drawers.

As the bandits entered the banking room, one member held the elder Gully in his jewelry and sporting goods store adjoining the banking room and accessible by a connecting door in the rear. The leader, face covered by a handkerchief, forced Mrs. Pearl Bauer to open a gate leading behind the counter. The robbers signalled their companion in the store, who forced Gully to kneel in a private office with Mrs. Bauer and Miss Eva Conti of Sharon, who also was working in the banking room.

Miss Irma DiSilvio also was made a prisoner.

FORMER WIDOW ORDERED TO 'PAY UP'

Husband Theft Denial Fails to Win for Braddock Woman

A jury yesterday awarded Mrs. Jewel A. George, 431 Marshall avenue, a $10,000 verdict against Mrs. Hilda B. Yost George, of Library avenue, Braddock, for the loss of the love of her husband, John E. George, now the husband of the woman sued.

The case was tried before Judge Frank P. Patterson, who refused a motion for a nonsuit, the defense offering no testimony. Mrs. Jewel A. George averred that she married George, September 10, 1925, and that they had two children. They separated April 5, 1931.

She alleges that at the time of the filing of the suit, Mrs. Yost George was a widow and through flattery, payment of money and other wiles, alienated the affections of her husband. She also claims that Mrs. Yost George gave George money to go to Reno and obtain a divorce. It was also averred that Mrs. Yost George knew that George was a married man.

However, in the latter's answer to the suit, it was averred that she did not know until sometime after they had met, that George was a married man. Mrs. Yost George in this answer claimed her conduct with George was at all times proper. Marshall, Braun and Notari brought the suit for $75,000 against Mrs. Hilda Yost, but the title was amended by adding the name George.

Claire's Romeo Takes All Blame on Stand

Declares Ex-Wife Should Sue Him Instead

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Alfred C. Read, Jr., Oakland broker, has taken all the blame for Claire Windsor's blasted romance and insists he is the one who ought to be sued.

Testifying for Miss Windsor in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by his former wife against the blonde actress, Read said he deceived the actress into believing he was a single man when he met her and made love to her.

The young broker asserted he no longer loves Miss Windsor and that he cares for his former wife only as the mother of his children.

'I AM TO BLAME'

He testified:

"I am not anxious to see Marian (his former wife) win, because I know I am to blame. I should be the one to be sued. However, I don't want to see the mother of my children take it on the chin either.

"Miss Windsor never asked me to get a divorce and marry her after she found I was married. Quite the contrary. It was always at my instigation."

The young broker said he and his wife had quarreled more than "one hundred times" over other women and men before the Windsor affair.

DOZEN 'LADY FRIENDS'

During a fit of anger, he said, Mrs. Read told him of an alleged affair with a brother of a University of California football player.

Miss Clarisse Champion, Read's former secretary, testified Read went about with "about a dozen ladies" and that after they would leave town letters to Read would begin to arrive, and photographs with endearing inscriptions written on them.

Miss Champion denied she had been over-friendly with Read.

RAILWAYS ASKS EXTENSION

The Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Philadelphia Company today asked the Public Service Commission to approve a two-year extension of the contract with the city by which the Transit Conference Board will remain.

Commissioner S. Ray Shelby conducted the hearing.

The period of the extension asked is from January, 1934, to January, 1936.

Thomas Fitzgerald, head of the railways, was the only witness. He explained that the City of Pittsburgh had granted the extension last February, and that approval by the commission seemed to him the only thing to do to conform with sound procedure.

The contract, he asserted, recognized the valuation of the railways at $62,500,000, and permitted the company to earn six per cent on it. He said the contract made for economy and efficiency.

The city was not represented, and there was no protest.

A parallel contract between Etna and the railways was also submitted for extension.

Heavy rains reported are 2.42 inches at Concordia, Kan.; 1.02 at Wichita; 1.78 at Kansas City, and 1.54 inches at Omaha. It is cooler than yesterday over the plains states, due to rising barometer over that section and slightly warmer over the lake region and the Upper Ohio Valley states. It is warmer also in the far Northwest. Maximum temperatures of 90 degrees or higher yesterday were limited to the southern states.

HOSPITAL PLAN SPLITS MEET

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Proposals for group hospitalization plans presented to the American Hospital Association met with some criticism today, but among the delegates sentiment was increasing for universal adaption of insurance plans for payment of hospital bills.

Dr. C. Rufus Rorem, of Chicago, medical advisor to the Julius Rosenwald Fund, urged in an address before the association's convention here last night that hospitals embrace group plans.

Michael M. Davis, of Chicago, presented a committee report indorsing the group plan, but Dr. James C. Sargent, president of the Milwaukee County Medical Society, thereupon presented a paper terming the plan "a product of unseasoned thought" which "never can succeed so long as its principles are not sound." He said the proposal was inspired by idealism but overlooks important fundamentals in medical care.

Clothes Pins on Tongue To 'Discipline' Baby, 4

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Clothes pins were used to clamp the tongue of 4-year-old Erwin Anderson as a "disiplinary measure," police said, and the boy's foster-mother, Mrs. Eva Anderson, 30, was under arrest today charged with inhuman treatment.

Frank Gessner, juvenile officer, acting on neighbor's complaints, found the boy Monday sobbing in pain, on top of the Anderson garage.

Gessner said two clamp-type clothes pins had been attached to the child's tongue which was pulled from his mouth. The officer said his tongue was badly swollen and his face and body bruised.

The officer said Mrs. Anderson told him she believed "shaming" the child before playmates would correct baby habits.

The boy, with clothes pins on his tongue and his head covered with a pair of pants, was placed on the sidewalk in front of his home so his playmates could see him.

Mrs. May Wortz, of the State Welfare Department, ordered the boy and his 6-year-old brother, who were adopted conditionally by the Andersons last November from the California Children's Home Society of Oakland, taken from the couple's custody.

there were indications that the White House feels there has been too much talk on the part of the operators.

A new recovery code for the industry was being written today at NRA headquarters.

Authors summoned to the conference tables included administration experts, representatives of operators from all major producing fields and leaders of the United Mine Workers of America. Hugh S. Johnson himself was to take a hand as knotty issues arose.

Spurring all groups toward the goal of completing the final code this week were reports of growing labor disturbances in Western Pennsylvania coal fields. But Deputy Administrator Kenneth M. Simpson declined to forecast a definite time for taking the charter to the White House.

HARMONY SOUGHT

Johnson's code, handed operators last week, was the basis for the new draft. Clause by clause NRA officials attempted to harmonize that code with objections submitted by operators and miners.

The National Labor Board was seeking a solution of strike threats in Western Pennsylvania, urging moderation until a coal code is promulgated. But Chairman Wagner, the New York Senator, declined to disclose the exact nature of his negotiations.

The prolonged delay over soft coal was worrying some administration and labor leaders. They feared lest the recent high production level offset the code's wage and hour benefits by occasioning shutdowns and layoffs once the peak winter demand has passed.

OPERATORS NAMED

Working with the NRA and United Mine Workers to get the code drafted was a committee of operators.

The vast Appalachian fields named eight of its 18 members. Illinois-Indiana-Iowa appointed four, Alabama, the Southwest and the Rocky Mountain states chose two each. One committee of nine will work on the administrative provisions. The other will consider the remainder of the code.

Individual and small groups of operators who feel the committees do not properly represent their interests will be called in by the administration from time to time.

Simpson said it was the administration's purpose "to meet informally with representatives of the industry and not to hold formal, scheduled meetings and not to attempt to hold joint conferences with all those involved."

HEARING POSTPONED

Donald Richberg, general counsel for NRA, outlined the procedure yesterday afternoon before several hundred operators gathered at a public hearing on the administration code. In the interest of speed, the hearing was indefinitely postponed.

Richberg indicated that the administration was ready to consider separate regional codes, with a national super-code, as requested by the Appalachian producers. He said:

"If the industry cannot govern itself nationally, it may be able to regionally."

In warning the operators who jammed the large auditorium that "irreconcilable" groups should not send representatives to the committee sessions, Richberg said:

"We want only those who are willing to co-operate in an effort to get an agreement."

'UNREST' SHUTS GLASS PLANT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 13.—Fires were temporarily banked in the Greensburg plant of the L. E. Smith Glass Company here as W. S. Wible, president, announced the plant would close until the present "wave of unrest" among workers has quieted.

Wible said he was closing the plant because "there is a wave of unrest going over the country because of promises made to labor by politicians which industry cannot fulfill."

The shutdown followed picketing by strikers of the Mt. Pleasant plant of the company. It throws 186 men and women out of work and cuts off a monthly payroll of $10,000 here.

MINERS MEET ON GENERAL STRIKE

gain anything by striking at this time."

MASS MEETING CALLED

As the miners gathered at Pricedale, Reese Trigg, chairman of the Pricedale local, said that following a conference in Hungarian hall, a mass meeting would be held in Gaul's Park.

Five thousand men were reported out in Allegheny County today; a similar number in Fayette and Washington counties and 4,600 men out in Westmoreland County.

In Greene County, all miners were reported working, with a single exception of the large Mather mine of the Pickands-Mather Company.

Fifteen of 17 mines of the Pittsburgh Coal Company were reported closed by today's walkouts, or previous controversy. The two at work were the Crescent and Eclipse, at California and Roscoe, Washington County. Montour No. 10, at Library, has been down for two weeks as a result of the cutting of time and pay of four miners, according to reports.

MINES CLOSED

Among the mines reported closed today were the following: Coverdale and Horning No. 4, Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, involving 1,050 men; Nos. 1 and 3 of the National Mining Company at Sygan, 800 men; Hubbard mine of the McKeesport Coal and Coke Company, Versailles Township, 300 men; Warden mine, Pittsburgh Coal Company, at Suter, 1,200 men; Ocean No. 5, at Smithdale, and Pricedale mine at Pricedale, both owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, 800 men.

Operations of the H. C. Frick Coke Company in Fayette County which are either completely shut down or partially affected are Colonial Nos. 1 and 4, Filbert, Footedale, Buffington, Edenborn and Gates.

Among operations shut down in Westmoreland County are Herminie Nos. 1 and 2, Keystone Shaft, Shafton, Rillton, Hutchinson, Export, McCullough, Whyle, Adams, Yukon, Biddle, Banning, Nos. 1 and 2; Euclid, Warden, Hillman at Edna No. 2 and John Carr at Edna No. 2.

WASHINGTON PITS

Mines closed in Washington County are:

Tylerdale, of Washington Gas Coal Company; Lincoln Hill, of Lincoln Gas Coal Company; Enterprise, of Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company; Rich Hill, of McClane Mining Company; Montour No. 4, Westland and Midland, of Pittsburgh Coal Company; Canonsburg, of Chartiers Creek Coal Company; Canonsburg, of Chartiers Gas Coal Company; Muse, of National Mining Company; Hendersonville, of Henderson Coal Company; Cedar Grove and Atlasburg, of Carnegie Coal Company; Paxton, of Leach Farm Coal Company; Lilley, of Lilley Mining Company, and Ella and Emerald, of Hiliman Coal and Coke Company.

While quiet prevailed in Fayette County where last month National Guardsmen were brought in to quell disorder and bloodshed, Sheriff Harry E. Hackney was in readiness for instant action in event of trouble.

Gov. Pinchot was reported prepared to detail state police to areas that developed trouble.

At some of the Frick mines men were on their way to work this morning when they were met by miners on "holiday." The would-be workers sat down by the roadside ate their lunches and joined the others in the walkout.

BANK GUARANTY AID VOTED

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The National Association of Supervisors of State Banks today appointed a committee of 13 members to confer with federal authorities and co-operate in putting into effect the federal guaranty on bank deposits.

The association also adopted a resolution urging that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which will administer the bank guaranty, accept as a basis for admission of state banks which are not Federal Reserve members, reports on the condition of such banks after examination by state authorities in collaboration with examiners designated by the Federal Insurance Corporation.

In direct opposition to the stand taken by the American Bankers' Association, the resolution expressed sympathy of the supervisors with the federal deposit guaranty.

The men named to the committee, all of them state bank supervisors and representing the nation's 12 Federal Reserve districts, included William D. Gordon, of Pennsylvania.

GREENE MINERS STAY IN PITS

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 13.—Despite a threat of another strike in the southwestern Pennsylvania soft coal fields, all mines in Greene county except one small operation continued in operation today. Officials said there was no indication of dissatisfaction on the part of the men, nor any tendency shown towards a general walkout.

The lone operation not working was the Chartiers Southern Company mine near Clarksville, employing about 200 men. Trouble over employment of a foreman was given as the reason for the walkout.

250,000 MARCH IN NRA PARADE

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—With swinging strides and hopeful faces, a mighty army of the NRA—a quarter of a million strong—paraded along flag-draped Fifth avenue this afternoon in an assault on the depression.

Millionaires walked shoulder-to-shoulder with humble clerks, charwomen matched steps with prima donnas, up the historic avenue of wealth and markets and forgotten men.

It was probably the greatest peace-time parade in the nation's history.

The tramp of a half million marching feet was enlivened by 200 bands. The Blue Eagle, patron of the demonstration, spread benevolent wings over the event in the form of 100 aeroplanes drumming out their own music overhead.

U. S. COMMANDS ENVOY TO STAY IN CUBA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Reports of a paralysis of business in some sections of Cuba and of increasing disquiet in other parts led today to an order that Ambassador Welles remain at his post indefinitely.

Secretary Hull said Welles had been holding up exceedingly well under the strain of his unusual duties, and that because of "Complications," plans for the ambassador to return home this week or next had been abandoned.

Welles was praised by the Secretary of State as having performed his duties admirably. There now are no present plans for the ambassador's return.

Reports to the State Department were that no business was being conducted in Cienfuegos, although no actual disorder existed. In Santiago, Hull added, students had taken charge of the local government, with soldiers taking orders from them.

HAVANA, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Many Americans in Cuba prepared for emergencies today as they watched with growing concern new threats of strikes, a move to train boys as soldiers, and the failure of 500 officers to make peace with the new government.

At least a score of Americans were under military protection in Cristo after labor troubles at American-owned manganese mines had endangered their lives. Soldiers had found them barricaded in their homes, fearing an attack by workers.

LEAVE HOMES

Across the bay from Santiago de Cuba, in the small Cape Rente settlement, a number of Americans gathered for safety after leaving their homes in interior Oriente province because of unsettled labor conditions.

Santiago awaited the arrival of American warships as strikes that have tied up sugar mills became more intense.

In Cardenas, on the north coast, American residents packed their baggage so they could board an American Coast Guard ship if violence should result from unrest among Negroes, who were reported angered because they had not been given help along with other storm victims.

'Fast Sleep' Best Rest, 'Wabblemeter' Shows

Universal Service.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 13.—If you sleep "fast" rather than long you are less subject to fatigue, according to Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the psychological laboratory at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y.

The nationally known expert on sleep and fatigue told this to the convention of the American Hospital Association here yesterday.

Dr. Laird, who recently conducted a sleeping fatigue laboratory at the World's Fair, declared two fatigue tests were used—fatigue in strength of grip and ability to maintain balance on a fully pivoted platform of a "wabblemeter."

He said there is only a slight difference in the fatigue of persons obtaining seven hours' sleep and those sleeping eight or more hours.

Dr. Laird said:

"A good quality of sleep is more important than mere hours. The quality of sleep shows a close and undoubted causative relationship to the fatigue the following day.

"The worse the sleep of the preceding night, the greater the fatigue the following day, according to my tests."

HOME BOND BAN PROTESTED BY ELLENBOGEN

A protest against a ruling that closed and restricted national banks shall not at present accept the bonds of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation has been sent to Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen.

Answering O'Connor's comments on the bonds, made in a letter to William F. Stevenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Board, Ellenbogen declares there would be no necessity for the restricted banks to "dump" the bonds on the market in order to liquidate them.

The bonds may be discounted at 80 per cent of their value, Ellenbogen points out, with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Later, when a market is established, the bonds can be gradually sold, he declares. In the meantime, 4 per cent interest guaranteed by the government would carry them.

He asks O'Connor to re-examine the matter as fast as circumstances permit.

A ruling by the State Banking Department allowing closed state institutions to accept the bonds, has already had an effect here, according to J. S. Baughman, Pittsburgh manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

One closed state bank today sent in 32 applications, agreeing to accept the bonds, he said.

The verdict read:

"On account of conflicting evidence, we are unable to determine whether death was due to suicide or accident."

Mrs. Mauryne Sunday, the widow, testified that her husband had threatened suicide. But after the fall, which she did not witness, she said her husband insisted he had lost his balance while watering a window fern. Sunday had suffered a nervous breakdown recently. He died in a hospital Monday.

TORTURE HOLDS BRASS OFFICIAL

International News Service.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Sept. 13.—William T. Holt, vice president of the Enterprise Brass Company, was held today as an accessory in the alleged kidnaping and torture of Edwin L. Schwitzer, secretary of the firm, in an effort to make him confess a payroll theft.

Leonard J. O'Connor, 27, and Angelo Martinelli, 29, Chicago private detectives, are accused of abducting Schwitzer, tying him to a bed in a secluded cabin near here, and torturing him. Prosecutor Francis G. Barlow said O'Connor described how he and Martinelli burned Schwitzer's feet with cigarets and hot irons, and beat him with a rubber hose "until convinced he was innocent."

O'Connor was investigating disappearance, August 25, of a $3,800 payroll.

Most Stutterers Slim, Psychologists Told

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP.)—Most stutterers are slender persons, members of that group of the population which psychologists call "asthenics."

The studies to prove this were reported to the American Psychological Association by Dr. Lee Edward Travis, director of the speech clinic of the University of Iowa.

He divided the country's population into three body build groups, the asthenics, athletic and pkynic. The latter are thick-set. When the body shapes of stutterers were studied he found 75 per cent belonged to the asthenics, with some athletic builds mixed in.

Relatively very few stutterers presented a mixed body type, he said. How the asthenic shape predisposes an individual to stuttering, he said, is unknown.

Asthenic individuals he described as "characterized by deficiency in volume or thickness, without corresponding increase in stature," continuing:

"The under-development of thickness is presented throughout the entire body, the trunk, extremities, musculature and skeleton. The skin is pale, the chest is flat, and there is very little fat."

B. & L. LEAGUE REPORTS GAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Delegates to the annual convention of the United States Building and Loan League were told today by H. F. Cellarius, secretary-tresurer of the association, that their organizations had extended $530,000,000 of credit to American home owners during 1932.

The figure, he said, was virtually 50 per cent of normal operations, the associations loaning $900,000,000 the previous year.

For the first time, Cellarius said, total assets of 10,997 associations in this country and the Territory of Hawaii had been tabulated and amounted to $7,750,491,084, with a membership of savings investors and borrowers of 10,114,792.

Surplus and undivided profits funds at the close of 1932 amounted to $330,879,459, as compared with $274,557,345, shown for 1931, an increase of $56,322,114, he reported.

GOLFER SLAIN BY BANDIT

TOLEDO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A golfer was killed by a robber on the Sylvania Golf Course here and today the Sheriff's force relied on an accurate description of the bandit car to aid them in apprehending the slayer.

John L. Parker, 36, representative of a life insurance company here, was shot in the eye by the youthful masked gunman. He died an hour later.

Parker was playing with five other golfers, Byron Picton, his business accosiate and friend of World War days; Dr. Thomas Heatley, Andrew Dangler, George Lahey and William A. Cavanaugh, all business and professional men.

While Dangler was driving from the eleventh tee, the farthest from the clubhouse and located near an isolated road, the masked youth came from the nearby woods and, pointing a revolver, took $10 from one of the golfers and $65 from another.

Three shots missed members of the party. Parker grappled wtih the robber. The fourth struck Parker. A fifth shot just missed Picton as he slipped on the grass and fell.

Dog in Marathon 4 Days Hunting 'Lost' Master

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A footsore and weary police dog, that has been running a marathon around the state Capitol building since Sunday, apparently looking for his master, continued on the run today. Efforts to capture him have been in vain.

Officials of the local Humane Society are of the opinion that the dog became separated from his owner on the Capitol grounds and was left behind.

The animal's feet were swollen and bleeding today. Capitol guards were instructed to capture him and hold him for the owner.

SWANKY CLUB RAIDED 2ND DAY

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—For the second successive day, police raided the fashionably appointed Jockey Club in the downtown district yesterday, and surprised another 150 men and women allegedly placing bets on horse races. One man was arrested.

The officers carted off all the moveable furnishings in the organization's spacious quarters.

None of the patrons was molected by police and all were allowed to leave without having their names taken. But John J. O'Keefe, who police said they found endeavoring to hide in the dark corner of an attic, was arrested charged with gaming.

GUNMAN'S MOLL CONFESSES

Universal Service.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 13.—Eunice McDine, who calls herself Marian Russell, common law wife of Jimmy Russell, ringleader of the break from Angola Prison Farm Sunday in which three were killed, confessed yesterday she smuggled the gun he used.

She told Detectives Chief John Grosch she had bought the gun at a pawnshop and carried it concealed in her dress to Russell at the prison farm, September 3.

COWBOY STAR ASKS DIVORCE

NEWKIRK, Okla., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Divorce suits were filed here today by attorneys for Jack Hoxie, cowboy screen actor, and Dixie Starr, cowgirl actress, charging their spouses with abandonment.

The plaintiffs said their residences were at the 101 Ranch, near Ponca City. They are now traveling with Zack Miller's 101 show.

Hoxie seeks a decree from Marion Hoxie, formerly known in the movies as Marie Sais. Mrs. Waunita Weber, known to the screen world as Dixie Starr, asks a divorce from W. B. Weber, whom she married in Golden, Col., in 1928.

Neither couple has children.

TRUCK LOOTED, FIVE MEN FACE U. S. CHARGES

Agents of the Division of Investigation, United States Department of Justice, are hunting for a large quantity of merchandise reported stolen here and in Harrisburg from an interstate freight shipment en route from Philadelphia to Chicago by motor express. More than $1,000 worth of goods have been recovered here, it was said.

Five men, arrested in connection with the alleged theft, will be arraigned Friday before the United States Commissioner.

Government investigation followed a fire that damaged the express truck and destroyed part of its cargo at Darlington, Beaver County, on August 31. The inquiry is expected to determine whether the fire was intended to cover up the looting, the federal officers say.

THREE IN JAIL

Walter R. Greene and Paul Stewart, of Homewood, and Elmer Martin, of Millvale, are in jail in default of bonds pending hearing, charged with theft of cigars. Sidney Goodfriend and Herman Silverman, employes of a Pittsburgh distributing company, who are charged with receiving stolen cigars, are under bonds of $2,000 each.

The express truck, owned by William Falconer, of Philadelphia, left there August 29, with freight valued at $10,000, with Greene as the driver and Martin as his helper, government agents said. Some of the freight, including cigars and radios, was taken from the truck in a garage on the Frankstown road, it is charged.

Afterwards some of the freight was received by Goodfriend and Silverman, the federal agents reported. Stewart was involved, it was said, in disposal of the goods.

In the arrests and recovery of goods described as part of the stolen freight, the government agents were assisted by Detective Walter Monahan.

Martin, according to the agents, said he discovered the fire in the truck after he had ejected two men stealing a ride.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Beauty for Sale.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—To me, beauty pageants have never been very serious affairs. I have covered many of them in this city, and I have always treated them in a light manner. I came here this year to do the same thing. But as I leave here now, I no longer feel like kidding. I have witnessed what turned out to be a sordid mess, and the taste in my mouth is bitter.

I sat in the beautiful convention hall the other night and watched seven judges choose a "Miss America of 1933." There had been several occasions during the week when a majority of these judges had been on the point of resigning in a body. But, having begun the thing, they decided to see it through.

Consider the picture. A tremendous auditorium and a huge stage. Some 7,000 people assembled to see what they can see; an audience that stamps and whistles for action. In the rear, partitioned off by drapes, is a Walkathon, first cousin to a beauty pageant in point of hopelessness. An oppressive heat saps the vitality and makes one hope that the thing will not last too long.

Enter the 30 girls in rolling chairs. Thirty girls, supposedly the cream of our American beauty. You look at them, and you wonder if the cream hasn't been served a trifle sour.

Where do these girls come from, and how did they get here? Well, some of them are bona-fide contestants, chosen in thoroughly legitimate fashion by newspaper and theatrical circuits. Some are the victors of small town local contests, where papa and the mayor are good friends. And some——

Well, some are wondering how they got here themselves. That tall girl with the brown eyes, for example. She didn't have an evening dress when she got here, and she hadn't the money to buy a decent pair of stockings. A cafe hostess bought her the stockings she now wears—and one of the girls in the same cafe was gracious enough to lend her an evening gown.

Then there is "Miss Illinois," disqualified at the last moment because she is a native of Missouri. She has a prop smile on her face, but there's plenty of worry in the background. For her return ticket will take her only as far as Elgin, Ill.—and she has but $1.70 in her purse to carry her the hundreds of miles from Elgin to St. Louis.

This last girl is one of seven in the pageant who've just been through a heartbreaking experience. For almost two months these seven girls have been touring the sticks in an act called "The Pageant Beauties." They have slept in tenth-rate hotels, worked in the cheapest theaters and night clubs, and have had some terrifying experiences.

And for all this they received exactly nothing! It would give them, they were told, an opportunity to learn show business. More, they could see the country. More, it meant a lot of publicity. And still more, they would all receive wardrobes and offers of jobs when they arrived at Atlantic City.

They have received no wardrobes and no jobs. I asked one of them why she didn't demand some money for playing four and five shows a day. She said she had asked for some—but they refused to give her any on the ground that such an act would automatically make her a professional beauty!

So these girls sat upon the huge stage in their rolling chairs and gazed out at the sea of faces.

The winner earns a little money for a time, of course, but even in this direction most of them have been beaten to the punch.

In twos and fours, the girls are weeded out. The heat grows more and more unbearable. Mr. Ted Husing, expert announcer, speaks over a national hook-up and tells the nation about this great contest. The customers grow more restless. A drunk in the gallery applauds loudly for Miss Texas. There is no Miss Texas in the contest.

At last there is an end. "Miss Connecticut" is the winner. "Miss California" is second. And "Miss New York State" is third.

Soon they bring out the winner. A huge throne is shoved on the stage and a large American flag curtain is lowered. The band plays the "Star Spangled Banner" and a golden crown is placed on "Miss America's" dome. I am not close enough to see if there is a dollar sign on the crown.

The curtain falls. The crowd shuffles out. In the gallery, the drunk awakens and cries again for "Miss Texas." The beauty pageant is over . . .

They wheel me back stage to meet "Miss America." Her name is Marion Bergeron, and she is the daughter of Florence and Elmer R. Bergeron, of West Haven, Conn. Mr. Bergeron is a motorcycle policeman in that town, and he is very, very proud of his 16-year-old daughter. He confides to me that he is due back at work on the morrow, but now he'll be darned if he'll go. He's going to celebrate.

Soon I meet the girl. She is a nice kid, natural and unaffected. I ask her the usual question. And as I talk, I regard her closely.

She is now the winner of a great beauty contest. She is now like so very many others whom I have interviewed in the past. She probably doesn't know that this mantle she has inherited has never brought more than momentary happiness to any girl in the past.

She is a child with a new toy. The photographers and the press are calling for her. She is radiantly happy. She doesn't know that that flickering shadow in the background is the curse of fleeting fame.

She tells me of her ambitions and her plans. Before we part, I say a few words to her.

"Be careful, honey," I tell her. "You're in a tough racket now. Be wise in everything you do."

She waves a hand.

"Don't worry about me, Mr. Hellinger. I know what you mean. You're thinking of what has happened to other beauty winners. But don't worry about me. I'm—I'm different."

Poor kid. They're always different. . . .

LOW FIRE TRUCK BID REJECTED BY COUNTY

The County Commissioners yesterday upheld Supply and Property Director Ray Sprigle's recommendation that the county airport's new fire apparatus be purchased from the American-LaFrance and Foamite Corporation, whose $11,790 bid was $50 higher than the one submitted by the Ahrens-Fox Fire Engine Company.

While Sprigle admitted the bids of both companies complied with the specifications, he based his decision on what he said were the LaFrance firm's superior servicing facilities.

Sprigle's recommendation was argued by a representative of the Ahrens-Fox company, who declared his firm had arranged to have the fire truck serviced in Pittsburgh. The Commissioners voted the contract to the LaFrance company over the objection of Commissioner C. M. Barr.

MOTORCYCLES BOUGHT

A contract for six new motorcycles, sidecars and equipment for county police was awarded to the S. C. Hamilton Company, of Pittsburgh, by the Commissioners. The amount of the contract was $2,457, a figure $273 under the bid of the Indian Motorcycle Company.

An $8,259 contract for hauling vote machines from the Courthouse to various election districts for the primary election was let to Edward Werner by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners voted to readvertise for bids on construction of a bridge over Chartiers Creek at McKees Rocks, after a communication from the F. W. Scott Company, requesting cancellation of its $67,845 contract was read.

The letter said the company was unable to undertake the job because of other work on hand, but County Commissioner C. M. Barr asserted the reason was that it had been unable to obtain a bond. He said:

"I know, because I tried to get them a bond. I wish I could."

The next lowest bidder was the John F. Casey Company, at $78,330.75. When Casey's bid was mentioned, Commissioner McGovern declared:

"Well, we won't give it to him."

BURGLAR FED, GIVES POOR MAYOR 25c

GLENDALE, Cal., Sept. 13.—(AP.) — It was midnight and Mayor Spencer Robinson was awakened by a noise in his bedroom. He asked:

"Who's there?"

A voice responded:

"A burglar."

"What do you want?"

"Money."

"I've no money."

The Mayor turned on a light. The man said:

"Well, I'm hungry."

"Fine. Wait a minute and I'll get you some food."

Mayor Robinson cooked six eggs, toast and a pot of coffee. The man gulped it down. He asked:

"Sure you are broke?"

"Flat," the Mayor said.

STARVATION CRY OF G.O.P., SAYS M'NAIR

The threat of starvation is being used to coerce Republican votes, William N. McNair, candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination, told an audience at Brookline School, last night. He said:

"Register Republican or starve—that is the ultimatum being delivered to men and women in sections where large numbers of unemployed reside."

McNair further charged that persons able to deliver a few Republican votes were being reimbursed at the rate of $10 a day out of a $300,000 relief fund, voted and paid in taxes by the people for unemployment relief.

MEETINGS SET

McNair, for Mayor; James L. O'Toole, Jr., for County Court; Congressman Henry Ellenbogen; John M. Huston, Thomas J. Gallagher, Walter E. Demmler, and John J. Kane, candidates for Council, and John J. Kennedy, for Common Pleas Court, at the Morse School, Twenty-fifth and Sarah streets.

McNair and David L. Lawrence, county chairman; Evans, Huston, Kane, O'Toole, and Gustav L. Schramm, for Juvenile Court, at Garfield School, North Atlantic avenue.

McNair, Ellenbogen, Thompson, O'Toole, Heinz, Huston, Gallagher, and Dougherty, at Larimer School, Larimer avenue.

Dr. Vincent L. Marino and Frank Narrone, Norwood School, Stowe Township.

Conrad H. Checco and W. D. Brandon, Italian Democratic Club, 4614 Liberty avenue.

WOMAN URGED AS CHILD JUDGE

Not a man in a million knows the way to the heart of a child, Attorney C. F. C. Arensberg said in an address in support of the candidacy of Mrs. Lois McBride for Juvenile Court, yesterday.

Arensberg said Mrs. McBride was the only candidate for the court who had promised to work co-operatively with all agencies and individuals interested in child welfare.

Mrs. McBride has been indorsed by the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Schramm to Conduct Forum On Court's Work

Gustav L. Schramm, candidate for Juvenile Court, will stage a "Juvenile Court forum" in Kaufmann's dining room at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow to answer questions as to the court's operation and duties.

The forum will be preceded by a luncheon, arranged by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. D. Edwin Miller.

Speaking at a meeting in the German Evangelical Protestant Church, of Birmingham, South Side, where his father and grandfather served as ministers, Schramm said last night that the new court will prove only an added burden to the taxpayers unless it is administered "non-politically and efficiently."

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life—Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen.

Take two Oxoids after each meal and before retiring; drink plenty of water—put your digestive juices to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.

Coyne, Citizens' Group Partners, Says Mackrell

The battle being staged between his two opponents for Republican mayoralty nomination is a farce that is a tragedy for Pittsburgh, Joseph N. Mackrell, Progressive Republican candidate, said last night.

In addresses at Taylor Allderdice High School, Morningside School, and Progressive Republican headquarters, Frankstown avenue, Mackrell charged a partnership existed between the Citizens' League, backing P. J. McArdle for Mayor, and the Coyne forces supporting Mayor John S. Herron. He said:

"The partnership put on the first act of the new municipal comedy, 'Anything to Beat Mackrell,' yesterday."

CITES 'SHAM ATTACK'

Mackrell said Mayor Herron and City Investigator Robert J. Alderdice had made a sham attack on McArdle for "something about bonds for a hotel," at a nooday meeting. He said general laughter had followed.

Mackrell charged:

"The Coyne forces and Citizens' League are trying to bring about the nomination of Herron by diverting independent votes to McArdle."

Mackrell and other Progressive Republican candidates will speak tonight at a mass meeting in North Side Carnegie Library, Federal and Ohio street; in Langley High School, Hutton avenue, and Schaeffer School, Stratmore avenue.

RECORD DEFENDED

Asserting no man who had anything to be ashamed of would expose himself to the publicity, Judge Thomas M. Marshall III, urged the election of Mackrell in an address last night.

Mackrell's opponents had to go back 10 years to find any flow in his record, and then they had to rely on the statement of a man whose reputation was extremely questionable, Marshall said.

M'ARDLE FLAYS INEFFICIENCY AND HIGH TAX

Terming Pittsburgh taxes exorbitant, P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for Mayor, said in an address last night:

"Taxes have been altogether too high for the inefficiency in government to which the people have had to submit.

"The inefficient Department of Public Safety, with appropriations of $2,000,000 per year, has become a tremendous burden on our taxpayers.

"The Departments of Public Works and of Public Health also spend great sums. The city, in its budget, spends the vast sum of from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 each year. This should cause every citizen to give earnest study to the kind of men who head our administration.

"The highest type of service and the lowest cost explains my viewpoint."

GARLAND BACKS PLAN

Declaring it would bring about a lower rate of taxation, Councilman Robert Garland championed a McArdle proposal to publish property assessments, in an address last night.

Garland quoted an article in Collier's as to the result of publication of tax lists in Chicago:

"'The taxes that each property owner had been paying were brought to light. You found that your neighbor, who lived in a house like your own, had been paying only $50 a year, while you paid $500. And you saw who had been voting for corrupt politicians.'"

It is "a thousand to one" similar iniquities would be found here, Garland said.

The publication, he claimed would mean a lower general tax rate, and:

"It is also not beyond probability that more than a million dollars to the city and double that amount to the county may be brought in as additional annual revenue from the legion of

WEIL ATTACKS HERRON CLAIM

The training Mayor John S. Herron cites as a qualification for office has been solely in the fundamentals of machine politics, A. Leo Weil, Jr., Independent Republican chairman, stated in an address in the William Penn Hotel today.

Mayor Herron has been trained to recognize that he owes no duty or obligation to the public whatsoever, but must do everything to safeguard his machine superiors, Weil said. Weil cited Herron's attempt to block an investigation of the Department of Supplies.

Advocating the election of P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for Mayor, Weil said his course had been the opposite of Herron's in resisting the machine.

'Zero Ward' Vice Ridden, Judge Declares

The First Ward of Braddock is notoriously corrupt and has a reputation for turning in zero districts at elections, Judge James H. Gray declared in Common Pleas Court.

This observation was made during argument on the appointment of overseers for the First and Second Districts of the ward. The opposing forces of George Mehalij and Mike Verosky were fighting for certain overseers. Judge Gray said he would name the overseers before the primary election.

CLUBS, LODGE FOR LENCHER

The Henry Shermer Lodge, of Braddock; the Lincoln Italo-American Political Club, and the Bohemian, Slavish and Croatian clubs, of Port Vue, have indorsed the candidacy of Judge Benjamin Lencher for County Court.

Judge Lencher will speak tonight before the Braddock Voters' League, Carnegie Hall, Braddock; Swissvale Italian-American Citizen's Club, at Dixon School, and in Etna High School, Etna.

Piekarski to Make Seven Appearances

Judge Frank A. Piekarski, candidate for County Court, will speak tonight at the Dormont New Century Club, and at meetings of the Italian-American Club of Swissvale; Braddock Carnegie Hall, Dickson School, Swissvale; North Side Carnegie Library, and Langley and Schaeffer schools.

HENRY URGES HOME RULE FOR CITY

Calling on voters to cut Pittsburgh from the apron strings of the Legislature, John M. Henry, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, discussed the benefits of home rule last night.

Speaking at South Side High School, Carson street, Henry said:

"Today, we have large cities with manifold problems, having no definite relation to matters that affect rural communities. Yet in the Legislature, the rural locality may dominate matters that affect the city.

"The machine forces resort to every device, legal or illegal, to win elections and to continue their high tax levy on the city. Machine representatives are sent to the Legislature to deny the city any remedial legislation, such as scientific management of its affairs."

The machine, Henry said, always opposes a permanent registration law, putting the citizen to hours of inconvenience each year to discourage voting.

Hence the cost of registration is about $75,000 a year, because of the large annual force that must be maintained and the expenses of investigation into corrupt registration, Henry said.

He advocated repeal of the poll tax qualification, which, he said, disfranchised a great body of people in times of depression.

Attacking overlapping agencies, and the office of delinquent tax collector in conjunction with a county treasurer, Henry stated:

"We could equalize assessments, go after tax-exempt properties, lower the tax burden. We could create better housing and sanitary conditions, eliminating the slums."

HERRON BACKER HITS 'SLANDER' CAMPAIGN

Supporting the candidacy of Mayor John S. Herron, Attorneys John S. Weller and David McCahill and Mrs. Ida May Stamford, past president of the auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, praised Pittsburgh for good government in addresses last night.

The speakers struck at "slanderers" of the city's reputation as self-interested.

Declaring Mayor Herron was a reformer after election as well as before, Weller stated:

"Much has been said about 'phantoms.' The entire assessment machinery is under the control of our adversaries. Such errors should be corrected in an ordinary manner, and were there not a campaign on, you would hear nothing of such discrepencies.

"Our city is well governed. It pays its debts. Our taxes have been lowered."

McCahill called on the electorate to defeat every candidate who, without reason or proof, defames Pittsburgh before the world. He said the city was well governed because its executives had been trained in municipal administration.

Mrs. Stamford said:

"Women will quickly react against unwise, reckless and slandering propaganda which seeks to further selfish ends, without regard to injury done the city's reputation."

The following revised list of meetings for today was announced by the Regular Republican Committee:

Twenty-first Ward, John M. Conroy School, Manchester School; Twenty-second Ward, Mary J. Cowley School; Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards, Latimer Junior High School; Twenty-fifth Ward, Chamber of Commerce, North Side; Twenty-sixth Ward, Perry High School; Thirteenth Ward, Barker's Hall, Second avenue; Second Ward, Fort Pitt Hotel; Thirteenth Ward, Belmar School; Twenty-seventh Ward, residence Mrs. David Probert, 3823 Atkins street.

Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, chairman of the women's division of the Regular Republican campaign committee, has called a meeting of the women heads all the wards in Hotel Henry today. Final instructions for the close of the campaign will be given.

MAGEE FAVORS MORE FUNDS FOR P. S. C.

Stating the blame for the utilities situation could not be laid to any one group, former Mayor William A. Magee, candidate for Council, proposed these steps in dealing with utility problems in an address last night:

"I would favor asking the Legislature for a larger appropriation for the Public Service Commission.

"I would ask the commission to improve its procedure.

"I would also ask it to investigate the intercorporate relationships between members of the utility families."

Magee criticized the Public Service Commission for slow and faulty methods and for not making the most effective use of its funds. The funds, however, he stated, were insufficient.

He criticized utilities for "writing up" their appraisals in good times, and using the higher valuation as an argument to oppose reduction in their rates. By the practice of holding companies, the parent company can milk the public in disguise, he said.

Opposes Extension Of Bonding Power

In a speech before the Twenty-sixth Ward League of Women Voters, Mark W. Marshall, Democratic candidate for Council, urged opposition to the amendment which would increase the bonding power of the county commissioners.

Hamilton Advocates Greater Pittsburgh Plan

C. C. Hamilton, candidate for Council, is running on a platform of tax reduction. He advocates consolidation of Allegheny County into a Greater Pittsburgh to eliminate the costs of many local governments. He advocates reassessment of properties, a moratorium on delinquent taxes, and elimination of police and firemen from politics.

Candidate Pushes Claim as Health Expert

The advice of a man trained in medicine and dentistry should be welcome in Council, Dr. H. V. Walls, councilmanic candidate, said in an address at American Legion hall last night. Walls commented that Council was often called on to pass on health measures.

Charges Police Permit Property Vandalism

Vandalism, unchecked by the city police, has become a menace to property owners, William H. McClafferty, candidate for Council, declared in an address at McNaugher School last night. He said:

"No sooner is a building vacated, than an organized horde of thieves and wreckers break in, take possession, and practically ruin the building. No attempt is made to stop this vandalism, although it is a criminal offense.

"If the police would not free these vandals when it is discovered they are sons or nephews of ward heelers, this practice could be stopped."

Old-Age Pensions Advocated by Wolff

Charles Wolff, councilmanic candidate, yesterday praised the old-age pensions bill as having offered freedom from fear of old age to people of the state. Speaking at American Legion Hall, Perrysville avenue, he expressed confidence that voters would defeat the machine which killed it.

Mrs. Phillips Listed For Two Addresses

Mrs. Sarah M. Phillips, candidate for Council, will speak tonight at a League of Women Voters' meeting, Langley High School, and in Gladstone School, Fifteenth Ward.

VOTERS DENIED PARTY SWITCH

Judge Elder W. Marshall yesterday handed down an opinion refusing to grant the request of a large number of petitioners in the Second District of the First Ward, Etna, and the Fourth District of the First Ward, Wilkinsburg, to have their party affiliations changed from Republican to Democrat. The court placed the costs on the petitioners.

Judge Marshall gave the same reasons for refusing the petitioners as he did in his decision of a similar request in Shaler Township. Democratic workers presented certificates of enrollment to electors and had them sign them, requesting that party affiliation be changed to Democrat. No personal request was made of the registry assessor. The court decided that to grant such a wholesale request, would only open the door to fraud.

MOSQUE RALLY FOR REGULARS

A Regular Republican mass meeting will be held in Syria Mosque tomorrow night to mark the final rally of the campaign for Mayor John S. Herron and associated candidates.

Automobile parades from all sections of the city and county will precede the meeting, opening at 8:30.

Mayor Herron will be the principal speaker. Appearing with him will be Dr. Samuel Harden Church, head of Carnegie Institute; Dr. A. L. Lewin, member of the Board of Public Education, and District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Other speakers will be Councilmen Harry A. Little, W. Y. English, Clifford B. Connelley, George S. Oliver and Frank L. Duggan, Coroner W. J. McGregor, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar and John A. Schrader, candidate for Jury Commissioner.

BLAMES ARREST ON POLITICS

William West, Sixth Ward, charged with disorderly conduct and sent to the workhouse, he maintains, because he is a supporter of P. J. Sullivan, today was to ask Judge James H. Gray to release him on a writ of habeas corpus.

West said he was arrested Sunday and lodged in No. 5 Police Station. He denied the charge, but was given a $50 fine and sentenced for 30 days in default of payment.

His petition said his arrest was due to his support of candidates favored by P. J. Sullivan and his opposition to the faction headed by Police Magistrate George Metzler, of the Sixth Ward.

A PAGE OF HISTORY

"A page of history is worth a volume of logic"
—Oliver W. Holmes, former Justice, U. S. Supreme Court

"PRESIDENT HERRON," said the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, March 12, 1931, "is getting around to the true perspective of the plight of the Councilmanic majority in the Department of Supplies scandal. It was just an empty gesture to approve the Controller's audit—since it was beyond the power of Council to stop it. The mayor's seven councilmen had their chance to take the side of the public interest and deliberately elected to flout public opinion.

Possibly Messrs. Herron, English, Alderdice, Connelley and Muldowney would be satisfied to have the public look upon their role as passive in the present situation. But they cannot escape their responsibilities by a hurried retreat to the sidelines. They took a positive stand against the reasonable and just demand of an aroused citizenry to know just how far the scandal reached. The record cannot be erased and it is probably the most humiliating chapter in the history of Council since its organization on the present basis 20 years ago."

Did "You" train Herron or did Coyne?

Said the Post-Gazette, editorially on August 24, 1933, "His (Mayor Herron's) close affiliations with the corrupt Coyne machine is a factor in the campaign which cannot be glossed over or whitewashed. On top of all the flagrant scandal of the last Administration come new revelations of election frauds, "Phantom" registrations, and the collection of campaign funds from protected underworld activities."

One of our fall brides-to-be is taking time from trousseau shopping to visit the World Fair—Anne Elizabeth Hillman.

Anne Elizabeth, a daughter of the junior John Hartwell Hillmans, whose betrothal to Benjamin Harvey Kountz, son of the George McClellan Kountzes, has been announced, is now in Chicago with her mother. They expect to return next week.

Winchester Girl Married to Easterner

The marriage of a Winchester girl and a Forest Hills (L. I.) young man, which took place June 24, is just being made known today by the bride's mother, Mrs. Eleanor A. Cannon, of Aylesboro avenue.

She is announcing the marriage of her daughter, Miss Jane Blaine Cannon, to William C. Marshall, of Forest Hills, L. I. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall will make their home in Forest Hills.

The bride attended Winchester, and the bridegroom, Western Reserve University. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Helen Davidson To Be Married September 28

Miss Helen Davidson, daughter of Mrs. E. R. Davidson, of West Prospect avenue, Ingram, and the late Mr. Davidson, is to wed John Templeton Brownlee, of Washington, Pa., on Thursday, September 28.

The ceremony will take place in the Davidson home, and, due to the recent death of the bride-elect's father, will be attended only by the families.

After the wedding Mr. Brownlee and his bride will sail for Edinburgh, Scotland, for the winter. Mr. Brownlee, who has been awarded the Jamison scholarship from the Pittsburgh Xenia Theological Seminary, will enter the University of Edinburgh.

Helen E. Boff Married To George T. Van Horn

Announcement is made by Mrs. Margaret Boff, of Hillcrest street, East End, of the marriage on August 8 of her daughter, Miss Helen E. Boff, to George T. Van Horn, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Van Horn, of Edgewood.

The ceremony was a quiet, family affair, with the Rev. Herbert Baum, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Butler, Pa., officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Van Horn are at home in Edgewood.

Elizabeth Louise Root Marries Jack D. Ivey

Mrs. Raymond R. Root, of North Euclid avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Louise Root, to Jack D. Ivey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Ivey, of Columbus, O., formerly of Pittsburgh. The wedding took place in Wheeling, W. Va. Mr. and Mrs. Ivey are at home in Columbus.

Louis J. Affelder Club To Give Dance Sunday

Elizabeth Lawther Odell, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Owen Davies Odell, of Sewickley, is expected home within several days from a trip around the world with her brother, Owen Lawther Odell. Sally Odell, their young sister, joined them in Paris early in the summer.

Elizabeth's engagement to Phillip Chabot Smith, of London, England, was announced in July.

Return Home

The Stanley Lyons and their small son, Charles Lyon have just returned from spending the summer at their cottage on Georgian Bay. Mrs. Lyon's mother and sister, Mrs. Charles Hyde and Miss Eleanor Hyde, have also returned from Canada.

The junior John B. Semples have returned from Norway, Sweden, England, Spain and Italy, and are at present living with the senior John B. Semples, of Sewickley.

Mrs. Frank Hall, another daughter of the senior Semples, will leave today for her home in Pasadena, Cal., with her young son, Frank Hall, Jr. The Halls attended the World's Fair and then came East to visit the family.

Visiting at Ranch

Enjoying a belated holiday are Analana Beeson, debutante, and her sister, Mrs. A. Verner Wasson, who are at Eaton's Ranch, Wyoming, for several weeks.

The J. Bernd Roses and family are home from Hyannisport. Miss Mary Cree Porter is back from California, returning by way of the Panama Canal. Miss Martha Porter, her sister, is back from Lake Joseph in the Muskoka Lake region, Canada, where she was the guest of Mrs. Robert Townsend.

Morningside P. T. A. To Install Officers

Officers who were elected at the last meeting will be installed tomorrow evening by the Morningside Parent-Teacher Association. They are Mrs. S. D. Semenow, vice president; Mrs. George H. Wilkins, Jr., secretary; D. Elmer Woods, treasurer.

Motion pictures will be shown by Miss Mary E. Anderson, teacher of visual education at the school, and Mrs. Robert E. Seldon, vice president of the State P.-T. A. Congress, will speak on "The Child and Our Responsibility." William Neumann, tenor, will sing.

Kennedy Garden Unit To Hold Fair Saturday

Kennedy Branch, Allegheny County Farm and Garden Association, will have its annual fair Saturday in Ken Mawr School, Pine Hollow road. In addition to the flower, fruit, vegetable, canned goods and needle work exhibits, there will be special displays of miniature gardens and shadow boxes.

Miss Edna Alice McEwen Marries Colorado Man

At 7:30 o'clock last evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen McEwen, of Mt. Lebanon, their daughter, Miss Edna Alice McEwen, became the bride of Robert Lawrence Spurgeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Spurgeon, of Colorado Springs, Col.

The ceremony took place in the living room before an altar of cibotium ferns and crotons, lighted by tapers in tall, seven-branched candelabra.

Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Edward C. McCown, of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles D. Fulton, of the Beaver United Presbyterian Church. Dr. Charles N. Boyd, director of the Pittsburgh Musical Institute, played the wedding music. Mrs. William J. Caldwell, of New Castle, sister of the bride, sang.

Her sister, Miss Virginia McEwen, as maid of honor, wore orchid satin with a period maline hat to match. Another sister, Mrs. William Henry Schafer, of Youngstown, O., as matron of honor, wore orchid silk, and both carried Pernet roses.

Joseph McEwen, brother of the bride, was best man and ushers were William James Caldwell and William Henry Schafer.

After the reception and dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon left on their honeymoon. They will make their home in Evanston, Ill.

The rehearsal luncheon was given in the Hotel Schenley at 1 o'clock the afternoon of the wedding by Mr. and Mrs. William James Caldwell.

Miss Thelma Gray Becomes Bride Of W. B. Smith

Miss Thelma R. Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gray, of Emsworth, and Walter B. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, of Lowry Run road, Emsworth, were married Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Gray home by the Rev. J. W. Springer, pastor of the Emsworth United Presbyterian Church.

The bride wore a blue satin gown and carried a corsage of white gardenias, and her maid of honor, Miss Marion G. Cobbett, wore a canary yellow crepe gown with brown accessories, and carried tea roses and lilies of the valley.

Profitable Club Seasons Promised by Programs In New Year Books

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Year books and still more year books continue to increase the club editor's mail. Today, the Oakmont Woman's Club, the Women's Progressive Club, the Woman's Historical Society, the Homewood and the Carnegie Juniors' books were received.

September 26 is the opening date for the Oakmont group which will honor its president, Mrs. L. P. Forman, and its past presidents on that day.

Raymond D. Evans, Mrs. Edith Stoffer White, Bishop Brown, and Dr. Max Schoen are among the speakers the club will hear during the season. In addition to these talks the women will have some fine music and other entertainment.

The Progressive Club had its initial meeting last night, Mrs. James Hillman receiving the gavel from her predecessor, Mrs. Chauncey Ward. The miscellaneous program includes many interesting topics, from book reviews and discussion of Muscle Shoals, "The New Deal," and "Women in Aviation" to "The Jew in Literature, Finance and the Professions," "Nudist Colonies," "Barbarism of African Tribes" and other equally varied subjects.

John Duss will be speaker on the Historical Society's opening day, October 9. Gustave Schramm will speak on president's day, January 22. A number of programs on historical subjects will make a busy and profitable year for the members.

Miss Isabel Lea will take over the presidency of the Carnegie Juniors on Tuesday, when the group will begin a year of diversified study on such subjects as fashion, music and famous people with special events lending added variety to it.

October 2 will mark the beginning of the Homewood Juniors' year in which the members will visit the Better Homes Exhibit, will hear a talk by Mrs. Clifford C. Taylor, hold several benefits, have a talk on "Creative Thinking," by Dr. Hugh Greer Carruthers, visit a radio station and find many more interests on the calendar.

AIR TRAVELERS PREFER THE ROUGH WOOLENS WHEN TAKING TO WINGS

TODAY'S TRAVELER who flies over the countryside in the approved modern manner asks many things of her costume. Will it be warm enough, comfortable, smart? Is it correct? As you can see by the accompanying illustration, the designer of both these very smart suits knew all the requirements, for her formula answers each question individually. These examples are typical of the successful handling of the air-travel clothes problem by good manufacturers.

YOUR TRAVEL suit will probably be tweed or a rough woolen, as these are in the sketch. It might be a soft brown, or a purplish blue tweed with raspberry suede vest beneath. There is much probability that it might be a very dark brown, in which case you will wear bright blue accessories with it. It might be one of the new woolens which reproduce stone colors. These are magnificent in tone.

THE COAT should be loose, for there is a definite need for comfortable roominess. It may be boxy, three-quarters in length, or longer. But there must be room enough to allow a sweater blouse underneath, if the costume calls for it. It might be a balmaccan-type, exactly like those men wear, in natural green, brown or checked mixture. Since the coat is meant for comfort, it should easily accommodate a heavy sweater, especially for days when icy breezes sweep into the weather picture. Many of the best examples flaunt large collars that turn up carelessly about the throat, in defiance of strong winds. On the right-hand figure, for example.

THE SAME suit can be used as a foundation for a very full wardrobe. A woolen dress may be matched to the color of the woolen jacket. Or it may contrast. Here are some good suggestions: A bright green or red woolen under a coat of rich brown; pansy blue under a deep plum tweed coat, with a dash of raspberry in the scarf; a deep brown under a coat of grayish green or deep blue. Add quantities of blouse and sweater changes for the occasions when you wear the suit.

'BUTTONS' FAME SPREADS TO ALL DISTRICTS

"Buttons," the Sun-Telegraph page boy, is rapidly becoming the "best known man in town. Everywhere he goes he is immediately recognized and many eyes follow him to see just what house or apartment is being "paged."

"Buttons," who pages 11 people every day, told about some of his experiences yesterday. Where he had paged one of the $1 winners, the lady "paged," upon opening the door and seeing the nattily uniformed "page boy," said:

"I know you, you are 'Buttons.' My sister saw my name 'paged' in the Sun-Telegraph and phoned me. Really, young man, you should get around earlier, here it is 2:30 and I haven't been able to do one bit of my housework since my sister's call—I've been watching out the window for you and now I'm going right out and do just what the Sun-Telegraph is advocating—'Spend in September and Save.' The housework is going to have to wait."

Maybe today you'll receive the same thrill this housewife received yesterday. If not today maybe you'll be one of the 11 to be "paged" tomorrow. One of the 11 "paged" will be awarded $5—the other 10 $1 each.

What a thrill you'll get when "Buttons" draws up to your home, rings your doorbell and hands you the cash. Watch for your name every day! Watch for "Buttons!"

Mrs. Haller Honor Guest at Club Reception

Unusually lovely decorations, all from the gardens of members and arranged by the women, marked the president's reception honoring Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, of the Congress of Clubs, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Haller, her predecessor, Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, three other past presidents, Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, Mrs. John S. Sloan and Miss Helen Grimes, the board of directors and the hospitality chairman, Mrs. Samuel Brown, all smartly gowned, received together in the lounge. Mrs. Haller's dress was of aquamarine blue crepe and lace which she wore with a black lace hat and shoulder corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Stahlman, Mrs. Sloan, Mrs. Coslowsky and Mrs. H. D. Stark, first vice president, presided at the tea table which was centered with a basket of summer lilacs, pink roses and baby's breath. Lavendar candles in silver candlesticks completing the decorative scheme there.

The 300 guests went up to the auditorium at 3 o'clock for the fine musical program by Frank Kennedy, piano, and Robert Owrey, baritone. Preceding the reception Mrs. Brown and those of her committee who were aides for the day had luncheon at the clubhouse.

Wives Should Be Treated As Partners in Marriage

Who should hold the family purse strings?

When a man marries, is what he earns "our money" or "my money?"

And should he have the spending of it, because he's earned it?

Or should spending be a partnership business?

And if you dont' make it one, are you giving the missis a square deal?

Who's asking these questions? Betty, who can't understand her new husband.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am coming to you for help because I am simply heartbroken, and I don't know what to do.

It is money that is bothering me. I have been married just two months, and I don't know what to make of my husband. Before I was married I didn't work. I would have, but three years ago, when I got out of school, there were mighty few jobs to be had, and they got fewer. My dad had a fairly good business, and we were able to get by all right, but it took some thought and planning, so you see that even if I didn't earn and have to handle my own money, I learned something about it, and how to spend it wisely.

But my husband seems to think that no one is capable of handling it but himself . . . at least in this family. I just can't understand him. My mother always did the buying at home, and I managed the small amount Dad could afford to give me, and made it go around. But Bill won't hear to having me do any of the spending for us. He gets a good salary too, and he isn't stingy. He buys what I need . . . but I always have to ask him for things, and explain what I want them for.

THINKS HE'S WRONG

It seems that his father always did that. His mother had some charge accounts, and his father bought her things. And he seems to think that is the way to do things. When I try to talk to him about it, he just looks stubborn, and says: "I make the money, and I'll handle it."

Do you think he is right? I don't think so. I am not a dumbbell, and I know I could often get better bargains than he does. What do you think ails him, anyway? He seems to think that it is a matter of pride, or something, for the man to handle the financial matters in his home.

Honestly, I feel so humiliated. It is just as if he felt he had married an idiot, who couldn't be trusted to use her own judgment. Am I wrong? Should he be the one to pay the money out because he earns it? Please help me. BETTY.

ENTITLED TO SHARE

So he thinks it's His Money, does he?

Well, it isn't. He asked you to share his life . . . to become part of his life, and not just a knicknack, an incident in it. You're just as much a partner in that marriage as he is. And you deserve to be treated as a partner.

As for "earning" the money—he may earn it downtown, but if you keep his house, you also earn a share in it. You work at home, just as surely as he works at the office. And you have a right to be treated as a responsible human.

Why doesn't he treat you as one? Plainly, not because he is mean, but because he hasn't done very much thinking, and doesn't understand. And I suspect too, that he is actually trying to impress you with his strength, and make you look up to him. Then, too, there is the example of the father he respects, and thinks is a fine pattern of a man. So don't be hurt, or mad at him. Chances are he is just as anxious as you are to make your marriage a success, but because it is all new to him, he is blundering.

So sit down quietly, my dear, and explain, kindly and gently, but firmly, just what he is doing to your self respect, and to your faith in him. Then put it up to him straight, that so long as you do your part, you're entitled to his faith—and an allowance.

Some Seek Publicity Whether Good or Bad, Observes Fay King

By FAY KING

Notoriety is as fascinating as fame to the indiscriminate ones who prefer only the well known to the unknown.

One who has acquired a dubious reputation attracts admirers as easily as one who has achieved worthy distinction.

So eager are many to crowd into some kind of a spotlight, they never stop to consider whether it is a favorable or an unfavorable light. They ask only that it be bright and far-reaching.

So we see foolish women become devoted to notorious men. And we see men eager to be gallant toward notorious women.

Publicity seems to be a kind of a mania these hectic days.

Unfortunately, one can become well known as quickly by doing an unworthy thing as a worthy one.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge, Amazed at Avis, Vetoes Her Request

My eyes flew to Hugh's with involuntary panic as the telephone operator at the Veritzen offices told me that Avis Arlen said it was most important that she speak to me before I talked to Philip Veritzen. I regretted asking him to stay while I telephoned Mr. Veritzen, for I conjectured that the girl meant to make an appeal to me concerning the letter I suspected her of stealing, and I felt that Hugh's presence would distinctly hamper me in dealing with her. He had advised me against leniency toward her, and it seemed ungracious to go against his advice, especially when I had asked it.

I clutched at the receiver as if it were a strengthening hand. Hugh stooped toward me and whispered:

"Can't I make some excuse for you?"

I shook my head, for Avis Arlen's voice, excited, tremulous, was already sounding in my ears.

"Oh! Mrs. Graham! I'm in terrible trouble, and only you can help me. Where can I see you?"

"Can't you tell me something of what it is over the telephone?" I parried.

"No, oh! no! I must see you, and that just as soon as I can. Where can I come to you, and when?"

HUGH VOLUNTEERS

"You will have to come out to the farm," I said. "It is not possible for me to come into the city, and there is no train out here now until late this afternoon."

"But there are all kinds of trains to Patchogue," she said "Could not No-el meet me there, and take me back again to that station where I could get a train to New York tonight?"

"It will be utterly impossible for Noel to meet you at Patchogue and drive you over here." I said slowly, watching Hugh's face the while. It registered astonishment as I had expected. But he caught what I wished of him, even before I voiced it, and, pointing a significant forefinger toward his chest, nodded vigorously.

"Maj. Grantland, however, will meet you at Patchogue whenever you say, bring you out to the house, and take you back again."

"Oh! Why?"—

There was infinite disappointment in her voice.

"But that will be lovely!" she said. "Please thank Maj. Grantland for me. The train reaches Patchogue at three-thirty."

"Three-thirty," I repeated, looking at Hugh, and again he nodded vigorously.

"He will be there," I said. "Watch for him."

"I will, but—please—Mrs. Graham—." Her voice faltered, and not knowing whether she was sincere in her agitation or acting a role—one never can tell with Avis Arlen—I made my voice noncommittal.

ASKS SECRECY

"Yes. What can I do for you?"

"Please—don't say anything to Uncle Phil when you talk to him about my having spoken to you. I shall make some excuse to him, but he simply mustn't know why I'm leaving this afternoon, or that I'm going out to your house. It simply would ruin everything for me."

"Naturally I shall say nothing to him unless he questions me about it." I told her coldly, "but should you be deceiving him?"

"Oh! I'm not. You don't understand," she said frantically. "I'll tell him all about it later, but just now he wouldn't understand. I'll tell you all about it when I see you. And thank you a thousand times. I knew you'd stand by me. You're so wonderful and kind. Shall I flash Miss Worthing for you?"

"Please!" I said, so bewildered by her verbal onslaught and the queer request she had made that I scarcely knew what I wished.

It was Philip Veritzen's voice which reached me next, and his accents were as suavely courteous as always.

"Ah! Mrs. Graham!!" he said. "I trust that troublesome ankle is better."

"Much," I told him, "but I have an imperative summons to look over the wedding cake, so I must make this colloquy a hurried one. Have you Mrs. Arlen's address ready?"

"Right here." He read it out to me.

"Thank you so much. I shall write to her immediately and send it special. She will have it the first thing in the morning."

"Thank you so much," he replied. "And you may be interested to know that I think I am on the trail of the missing letter. I will let you know developments. Goodbye."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Head Noises Traced to the Ear

Many persons are susceptible to a distressing symptom known as "head noises." It is a vague and annoying complaint, frequently encountered in persons of middle age. It is not a disease, but it is a sign of some disturbance within the body. It is usually a warning of some disorder of the middle ear and may be a forerunner of chronic ear disturbance.

Dr. Copeland

Sufferers from this affliction describe the head noises differently. One group says it is a "pulsating noise;" the second group describes it as a "continuous noise," and the third group is insistent that the noises resemble music or the ringing of bells.

In olden times a sufferer from head noises was believed to be the victim of evil spirits located within his skull. Unless these spirits were driven out of the victim's head, untold misery and suffering would result! This gave rise to the practice of boring holes in the skull.

The bone-cutters or traveling barbers, as they were sometimes called, traveled from country to country. They performed these minor operations with uncanny skill but with little relief to the sufferer. Many skulls dating back to the day of bone-cutters, bearing marks and borings of these crude surgeons, are proof that the ancients suffered from the malady which still afflicts mankind.

Occasionally head noises may be cured by the simple removal of impacted wax or polyps found in the canal of the ear. In other instances a foreign body may have become located in the auditory canal and produced this unwelcome discomfort.

Often a constitutional disturbance such as anemia or some other blood disorder may be the cause of head noises. It is not uncommon to find this affliction in persons suffering from arterio sclerosis, or hardening of the blood vessels.

The cause can be determined only by a careful physical examination. If you are a sufferer from head noises consult with your doctor. This symptom is often overlooked so long as the discomfort is mild and not too disturbing. Unfortunately, the sufferer seeks medical advice when the noises have become persistent and sometimes so annoying as to interfere with the general health. It is then difficult to relieve the trouble.

May I warn you against carelessness and neglect of any ear complaint. I cannot overemphasize the importance of early and prompt attention.

Correct Manners

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Husband's Wedding Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me if men's wedding rings are being worn? My fiance wishes to wear one, but the patterns sold now are similar to women's rings, and I am afraid it will be subject to ridicule by other men. If it is proper, should there be a double ceremony? J.

It is quite correct for a man to wear a wedding ring if he wishes to, and you should be proud if your fiance wishes to wear one. Men in this country don't often wish to wear a wedding ring, but men abroad, especially on the Continent, usually wear wedding rings.

Anyone who would have such poor taste, as to ridicule a sacred symbol would not need to be regarded, so don't let that consideration retard you and your husband-to-be. Have your fiance go with you to the jeweler's to select the ring that most pleases him. (But you are the one who buys the ring, just as he buys yours.)

Wedding Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to know whether or not it is correct for the guests to stand during the marriage ceremony in the church? C.

Yes. The guests rise at the first notes of that happy musical phrase "Here comes the bride," and in most denominations they remain standing during the marriage ceremony. The guests may take their seats while the ushers escort the parents and close relatives of the bride and groom down the aisle. Then when they see that it is the appropriate time for guests who are not to be escorted to leave their places, they rise and go down the aisle.

Contract Bridge -:-

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Accurate Play

There has developed recently a deplorable tendency to play hands in notrump in Duplicate play due to the higher score on the match-point basis. The result is that Bridge played under these conditions becomes highly artificial and bears no close relation to Rubber play. It is interesting, however, to note that frequently those who reach out for "Howell tops" fail of their objective because the natural declaration is the winning one.

Recently Mr. Charles Schmid, playing in a Duplicate game in New York, gained a well-earned top by the manner in which he and his partner bid the hand below, and the precision with which it was played.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ K 10 9 6 4 ♡ A K 5 ◇ K J 9 2 ♣ A
♠ 3 2 ♡ 10 6 4 3 2 ◇ 10 4 ♣ 10 9 8 7	North West East South	♠ Q J 8 ♡ Q 9 7 ◇ Q 5 3 ♣ K J 5 3
	♠ A 7 5 ♡ J 8 ◇ A 8 7 6 ♣ Q 6 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 N T (1)	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	4 ♠ (2)	Pass
4 N T	Pass	5 N T	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Possibly a slight overbid, but one notrump is very weak and two spades might be bid on a near trickless hand.

2—South might bid four diamonds, but he is fearful of the Slam and knows that his partner has at least as many spades as diamonds, and that, in a duplicate game, the hand should consequently play in spades.

The rest of the bidding follows entirely conventional lines. South's response of five notrump is forced, and North, assured of support for the spade suit but unfamiliar with the diamond situation, bids for a Slam in that suit. As a matter of fact, it proved to be the wisest course.

The Opening lead was a club, which Mr. Schmid won, then laid down the Ace and King of hearts and returned the third round of the suit, which he ruffed in Dummy. His purpose was, if possible, to eliminate hearts from the hand which would next gain the lead. He now led three rounds of trumps, and on the third round East was placed in the lead.

With the hand void of hearts and trumps it is obvious at this point that East has great difficulty in choosing a card to lead or, in fact, a suit. As a matter of fact, he actually continued with the King of clubs. It was apparent, of course, that this card must be ruffed by the Declarer and the Queen in Dummy established for a trick. However, East reasoned that North was marked with four diamonds, as he had bid the suit, and that a diamond finesse would still remain necessary after one diamond had been discarded on the club.

This was good reasoning, but Mr. Schmid countered with reasoning equally acute. He ruffed the club King, laid down the King of diamonds and continued with the Knave of diamonds, rightly reasoning that the ordinary finesse would lose, as otherwise East could have no purpose in establishing the club Queen as a trick winner. North felt his one chance of making his contract was to find the Ten and one diamond with West and the Queen twice guarded with East. Based on the play, this reasoning was absolutely accurate, and as a result of both well-reasoned bidding and logical play, the Slam was made.

FEDERAL OUTLAY FOR RECOVERY HELD SKIMPY

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Expenditures of the government up to September 5 in the widely-heralded $3,300,000,000 public works program, hailed as a master blow at the depression and means to putting millions of men to work, totaled only $49,285,359.

An examination of expenditures by the Treasury Department for other "emergency" projects for which Congress appropriated hundreds of millions of dollars, revealed similarly comparatively paltry outlays. Officials attribute this to caution; critics, to "red tape."

Described as an emergency expenditure on the Treasury's books it is found that for administration of industrial recovery, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's force, there had been expended $438,472.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration is down for $4,646,618; Farm Credit Administration, $7,500,000; Civilian Conservation Corps, $46,122,217; Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $106,282,941; Tennessee Valley Authority, $73,179, and for subscriptions to paid-in surplus, etc., of federal land banks, $3,849,794.

PROUD AT SHOWING

Including the $49,285,359 for public works under Secretary of the Interior Ickes, the total expenditures for "emergency" purposes totaled $218,198,582 in the period from July 1 to September 5.

The administration points with pride to its showing in expenditures for "general" or customary purposes not part of the emergency recovery program.

For the executive departments, public building construction and sites (Treasury Department), river and harbor work (War Department), national defense and veterans' administration, the Treasury expended $291,161,968 from July 1 to September 5, 1933, compared with $427,099,594 assigned to these purposes in the corresponding period of last year.

However, Treasury officials conceded that some of the expenditures last year could be attributed to special charges brought on by the depression.

VET FUNDS LOWER

Where $100,000,000 was allotted to the war veterans' adjusted-certificate fund last year, only $50,000,000 was required this year. The farm credit administration was given $29,437,354 this year, with no comparable figure for 1932. The postal deficit so far the present fiscal year totals $12,002,999, against $15,078,597 in the similar period of last year.

Interest on the public debt jumped from $23,249,315 for the period July 1 to September 5, 1932, to $40,143,479 in the corresponding period under the Roosevelt administration. The public debt as of September 5, was $23,096,326,061, against $22,538,672,560 on June 30, 1932.

Better times in the business world are reflected in an increase in revenue from taxes, customs and other sources. For the period from July 1 to September 5, 1933, receipts totaled $392,434,861, compared with $206,564,017 in the corresponding period of 1932.

Income tax receipts amounted to $29,818,225, against $32,905,347; miscellaneous internal revenue, $267,918,022, against $109,838,072; customs, $61,966,825, against $46,370,673.

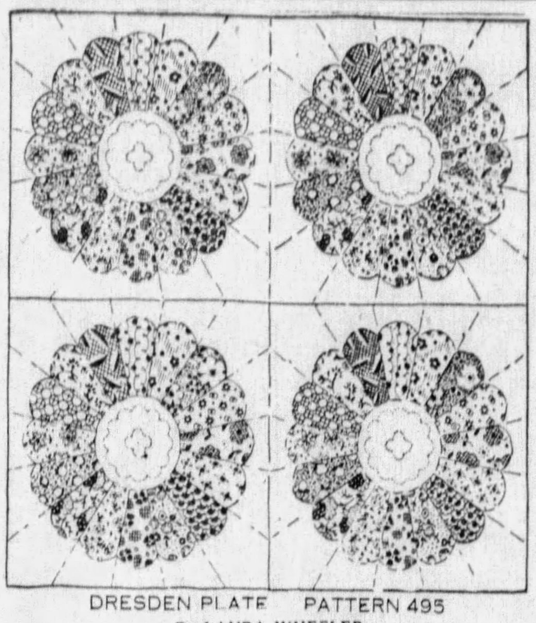
OLD-TIME SCRAP QUILT



DRESDEN PLATE PATTERN 495

By LAURA WHEELER

The Dresden Plate has long been a favorite scrap quilt. Every quiltmaker is fascinated by the quaint designs of the cotton prints that go into her quilts. She finds it especially interesting then to combine a variety of such scraps in one block and this pattern offers her an opportunity to do this most effectively. The scraps are all made of the same pattern piece and the block is further enhanced by a quilting motif which comes with the pattern but can be omitted without affecting the beauty of the block.

Pattern 495 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, quilting motif, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

TECH SIGNS UP NOTED GERMAN 'EXILES'

Three internationally famous German scientists will become members of the faculty of Carnegie Institute of Technology this fall, Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president, announced today.

Nazi oppression, it is understood, has forced all of them to join their distinguished colleague, Einstein, in "exile" from Germany. Dr. Baker revealed yesterday that his "mystery" trip to Europe last June was in response to a cablegram from one of his correspondents in Germany, reporting that the scientists were "unhappy."

When he arrived in Germany, Dr. Baker says that he found all of them dissatisfied with their life at the German universities and lost no time in offering them professorships at Tech. One of them had already resigned his post, the other two were on a "leave of absence." Hitler's policies, it is said, had much to do with their "unhappiness."

2 FROM HAMBURG

Prof. Otto Stern, experimental physicist and former head of the institute of physical chemistry at the University of Hamburg; his assistant, Prof. I. Estermann, and Prof. Ernst Berl, chemist and professor at the Technical University at Darmstadt, are the new members who will join the Tech research staff.

Dr. Berl is on his way to this country now, and Dr. Stern and Dr. Estermann are expected to arrive about October 10. During their first year here, Dr. Baker states, they will teach a few undergraduate classes, while they resume the intensive research work interrupted by their move from Germany to Pittsburgh.

EXPERTS ON ATOMS

Prof. Stern is best known for his work in developing the use of molecular beams as a tool in physical and chemical research. His experiments indicate lately, it is said, that atoms may at times behave as particles and at other times as light waves of very high frequency. After his graduation from the University of Breslau, he worked with Prof. Einstein. In a former visit to this country in 1930, he was a visiting lecturer at the University of California.

Prof. Estermann, in addition to his collaboration with Prof. Stern, has extended the method of molecular beams to a study of the structure of atoms. In 1931 and 1932 he held a Rockefeller fellowship at the University of California.

EINSTEIN BUSY ON TREATISE

CROMER, NORFOLK, England, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert Einstein is working many hours daily on the completion of a mathematical treatise in his retreat near here where he is guarded from the interference of friends and possible foes.

The scientist came here from his villa at Le Coq-Sur-Mer, Belgium, after a price of approximately $6,800 was reported to have been put on his head by a Nazi organization. He is the guest of Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson, British Parliament member.

His former relativity rules, it was stated, had brought the professor to a blind alley and he now is reviewing the matter from a different angle with success.

The keepers and other men in the employ of Commander Locker-Lampson, armed with shotguns, guard the secluded retreat nightly, but so far there have been no intruders.

BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN

This is the fourth illustrated editorial—of a series now appearing in the Hearst Newspapers—on the importance of the Buy Now movement as a contribution to National Recovery.

Portrait of Two Patriots.

Both are doing their part . . . Helping to Speed National Recovery

THIS IS A PORTRAIT OF TWO PATRIOTS. The man, as you see, is a grocer. The woman is one of his customers. Nothing out of the ordinary—two average people in an everyday scene.

Both are true patriots.

The grocer is a patriot because he has shortened his clerks' hours. He has raised their wages. Added new men.

He is doing his part—up to the hilt.

The woman is a patriot because she has realized that when she buys less than normal, her grocer hires fewer men than normal, the people who sell him things get less than normal return.

She wants to do her part. So she's buying the things she needs.

The grocer in this picture stands for hundreds of thousands of employers who have taken a long gamble. After three years of slow turnover, lessened business and smaller profits, they have taken on bigger overhead at the President's request.

But the picture is not complete without the woman. The customer. The buyer of groceries—and household necessities. And the woman in this picture stands for you!

Unless you buy in normal volume — unless you spend sensibly for the things you need and want—the grocers and the bakers and the dry goods merchants who have hired new people will have to let them go.

They cannot buy groceries or flour from the producers unless they can sell them to their customers.

And unless there are groceries made or flour ground or yard-goods woven in the next few months—unless you do your part in helping to create the demand for these things—the country may have another winter that will be as difficult as the last one.

And we can't have that.

MAKE A LIST of the things you can buy in September. Things for yourself. Things for your family. Set a better table, maybe. Or go to the movies when you feel the impulse.

Certainly, this is a reasonable appeal. You are not being asked to donate—or even to lend your money. You are urged only to buy things that you can sensibly afford. Such as food, clothing and furnishings for your home.

Many American families have already taken inventory and made up their shopping lists. They are beginning to buy again—normally—in the volume they can afford. They are patronizing every merchant who sells the merchandise they need. For they know that by helping him, they are also helping themselves.

But this is a time for all of us to pull together. The job ahead cannot be accomplished by only part of our people. The President has asked us all to help. You must do your share. Everyone must. And as the President said on the day of his inauguration, "with that spirit, we cannot fail."

Buy in September. Buy anything and everything that you can buy. Do not be extravagant. But buy all that you can. Then no one can say that you have not done your part. Spending in September will speed up Recovery—for us all.

Durant Is Warned To Lose Interest In Siddall's Case

Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

CHAPTER VI.

In the lovely days that had ended when he took Gazotti's case, they had had so many gay luncheons and dinners on the penthouse porch. Sue, darling little Sue, had always been in a twitter when she came to his home. It seemed to her that she was defying convention outrageously when she called on a bachelor. Probably she was, only a convention that is flouted by practically every debutante in New York loses some of its importance.

She hadn't forgotten everything. She had noticed, even in the stress of emotion, that the Rembrandt had been removed from the living-room wall. He wondered if she had noticed any changes in himself. If she had been aware of an inanimate thing, it was only natural to suppose that she might have observed animate things. That is, if he were still animate. Sometimes he wondered if he hadn't died on the night when Sue broke their engagement.

Synopsis

Jackson Durant, young lawyer who has alienated the Park avenue set through his spectacular success as "an underworld mouthpiece," has been asked by Sue Leonard, society girl who jilted him, to "save" Thomas Siddall, youthful broker, to whom Sue is now engaged. Siddall, held on a murder charge, had been arrested, gun in hand, when his former sweetheart, Mimi Montagne, a Broadway night club singer, was shot dead on the terrace of a penthouse where Jim Crelliman was "throwing a party." Durant starts his own investigation. Tony Gazotti, grateful because Durant had saved him from the "hot seat" recently, agrees to help the lawyer. Durant decides to consult Sue.

Now Go On

Oh, a Jackson Durant walked the streets; a Jackson Durant tried and won cases in court; a Jackson Durant took whole choruses home with him after the theater. But these Jackson Durants were not related to the man who had won Sue Leonard. That man had been happy, light-hearted, filled with a belief in the inn..te goodness of humanity and of life.

But why be tragic even in thought? He was being rather ridiculous. The best thing that had ever happened to him was the breaking of the engagement by Sue. If she could so soon

CONNELLSVILLE KIN AID NURSE, HELD KILLER

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—While Francis J. Morgan Grace was buried yesterday, after funeral services attended only by the family, in Pennsylvania relatives of Wilhelmina Weltz were hurrying westward to aid her in fighting murder charges.

The 43-year-old nurse, who has refused to disclose the motive for shooting the retired capitalist, continued to profess indifference to whatever fate awaits her.

A prompt offer of succor came from the nurse's brother and sister, William and Meta Weltz, of Connellsville, Pa. The brother telegraphed authorities, "please hold no preliminary hearing pending my arrival Friday."

To Miss Weltz, the relatives telegraphed jointly:

"Don't say anything until you hear from your attorney. Courage."

Miss Weltz promptly wrote a telegram in reply:

"Wire received. Would love to see you. Don't come. Useless."

MENTAL TEST FOR 'LOTHARIO'

Judge Elder W. Marshall has appointed a sanity commission to examine Leonard Urban, McKeesport Lothario, instead of sending him to trial on six charges of issuing worthless checks, allegedly to impress a couple of girl friends.

Jail Physician Charles Ellis recommended the commission after Assistant District Attorney Jacob Kalson had requested a preliminary examination of Urban.

Urban is said to have profited little by the checks. Two, authorities said, were for down payments on automobiles, and one was for a houseful of furniture, none of the purchases ever being delivered. Another was for dresses the store did not send. One was for $5 cash and another was for some small articles.

Two women arrested in an early morning raid on an alleged disorderly house at 2039 Fifth avenue by Constable John S. Ridge, of Oakland, who was recently ordered by Judge William H. McNaugher to clean up alleged vice conditions in the Fourth Ward, were held in County Jail pending hearings.

The women, Ruth Jones, alleged proprietor, and Patricia Ford, will be given hearings Friday before Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon, Ridge said. He said the raid was made on complaints that the address was a disorderly house.

Ridge, who recently appeared before Sylvester Snee as the lone marcher in the "Blind Man's Parade," told the judge:

"Judge, there's still one bad spot out there. It's closed now but will open as soon as my report is made. The police won't help, and the place knows my men. What'll I do?"

The judge replied:

"Just go out and do your duty."

BERLIN SEEKS RUSSIAN AMITY

By KARL H. VON WEIGAND
Universal Service Special Cable.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—Germany's isolation in the foreign field was portrayed to Chancellor Hitler and his cabinet members by Foreign Minister von Neurath last night. It was the first cabinet meeting since July.

The Foreign Minister outlined Germany's difficult foreign situation while Pierre Cot, French Air Minister, with a staff of 24 men in three big tri-motored planes, were en route to Moscow, following former French Premier Herriott to the Soviet capital.

He is said to have given them a survey of the attitude of foreign powers towards Germany. America's attitude is understood to have come up and an Austro-German empire is believed to have been discussed.

Some members of the cabinet, it is said, advocated the necessity of reorientating back toward Russia and the advisability of an immediate gesture towards Moscow that would lead to closing the breach between Germany and Russia.

"Any man or Councilman acquainted with the bookkeeping of the boroughs knows that the borough clerk does not keep control of the finance accounts."

V. T. Reed, a borough auditor, reported that auditors are still working on another possible shortage, this in the borough improvement funds.

Looks like things will have to be yeasted with inflation. Right now the only thing you can get for thirty days is quarantined.

POLITICS

Dr. Frederick's Position Continues Puzzle

By MARK SHIELDS

The position of Dr. F. H. Frederick, one of the most prominent of North Side political leaders, as it pertains to the present Republican mayoralty scramble, must continue to be a puzzle, so far as the public is informed.

Mr. Shields

For weeks there has been speculation as to the attitude of Dr. Frederick as between Mayor John S. Herron, Councilman P. J. McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. He carries weight over the river, and any candidate would be glad to have the doctor in his corner.

Yesterday Dr. Frederick, who is chairman of the Civil Service Commission, visited the Mayor's office. It was the expectation that at the conclusion of his visit with the Mayor he would make some public declaration of his attitude, perhaps favoring Mayor Herron, though it was well understood that he would not approve the administration councilmanic slate in its entirety.

Nothing to Impart After Seeing Mayor

However, when Dr. Frederick talked to newspapermen after he had conferred with the Mayor he had nothing to impart to the public. He explained, and with logic, that as Civil Service Commissioner he could not become active in politics without taking a vacation from his position. His health, now, it is understood does not warrant the same energetic participation in politics he exhibited in 1929, when he managed the Kline campaign. At that time he took a four months' leave of absence from his official duties.

This was the second occasion upon which the administration had expected an indorsement from Dr. Frederick, and had been disappointed. The first occasion was the North Side mass meeting which opened the campaign. Dr. Frederick was advertised privately by Mayor Herron to open the meeting if his health permitted, and to at least send a letter approving the Mayor's candidacy. He did neither.

In the absence of any definite information, though Dr. Frederick is reported to feel kindly toward the Mayor, it is gossiped that his silence in this campaign may be actuated by committments which may have been made by some of his friends. It is well known that the North Side has been seething politically, and that Mr. McArdle and Mr. Mackrell, the latter especially, have expected to make strides in that district.

Chief Confusion Councilmanic Fight

How much and whether the Engelsberg charges have hampered Mr. Mackrell in that direction is a speculative matter, but undoubtedly some difference has occurred. Under the conditions it is believed that Mayor Herron has gained something through the accession of some minor political leaders, at least, and that Mr. McArdle also may have profited.

But the chief confusion over the Allegheny now, as always, touches the councilmanic fight. There are organization men over there who have the knife out for President of Council Harry A. Little, according to gossip in organization as well as independent circles. Mr. Little has made enemies in the last two years who, despite their affiliation toward a mayoralty candidate, intend to impede his path where they can.

To an extent the same attitude is exhibited toward Councilman C. B. Connelley, the other North Sider in City Council.

However, there are so many rival North Side candidates, some heretofore supported by organization ranks, others somewhat new to politics, that concentration upon any one or two becomes difficult, and this is to the advantage of Messrs. Little and Connelley.

Frederick's Attitude Towards Hough

In this connection something should be said here about the candidacy for Council of Representative Edward M. Hough and the attitude of Dr. Frederick toward his entry into the race.

Mr. Hough early was attached to the Mackrell ticket. Before the last day for withdrawals pressure was brought upon him to retire, as there was upon Thomas F. Ashford, III. The plan was to make room for William A. Magee and James F. Malone.

There was much negotiation and running about, and Mr. Hough did not withdraw, leaving no opening for Mr. Magee on the Mackrell ticket, though Mr. Malone was slated for the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of Mr. Ashford. The impression was left that Mr. Hough later might announce that he was not an actual candidate, but eventually he was officially slated by the Mackrell forces.

This led to the speculative assumption, confined by no means to a single source, that Dr. Frederick had played some part in keeping him in the race.

Dr. Frederick denies this emphatically, and it is but fairness that the denial of the North Side leaders should be published, the story which it denies originally having been printed here.

P. O. RAMP PLAN ADVANCED OVER CITY PROTEST

U. S. Ready to Open Bids for Project Despite Criticism

The federal government, despite protests from the city, is preparing to open bids for construction of a ramp for the new postoffice which will have its outlet in Seventh avenue.

According to the federal plans, the ramp enters at the grade of Seventh avenue and rises at a grade of approximately eight per cent.

The ramp will be of concrete supported by steel pillars. Its width over all is 32.73 feet with asphalt and block paving. There is to be a metal railing with metal panels.

Plans were approved by W. D. Wiggins, chief engineer, Central Division, Pennsylvania. The railroad company will relay its tracks and make all necessary changes.

REPPERT'S PLAN

Today Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineer, expects to submit the city's application and plans for a ramp which would cost approximately $1,800,000 to Joseph C. Trees, federal emergency public works administrator.

Reppert's ramp plans, approved by the Department of City Planning and a special ramp committee appointed by Mayor Herron, are radically different from those of the federal authorities. The ramp, by the city's plans, would bridge Seventh avenue parallel with the proposed twin ramp which would carry through Bigelow boulevard traffic over the intersection at Seventh avenue and Bigelow boulevard.

PREDICT TANGLE

City traffic engineers have predicted that if the government builds the ramp into Seventh avenue it would cause one of the world's worst traffic tangles.

When informed last night that the government would go through with its own plans, Reppert pointed out that the city had protested against bringing the ramp out into Seventh avenue between Bigelow boulevard and Grant street.

Yesterday an addendum was added to the federal ramp specifications. The addendum specifies that "all contractors, sub-contractors, manufacturers or suppliers of material shall comply with all the provisions of the applicable approved code of fair competition." In other words, the work must comply with the tenets of the NRA.

ASSAILS KANE'S ALLIANCES

John J. Kane, candidate for Council, had a good future before he allied himself with men who are no more real Democrats than is Senator James J. Coyne, said John O'Neil, South Side political leader, last night.

Speaking in South Side high school, Carson street, O'Neil asserted:

"Kane has injured himself not only politically but in labor circles by his vicious attacks on mayoralty candidate John M. Henry, who went to work in a coal mine when he was 10 and who suffered persecution because he was leader of a local of the United Mine Workers in the great coal strikes at the beginning of the century."

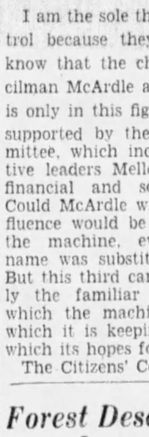
Mackrell Pledges Overthrow of Coyne Rule, 'Rigid Civil Service' for City Employes

Progressive Pictures Self as Threat To Machine

(Editor's Note—This is the third of a series of five articles in which each of the five mayoralty candidates has been invited by the Sun-Telegraph to write under his own signature his answer to this question: "Why do you think you should be elected Mayor of Pittsburgh?")

By JOSEPH N. MACKRELL

The people of Pittsburgh are weary of the domination of their city government, and good Republicans are tired of the Coyne-Mellon - Grundy combine, which opposes the people who are for me.



Mr. Mackrell

They want to get rid of Senator Coyne and all that he represents. That is the one big issue, all others pale before it. They want to end the misgovernment that this alliance has given them.

The voters want to know the facts and issues of this campaign and they will not be fooled by mudslinging and personalities and other desperate tactics of an unscrupulous machine fighting for life.

There is only one way for the people of Pittsburgh to get what they want and that is by the nomination at the Republican primary of the Progressive Republican ticket, which I have the honor to head as candidate for Mayor.

This movement was organized to wipe out Coyne and Coyneism, not only in city government but in carrying out the orders of Grundy and Mellon in making selfish laws or defeating humanitarian legislation at Harrisburg.

The Mellon-Grundy-Coyne opposition is directed at me. That alone should convince the people that I stand for the things they oppose and that my election as Mayor is the real threat to the continued Coyne control in the city and state.

'Threat to Coyne'

I am the sole threat to this control because they know and I know that the chances of Councilman McArdle are hopeless. He is only in this fight because he is supported by the Citizens' Committee, which includes in its active leaders Mellon business and financial and social associates. Could McArdle win, the same influence would be at the head of the machine, even if another name was substituted for Coyne. But this third candidacy is merely the familiar three-way fight which the machine has framed, which it is keeping alive and on which its hopes for victory rest.

The Citizens' Committee, which was organized by professional promoters, sponsored by members affiliated with the Mellons and which has lost much of its membership since its original purpose was changed, has now come into the open and revealed itself as the "decoy" by adopting the child of the Coyne machine. This makes it clear that a vote for McArdle is a vote for Herron.

The personalities of McArdle and Herron, who served together in Council for years in the same political faction and who were raised in the same political school and under the same influences, are not issues in this campaign and will not indulge in personalities. I started out with this policy, and I will adhere to it. Their records and my record in public office are now open for examination and I would gladly have all three examined closely.

The paramount issue in this campaign is Coyneism. I am the only candidate for the Republican nomination opposed to it and its overlords of finance.

Old-Age Pension

Coyneism stands for the poorhouse, for Coyne was the outstanding lieutenant of the Grundy-Mellon combine in defeating old age pensions at Harrisburg. Coyneism is admittedly opposed to clean elections. Coyneism stands for placing the public schools under political control. Coyneism faithfully represents its financial bosses in opposing the interests of war veterans as well as the interests of the people.

Those subjects are passed upon in Harrisburg but they rise or fall on the administration the voters of Pittsburgh select in a municipal election. The victims of Coyneism will obtain relief only by my nomination and election. Outstanding in my platform are pledges of support for old age pensions, to permit aged dependents, at a smaller expenditure by the state, live their remaining days in their home circles; protection of the public school system from political raides like Coyne attempted, so that a school teacher trained for the work by years of schooling will not be forced to bow to the political boss in getting an appointment and keeping her job; support of war veterans to the limit in defeating the opposition of Coyneism to their needs, their worthy demands and the law that was passed to protect them.

I offer the people of Pittsburgh many constructive pledges in a platform which was carefully drawn to meet the crying needs of the city. It demands a clean, progressive and constructive administration of municipal affairs, removal of the policemen and firemen from political dominance, equality in assessments of property and economical but practical reduction of the tax burden, and other pledges to meet the public wants.

One pledge in this campaign that I want to emphasize is the need for the absolute divorce of the City Controller's office from the city administration. As an elected city official, the Controller is intended to be a check on the administration and he should not be in any way affiliated with the executive in political or factional influence. I do not mean by this to reflect in any way upon Controller James P. Kerr, whom I respect. But as Mayor I would welcome a rigid check on my administration to make certain that no official in it oversteps the bounds.

Civil Service Pledge

As Mayor, I would condemn the existing practice of coercing the payroll into contributing to political campaigns and I would take away the Coyne yoke by setting up a real civil service, dependent on merit and not on the will of ward chairmen.

My platform is before the people. It is pleasing to them but repugnant to Coyne and his high associates. They know I will carry it into effect in every detail—and I will. They do not know how to meet my candidacy and resort to every trick, and they are now properly joined by the supporters of McArdle.

To my pledges of constructive reorganization of government and destruction of the Coyne machine, both the Coyne and McArdle gangs offer an eleventh-hour mudslinging attack that I now know will not seriously affect the minds of fair-minded people, except to insult their intelligence. The fact that they depend on a slander placed in the mouths of two characters supporting the Herron administration is proof of the weakness of their defense.

I stand firmly on my platform as a candidate. It offers the only constructive issues of this campaign. Both branches of the Coyne-Mellon combination, the city administration and the Citizens' League, are fighting me and I am fighting them. That should be enough to elect me.

M'GOVERN, SPENDING IN SEPTEMBER, SIGNING PLEDGE

COUNTY COMISSIONER C. C. M'GOVERN SIGNING AN NRA CONSUMERS' PLEDGE FOR MISS LOUISE ESTERBERG

HOUSE TO HOUSE NRA CANVASS STRESSED

3 Major Stations Here To Present 'Blue Eagle' Talks

Seven "four-minute" speakers for the women's auxiliary, NRA, will voice their support of the Sun-Telegraph's "Buy in September and Buy American" campaign this week in radio broadcasts. These women are urging support of the NRA movement by buying now, in conjunction with the house-to-house consumers' pledge canvass being conducted under the chairmanship of Mrs. Oliver J. Haller.

Miss Helen Grimes, chairman of the speakers committee, has announced the following radio speakers:

Mrs. Charles Minnetti, 3:45 p. m., KDKA, Wednesday; Mrs. S. F. Molinari, 10 p. m., WJAS, Thursday; Mrs. P. M. Menlowe, 6:40 p. m., WCAE, Thursday; Mrs. William McClay Hall, 6:05 p. m., Friday, KDKA; Miss Beartice Meitlein, 1:30 p. m., Friday, WJAS; Mrs. John T. Anderson, 8:45 p. m., Saturday, WJAS, and Mrs. C. W. Whitzell, 6:40 p. m., Saturday, WCAE.

MORE BACK MOVE

Leaders in the field of finance and industry today added thier names to the scores of civic and business spokesmen who indorsed the "Spend in September" drive.

Frank Frost, president of the Superior Steel Corporation:

"The Superior Steel Corporation has signed the code of fair practice for the steel industry which was approved by the President on August 19, and it is our intention to adhere strictly to all of the provisions of this code.

"While there is a seasonable slump in the steel business at the present time, we have the feeling that as soon as the code becomes operative in all of the industries of the country, considerable buying movement will take place.

"The 'Buy in September' movement will obviously diminish stocks and lower inventories so that it will be necessary before the first of the year to replenish these stocks, which in itself should make a considerable increase in business."

PRAISE MOVEMENT

F. F. Brooks, president of the First National Bank:

"I am for the 'Buy in September' movement 100 per cent. We must be for it and I believe that the people should back it just as much as they possibly can. By spending now the people can show their real patriotism and help to get the wheels of industry turning."

A. C. Lehman, president of the Blaw-Knox Company:

"I think the people should stand by the President and back the movement from the point of patriotism. Of course they should not be extravagant, but they can help tremendously by purchasing a few of the things that they have needed for a long time. It is wise to buy now when prices are lower."

P. O. Griffiths, vice president and general sales manager of the American Tar Products Company:

"We had an NRA parade in Sewickley the other night. Things like that, I think, accomplish something and have a psychological effect. You can say that I'm in favor of the movement."

Women Drop Plan For McNair Dinner

An informal dinner of Democratic women in the interests of the ticket headed by William N. McNair, for mayor, has been cancelled, Mrs. J. Wood Clark, vice chairman of the Democratic County Committee, announced today.

The dinner, scheduled for Wednesday evening in the William Penn Hotel, was called off because of the extreme pressure of other campaign business, Mrs. Clark explained.

Ambridge Burgess Indicted in Fraud

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 13.—Burgess P. J. Caul, of Ambridge, was indicted by the grand jury yesterday on a charge of fraudulent conversion in the alleged misuse of $500 of borough funds.

Forest Deserter Loses Probation

William M. Gibson, 25, of Johnstown, was sentenced yesterday to serve a year and a day in a federal penitentiary, after an 18-month probation imposed March 29, when he pleaded guilty to transportation of a stolen automobile, was revoked in Federal Court.

The court was told that while on probation Gibson deserted a Citizens' Conservation Camp at Hick Run and, in Johnstown, obtained a suit of clothes by false pretense.

Plea in Slaying Of Son Awaited

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 13.—It was indicated today that Robert J. Simington, 47, Rochester, unemployed railroad dispatcher, on Monday would enter a plea to the murder of his son, Burton, 13.

Simington was indicted yesterday for the slaying of the youth by compelling him to inhale chloroform under the pretense he was suffering from a cold. He told police, after surrendering, that he had killed the boy because he didn't have a chance in this world.

City Firemen Brave Gas in School Drill

The Pittsburgh Fire Department has the only firemen's school equipped with the "flowmeter," an apparatus which enables firemen to drill in gas masks in an atmosphere containing from 1 to 1½ per cent ammonia.

In gas-filled chambers in Neville street, in the rear of No. 14 Engine Company, firemen go through their regular drill to accustom them to work with gas masks.

600 CASES FACE NRA MEDIATORS

More than 600 complaints of alleged NRA violations will be piled up when the Pittsburgh mediation board will go into action next week. Appointment of the board of nine members under the local NRA committee is complete except for the last representative for the employers' section, it was announced today by Frank C. Harper, secretary of the committee.

The board will be composed of representatives of labor, employers and consumers.

Labor disputes arising from application of NRA codes will be brought before the board for mediation.

United Veterans Schedule Meetings

The United American Veterans' Association has announced the following meetings for today:

Spring Hill School, Damas street; McNaugher School, Maple and Charles streets; Oliver High School, Brighton road and Island avenue; Penn School, Thirty-third and Hancock streets; Connelley Trade School, Bedford avenue, and Madison School, Milwaukee and Orion streets.

Dr. Marino Repeats McGregor Charges

Dr. Vincent L. Marino, Democratic candidate for Coroner, said last night that a reply from Coroner William J. McGregor to alleged charges of irregularity in the conduct of his office was long overdue.

Speaking in Preston School, Stowe Township, Marino asked why McGregor had not answered, and repeated many of his former charges in question form.

Alpern to Speak At Four Meetings

Louis Alpern, campaigning for the Republican nomination for Jury Commissioner, will speak tonight at a meeting at the North Side Carnegie Library, Federal and Ohio streets; at Langley High School, Hutton avenue; at Schaeffer School, Stratmore avenue, and at the Watt Street School, Fifth Ward.

SEAL WORKERS MAP CAMPAIGN

Methods of managing the sale of Christmas Seals were discussed at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Tuberculosis League in the William Penn Hotel today. Needs of the work were told by John F. Casey, president of the league, and chairman of the seal sale in Pittsburgh.

Approximately $100,000 a year must be ealized from Allegheny County, it is said. Last year the receipts dropped to $59,000. During the year the league expended about $250,000.

Workers were told today that the increase in tuberculosis is such as to cause alarm.

Coroner Candidate Guest at Corn Roast

Democrats of the Fifth Ward plan to honor Joseph A. Hook, Jr., candidate for Coroner, with a corn roast and field meet on Bedford avenue, near the Greenlee ball park, Saturday evening. The committee in charge of the meeting, which will be open to all candidates, is made up of Paul McCormick, chairman; John Burns, general committee, and Mrs. Laverne Donnelly, chairlady.

VOTING MACHINE OPERATION DESCRIBED

Voter May Write Candidate's Name On Ballot

(Editor's Note—This concludes a series of three articles detauing step-by-step the necessary procedure for each individual voter using the voting machines.)

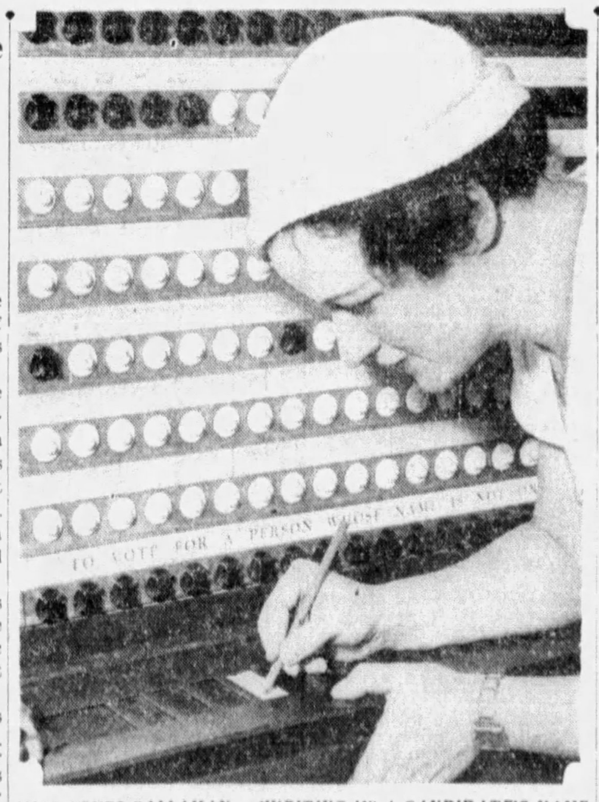
The voting machine provides the same advantage to a voter of writing in a candidate's name as does the ordinary paper ballot.

Few names of candidates are listed in the minor political parties. However, to vote on such party tickets at next Tuesday's primary election, the voter must be registered under that party. Yet the advantage of writing in a candidate's name is not restricted to these parties.

If a voter, for example, wants to vote for a person either on the Republican or the Democratic ticket but whose name does not appear, this also is possible.

A special row of buttons appears at the bottom of the machine. The voter checks the machine for the office for which a candidate's name is to be written. The officers are listed at the top of the machine. Following the buttons down the board in that section given to the particular office, the voter turns a button on the bottom row.

Directly beneath this row are glass-covered sections. The turning of the button causes a glass partition to slide aside and the voter has a paper ballot upon which to write the name. This example is illustrated in today's photograph.



MISS AGNES CALLAHAN . . 'WRITING IN' A CANDIDATE'S NAME

Miss Callahan demonstrating how the voter can cast a vote for a candidate whose name does not appear on the ballot—a vote machine in this case—by writing his name on paper provided by a twist of a button in the bottom row. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Booths Must Be Used For Aldermanic Ballots

When the voter has made the final selection on the machine, the same button on the extreme left corner, which was used to close the curtains, is to be pressed. This opens the curtains and simultaneousuluy casts the vote selections just made. The machine is then cleared for the next voter.

However, the voter's duties have not been completed. At the time of qualifying with the election board, the voter will receive a paper ballot. Candidates for offices of Jury Commissioner and Alderman will appear on these ballots. The voter, upon leaving the machine, will precede to a voting booth, make selections for these two offices and drop the ballot in a ballot box as heretofore.

Election boards are being instructed to have the voter use a machine ballot first and then proceed to a voting booth. The matter of permitting assistance to a voter taking affivadit he cannot read, or through physical handicap cannot operate the machine, is left to the election board's discretion. If the board knows assistance is not necessary, it can be refused.

NRA Victory Day Parade Set for Friday Night

Final plans and the route of Pittsburgh's NRA Victory Day parade Friday night were announced today at headquarters of the NRA committee.

More than 8,000 marchers will participate, with 25 floats and between 35 and 40 musical organizations, including veterans' drum and bugle corps, and several military units.

The parade will start at 8 p. m. from the Fifth Avenue High School, follow Fifth avenue to Liberty, to Sixth street, across Sixth street bridge to Stockton avenue, and past the reviewing stand at Ridge and Stockton avenues.

All participating organizations will be in formation at 7:30 p. m. Police and military units will form in Fifth avenue, beginning at Washington street; Boy Scouts in Washington between Fifth and Wiley avenues; American Legion in Congress street; Veterans of Foreign Wars in Elm street. Labor organizations will line up in Dinwiddie street.

The Citizens Conservation Corps will gather in Hooper street.

More than 25 department stores and large industrial organizations have assured the parade leaders they will be represented with floats depicting the flight of the Blue Eagle.

All groups intending to join in the parade are requested to secure approval and entry cards from NRA headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce before 5 p. m. Thursday.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The second subscription play of the series of six that will be presented under the auspices of the American Theater Society in the Nixon, the offices of which are in the Nixon Building, will be, like the first, a Theater Guild production. This will be Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langner's adaptation of Moliere's "The School for Husbands." It will have music, arranged by Edmond Rickett, and settings designed by Lee Simonson. The first play of the series, Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," as has been announced, will feature George M. Cohan, and will open the Pittsburgh legitimate season September 25. The four other subscription plays will include another from the Guild and three from other well known producers.

Masquerades Show Stars At Play

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13.—Sleepy-eyed Hollywood is rehashing the second swell party in two weeks, the Donald Ogden Stewart 10 o'clock-till-dawn soiree for Joan Payson.

It was too confusing. Everybody was supposed to come dressed as favorite movie star and, in some cases, one guess was as good as another.

The unmistakables were lead off by Sid Grauman, who was practically perfect in wig and skirts as May Robson; Edmund Lowe, as Lionel Barrymore's Kringelein; Florence Eldridge, as Jackie Cooper in "Skippy"; Mrs. Dick Rogers as Dorothea Wieck in "Maedchen in Uniform"; George Hearst, as Oliver Hardy, and Adrian as Chic Sale. And what a howl when Adrian made his entrance, hidden, all but his feet, by a little pasteboard house with the familiar crescent-shaped openings!

Mr. Lowe

You'd have roared, too, to see diminutive Larry Hart come in as Tom Mix, leading a Shetland pony. Bob Benchley's impudence took them off their feet. He came as Hitler. Gene Markey, dressed as Joan Bennett, was another clever idea. And Bill Powell's Svengali makeup was so good that few recognized him.

As for the gossips, they duly noted that the Countess Di Frasso was with Cary Grant and that Gloria Stuart came with George Oppenheimer.

Real Bulls and Bears Film Extras

Film "extras" worth more than $500,000,000 were used in scenes filmed in Chicago for the Charles R. Rogers-Paramount production, "Golden Harvest." Desirous of having the wheat pit scenes show the traders as they actually are, officials of the Chicago Board of Trade requested its members to report for screen work in the pit on Sunday. Although their usual strenuous day is only five hours long, they worked before the cameras from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. for Director Ralph Murphy.

The millionaires were so exuberent in their screen acting, Murphy reports, that they wouldn't stop their fictitious trading when the scenes were completed, but continued to amuse themselves by bidding wheat up to $3 a bushel.

Premiere

Kay Francis is co-starred with Edward G. Robinson in "I Loved a Woman," romantic photoplay that will have its premiere Friday in the Stanley Theater.

Acts to Keep In Trim

There have been many tragic stories written about motion picture stars whose marriages were ruined by their devotion to a screen, but this is a yarn about a retired actress who returned to work in order to preserve her happy home life.

The heroine is Lillian Roth, who achieved prominence with her portrayal of Huguette in "The Vagabond King" and her rendition of "Sing You Sinners" in "Honey." Miss Roth has been given a leading role of "Take a Chance," the musical film that Laurence Schwab, in association with Rowland and Brice, is producing for Paramount release, on Long Island.

Lillian quit professional life "for good" last year after her marriage to Judge Shalleck, of New York. She started out to play her hardest role, that of a young society matron, but the continual round of bridge parties, teas and dinners soon palled.

"In the first place I found my mind going stale," she explains. "Then I gained eight pounds. I remembered how such actresses as Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford and Jane Cowl seem to retain their beauty indefinitely by means of hard work and I decided that I loved my husband too much to become dowdy.

"I prevailed upon him to let me return to the films and trained like a boxer to get back to 120. I plan to make three pictures a year and to vary my roles as much as possible in the future, keeping away from rowdy comic types and concentrating on dramatic work such as I did in 'The Vagabond King.'"

Dramatic

Judith Allen has a principal role in "This Day and Age," dramatic picture that will be seen in Penn, beginning Friday.

John Barrymore Signs For "Counsellor"

John Barrymore will play the stellar role in the film version of "Counsellor at Law." This production, which has just been newly fitted with a movie adaptation by its author, Elmer Rice, is in production by Universal. Four members of the stage cast of this play who will be in the picture are Clara Langsner, Malka Kornstein, Angela Jacobs and Elmer Brown.

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT -:- Owen D. Young General Jonson -:- RETURNS TO RADIO

Town Crier, NRA Talks On Air

The Town Crier, in the person of Alexander Woollcott, New York journalist and playwright, makes his bow to the Columbia-WJAS audience in the first of a new series of Wednesday-and-Friday broadcasts tonight at 10:30.

No one—not even Woollcott himself—knows just what the Town Crier will confide to the listeners. General gossip of Gotham and interesting anecdotes seem to be on the bill. Whatever he has to say, it will be entertaining.

"Footlights and Shadows," (stage and screen reviews), is a new program to be heard regularly over WWSW, beginning tonight at 7:30.

Walter Framer, local theater trotter heads the programs as a backstage reporter, broadcasting direct from various downtown show houses. During the series he will bring visiting stage stars to the backstage microphone.

NRA Benefits

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the National Recovery Act, is heard over WCAE at 9:30, speaking at the NRA Day dinner of the Merchants' Association in New York.

Owen D. Young, one of the nation's business leaders, discusses "Wages and Savings Under NRA," over KDKA at 9:15. In his 15-minute discussion Mr. Young explains the benefits that wage earners and consumers should derive from the National Recovery plan.

Don Bestor and his orchestra, playing on a New York hotel roof, inaugurate a new series of sustaining broadcasts over the NBC-WCAE Red Chain tonight at 11:30, in addition to his commercial program over the Blue network Friday nights.

"Goodby Love," a song you are likely to hear as often as "Lazy Bones," is introduced over the air tonight during Fred Waring's program, a regular 10 o'clock Wednesday night treat on Columbia-WJAS.

Lost Chord

"The Lost Chord," ageless musical composition, is used as a theme by Judge Michael A. Musmanno in tracing the history of government through the ages tonight, over WCAE at 11. A pipe organ rendition of the famous melody will accompany Judge Musmanno's discourse.

Here's bad news for doctors. It's apple picking time down in the Shenandoah Valley, and the Corn Cob Pipe Club is celebrating tonight with an apple-eating contest. If that doesn't keep the physician away, the club quartet advises, "There's Nothing Like Ale When You're Ailing." The program is a WCAE feature at 10.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Elbert R. Moses discusses the beloved "Mark Twain" during his "Great Americans" series at 6.

Raymond D. Evans, former United States Attorney, will talk about "The Soldier's Side of It" in a special talk at 7.

Dr. Springer is scheduled to entertain listeners with some verbal fireworks at 8:45.

PRESSED STEEL RULING HELD UP

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson reserved decision on a petition by receivers of the Pressed Steel Car Company for authority to issue $1,000,000 worth of receivers' certificates, after a hearing yesterday.

Counsel for holders of approximately $500,000 worth of the company's stock opposed the petition. They were represented by several New York attorneys.

Attorney George D. Wick, one of the receivers, testified to improvement in the company's financial condition, but said capital was needed in contemplation of improved business in the car building industry.

Attorney Maynard Teall, counsel for the receivers, said the company has fixed assets of $18,000,000. A telegram from Lawrence C. Phipps, of Colorado, formerly of Pittsburgh, a large stockholder, said he was in favor of the petition.

Radio Stars to Alternate In Autumn Programs

By AIRCASTER

Whether it is pressure of competition or a philanthropic desire to please the air customers, is open to question, but it is interesting to discover that the cigaret firm which made Jack Pearl famous, and vice-versa, is not going to follow its original plan of having only one half-hour broadcast a week.

The newest plot is to have three half-hours a week, if NBC can clear the time. Into one of these will step Jack Pearl, as the Baron; into another, if my ears don't deceive me, will materialize the gay Mae West, and into the third—well, nobody has been able thus far to decide. The musical backgrounds, so reliable informants insist, will be provided by Al Goodman and his orchestra.

Smart Cohan

As has become rather obvious, George M. Cohan has proved himself the possessor of a higher degree of showmanship than most of the artists borrowed from the stage. In his long career, he seems to have hit upon a swell theory. It is this: Don't wear out your welcome, and the audience won't.

That is the reason behind his intention of fading out temporarily after next Sunday night's broadcast. Fred Stone will return for a brief spell, and then Cohan will resume, later to give way to Will Rogers.

"Grand Hotel" is the title which will cover a new series of dramatics on NBC-KDKA Sundays, beginning October 1. It will replace "The First Nighter" which transfers to a larger network.

"Grand Hotel" by the way, will not, in aerial form, have any relation to Vicki Baum's play. One is told that the series will be made up of a bunch of original half-hour dramas. But "Grand Hotel" is a grand title, anyhow.

Russ Reforms

Russ Columbo will prove to the customers that a crooner can reform, when he broadcast from Hollywood September 18, via NBC, as a full-fledged baritone. . .

Rudy Vallee won't go to Hollywood and the movies because his sponsors think it impossible to recruit satisfactory variety shows in that town. . . .

The Program featuring Conrad Thibault and cigarets will eliminate two of its three broadcasts a week. But Thibault will be heard on a couple of new commercials shortly.

'Poison Pen' Drama On WLW, WFBG

One of the nation's most powerful radio stations, WLW, Cincinnati, broadcasts "The Poison Pen" tonight at 7:45 eastern standard time.

The same thrilling dramatization, adapted from a story in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is heard over WFBG, Altoona, Thursday afternoon at 3.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Many of the traveling trotters have inquired about boat rides to Cuba.

Havana is still a mecca for the pleasure-bound. The travel department of a leading downtown bank reports that steamship companies are maintaining their service as usual. In some cases the shore sightseeing excursions have been somewhat curtailed.

Frank Ponner couldn't wait for Ripley to answer the problem of the chicken and a half. He doped out the solution and then adds he likes mathematical offerings. Let's see if we can't dig up a problem that will stump the Homestead arithmetical wizard?

Did you hear what happened in a department store the other day? If it were not for an observing globetrotter we might have missed this shopping episode.

There was a sale of house dresses. The basement was jammed with a multitude of women anxious to take advantage of the store's low price for that day.

During the heat of the buying excitement one woman, a little heavier than most of her sister bargainers, arriving late and evidently in a hurry, pushed herself down front to capture some of the fast disappearing garments.

She chose two or three that appealed to her eye. To insure their fit she elbowed herself enough room to slap them on. A quick look into the mirror was enough to convince her that the house dresses were too small and in a display of emotion she reached down, grabbed the hem of her skirt, yanked it over her head, rolled it up in a ball and hurled it over the crowd onto the counter.

Then a gasp and a scream. The floor walker breathlessly hastened to her side. She shrieked at him:

"Look at me!"

To which he replied:

"Madam, everybody in the store is looking at you."

Trained Seals Talk Football

The Trained Seals of the Sun-Telegraph sports department inaugurate the 1933 football season over WCAE tonight at 7.

The Junior Patrol adventurers and entertainers broadcast from the WCAE studios at 1:45.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, gives the news of the day over WCAE-WJAS at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15, 2:15 and 6:30 p. m.

Puts a full-automatic NATURAL GAS conversion burner in your home on the new

RENT-A-BURNER PLAN

You've always wanted to heat with natural gas . . . you've wanted to even more, since the new gas rates cut fuel costs up to 25%. But perhaps you were renting a house with a coal fired boiler, and so hesitated to buy a conversion burner. Or perhaps, even though you own your home, you did not feel like making the necessary equipment investment. And so you have kept on in the old way, shoveling dirty fuel all winter, putting up with all the discomfort and shortcomings of heating by hand.

HOW YOU CAN CHANGE

Now—through the new Rent-A-Burner Plan—you can convert your present coal-fired steam or hot water boiler, or hot air furnace, to burn natural gas without one cent of equipment investment. We will furnish a first quality, safe, and efficient Natural Gas Conversion burner, complete with thermostat, motor control and safety pilot.

We will pay for its installation, by an accredited heating man, in your boiler or furnace.

We will service and repair the burner unit, when required.

And for all this, you are not asked to make one single cent of investment. The only equipment expense to you is a monthly rental of $1.85—with July and August free. Special facilities for servicing the specific burner furnished have so far been established only in urban areas of Allegheny County. For the present, therefore, we prefer to confine this offer to customers located in such districts.

If you are a customer of The Peoples Natural Gas Company, and live in such a district, one of our engineers will gladly make a heating survey of your home, submit an estimate of the cost of a winter's heating, and explain all about the Rent-A-Burner plan—without obligation. Telephone Grant 5100—call at the Pittsburgh, Wilkinsburg, Turtle Creek or Glenshaw offices—or mail the coupon.

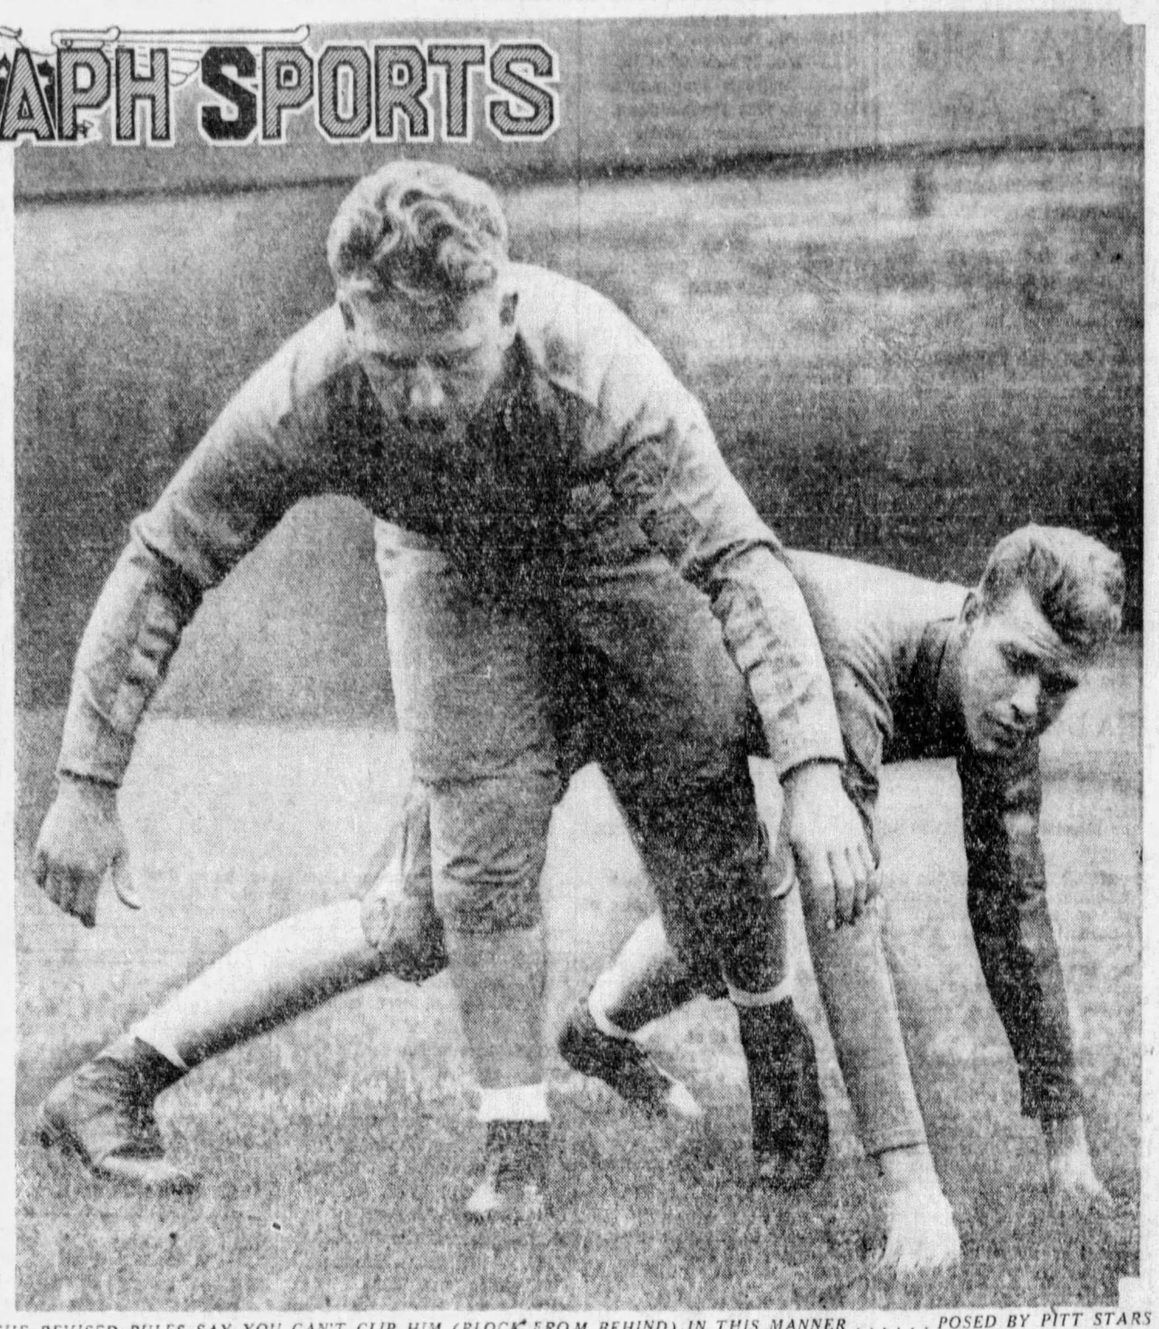
Legal Block And Illegal Clipping

PIRATES BUY LAVAGETTO, COAST SLUGGER

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS



IT'S PERFECTLY OKAY TO BLOCK OUT AN OPPOSING PLAYER WHO DOES NOT HAVE THE BALL IN THIS MANNER, BUT— THE REVISED RULES SAY YOU CAN'T CLIP HIM (BLOCK FROM BEHIND) IN THIS MANNER . . . . . POSED BY PITT STARS

One of the main changes in the football rules for this fall is the broadening of the anti-clipping rule to include blocking or diving into the back of a player not carrying the ball or throwing or dropping the body across the back of the leg or legs below the knees of such a player. The aim is to reduce the danger of injury. Above George Shotwell and Nick Kliskey, Pitt centers, are showing the difference between legal blocking (at the left) and the illegal blocking or clipping. Shotwell is doing the blocking and clipping. The husky gent is Kliskey. The only other important change in the rules brings the ball 10 yards in from the sideline when it is declared dead within that area. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures taken during Pitt workout.

SERIOUS SETBACK FOR TERRYS UNLIKELY

THE GIANTS ARE facing the last of the three big barriers that stood between them and the National League pennant when they completed their final long stay at their own grounds and went out to finish the fight on the road. First the Braves failed utterly to halt them, getting only one victory and a tie out of six games in Boston. Next the Pirates took three out of five games from the Terrymen at Forbes Field, but failed to change the complexion of the race. Now it's up to Charley Grimm and his Cubs to make the most of the final big opportunity to keep the New Yorkers from walking in for the flag. The four-day series of six games in Chicago, with a doubleheader this afternoon, will determine whether the remainder of the race is to be a fight or a romp.

Charley Grimm

The chance that the big lead of the Giants will be reduced to a serious extent is not very promising. The contract that confronted the Cubs today was that they would have to clean up the entire series to put New York in danger. One victory in the six games would leave the Giants still three and a half games to the good, all but half a game of that margin being the important "lost" column. Two out of six and the race would be practically over.

GIANTS BEATEN IN LAST FIVE THERE

THE MAIN HOPE of the Cubs is their ability to win on their own grounds, where they had captured 50 out of 66 games up to today, including their last five meetings there with the Giants, in four of which Blondy Ryan was out of the New York lineup. But that the Bruins can keep that up in this series, with the Terrys fighting for from $4,000 to $5,000 apiece in world series money, seems very improbable, even allowing for baseball's famed uncertainty. There's a guy named Hubbell who usually stops any slides before they become serious.

The pitching records in Giant-Cub competition for the season up to today were as follows: Giants—Parmalee, won two and lost none; Schumacher, won three and lost two; Hubbell, won two and lost one; Fitzsimmons, won two and lost two; Clark and Bell, each lost one. Cubs—Bush and Tinning, each won two and lost one; Warneke, won two and lost two; Root, won one and lost one; Malone, lost three, and Grimes, no longer with the club, lost one.

DEATH RECALLS NAMING OF FAMOUS TEAM

According to some of the veteran baseball fans of Homestead, it was in honor of Bill Gray, former pitcher who died recently, that one of the most famous Negro clubs this country has known was named. That club is the Homestead Grays. The question has been brought up frequently, and never definitely settled, as to just how or why the Grays came to be so known. Some of the men long connected with the club have said the founders selected the title merely in accordance with the old custom of naming ball teams for colors and adopting the uniforms to suit.

But a number of Homestead residents relate that back about 1912, the late Bill Gray, having retired from professional pitching to become tax collector of Homestead, was approached during a political campaign by several Negro boys of the borough for assistance in the organization of a ball team. Gray, it is said, donated uniforms and equipment, and to show their appreciation the boys voted to name their club the Homestead Grays in his honor. The name stuck and the club survived

PITT PANTHERS FACE BRIGHT OUTLOOK

By JESS CARVER

Having already played one game this year (that crack goes no matter when this article appears in the prints), it is impossible for Pitt's Golden Panthers to go prowling through another year unbeaten, but the Pitts may be counted upon to cut quite a figure during the coming campaign.

Tiger Walton

The Panthers started off this grand old year by losing a football game to Southern California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. That game, and defeat, really belonged to 1932, in sort of a second-cousinish way, but if the boys come through their fall schedule unbeaten, and you can find a sucker, you can win dough betting on the catch.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

The Panther prospects for 1933 are brighter than they were at this time a year ago. The Pitt team that went to Camp Hamilton in '32 didn't figure (or expect) to wind up unbeaten. The Pitt team that is in training here in Pittsburgh this year may not figure to, either, but the chances are a sight more impressive than they were a year back.

Pitt faces a somewhat lighter, but still representative schedule; has a generally more experienced squad; may be counted upon to be faster and has picked up added heft. Four stars of '32 have passed along, Heller, Tormey, Cuba and Dailey, and their places will be difficult to fill, but this canny Sutherland has a knack of coming up with noteworthy replacements. He may not find a man to play Heller's position as Heller played it, but he's a good bet to fill those spots in the line right creditably.

Sutherland, a great line engineer, finds at hand the wherewithal for one of the forward walls of which he is famous. He has five outstanding tackles in Tiger Walton, Bob Hoel, John Love, Jack Meredith and Stan Olejniesak; five sturdy guards in Hartwig, Onder, Detzel, Ormiston and Kutz; two good men for center in Shotwell and Kilskey and two A-1 ends in Skladany, an all-Eastern selection last year, and EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: U. S. PRESIDENT MACHADO—Cuban presidents may not leave the country during their term. Therefore, when Machado contemplated a trip to the United States, in 1927, he procured a special dispensation from the Cuban Congress. The tenor of this dispensation was that the northern frontier of Cuba had been extended to include the United States, so that Machado, in traveling to Washington and to New York, always would remain on Cuban soil. Machado arrived at Key West, Fla., on April 20, 1927, carrying with him a Cuban flag and the curious congressional dispensation. With the United States included in the Cuban territory, it is easy to see that Machado was President of the United States.

OAKLAND CLUB PLAYER SOLD TO BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The purchase of Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto, brilliant boy second-baseman of the Oakland Club, of the Pacific Coast League, was announced this morning by Pirate President William E. Benswanger. The purchase price was not divulged by Benswanger although the Bucco prexy stated that Oakland had been given a generous sum together with one player to be agreed upon between now and next spring.

The Pittsburgh club had to outbid the Chicago Cubs to land Lavagetto. It develops that much of Scout Bill Hinchman's long period in the Coast League was devoted to the study of Lavagetto, who made a big impression as he played against the Pirates last March. Coach Clarence Rowland, of the Cubs, also camped long on the trail of the rookie, but the

GOODMAN DEFEATED IN NATIONAL AMATEUR

VETERAN EGAN ELIMINATES OPEN CHAMP

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, the national open titleholder and outstanding favorite, was eliminated today by H. Chandler Egan, of Del Monte, Cal., amateur champion nearly 30 years ago, in the first round of the United States amateur golf tournament.

Egan won by 2 up in an 18-hole match.

Egan, 49 years old and holder of the crown back in 1904 and 1905 while a student at Harvard University, blasted Goodman out of the tournament with a sensational sub-par finish. The veteran negotiated the last nine holes in 33, two under par, and carded a 70, one under perfect figures, for the complete round.

Goodman shot fine golf most of the way, with a 72, but cracked on the seventeenth and lost the eighteenth to Egan's birdie 3 as the former titleholder contributed a dazzling climax to the upset. The cards:

Goodman out	545	325	444—26
Egan in	443	434	353—33—70
Goodman in	443	444	364—36—72

FISCHER ADVANCES

Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, holder of the new qualifying record for the event with 141, moved into the second round by whipping Gene Homans, Engelwood, N. J., star 3 and 2.

C. Ross Somerville, of Canada, the defending champion, was locked in a great battle with Chick Evans, Chicago veteran. They were all square after 15 holes.

Results of first round matches:

Willie Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., defeated Will Gunn, Jr., Philadelphia, 2 up.

W. Lawson Little, Jr., San Francisco, defeated Denmar Miller, Des Mines, 4 and 3.

H. Chandler Egan, Del Monte, Cal., defeated John Goodman, Omaha, 2 up.

WESTLAND LEADS

Nine-hole standings in other matches: Jack Westland, Chicago, 3 up on Ben Cowdery, Omaha; Paul Anderson, Summit, N. J., 1 up on Eddie Held, New York; William R. Long, Jr., Austin, Tex., 3 up on William O. Blaney, Boston; Gus Moreland, Dallas, 3 up on Jim Milward, Madison, Wis.; George T. Dunlap, Jr., New York, 5 up on W. B. McCullough, Philadelphia; Ernie Caldwell, Baltimore, 2 up against Hunter Hicks, Chicago; Lawson Little, Jr., San Francisco, 4 up on Denmar Miller, Des Moines; Pat Sawyer, Minneapolis, and Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., Cleveland, all square.

LOCAL ENTRANTS FAIL

Twelve entrants who tied at 150 in the qualifying test yesterday played off for eight match play berths this morning. Thompson, Egan, Gunn, McCarthy, Dunlap, Evans, Marston and Held made the grade, as Ira Couch, Chicago; Chris Brinke, Philadelphia; R. M. Grant, Hartford, Conn., and Spencer Overton, Baltimore, failed.

The four Pittsburgh district representatives in the tourney failed to qualify. Their 36-hole scores were: Wilson Marks, Jr., 153; Fred Brand, Jr., 156; Joe Wells, 157, and H. V. Blaxter, 159.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Well, folks, get out the orange juice, warm up the gruel and get the milk formula all set, because when that thar world series gets a-going there'll be a couple of infant managers running things. Imagine two babies, serving their freshman year as pilots, going out and spearing the grand old rag in each league. It's like Little Lord Fauntleroy being insulted by Carnera and bopping Primo on the nose and into the accident ward.

Joe Cronin, our juvenile chief execk, is only 26 years old. That means when Uncle Nick was pitching for the White Sox, Josephus was sucking his toes, catching colic and wearing triangular trousers.

Bill Terry, of the Giants, isn't quite so adolescent, but he never had a chance to vote for Andrew Jackson for President like I did, either. But folks, is our Washington club hot with a boy leader! Just remember 1924, when Bucky Harris was just out of short pants and managed us into a world championship—and then don't bet anything but mahogany nickels on the National League entry.

Plop!

The thud of cleated toe against the pigskin, and another football season is under way.

The Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph officially open the new campaign tonight with a half-hour radio program over WCAE beginning at 7 o'clock.

The program is dedicated to the team of Duquesne University, which leads the nation in prying off the lid, against Waynesburg College, Tri-State Conference champion, at Forbes Field Friday night.

Coaches Elmer Layden and Joe Bach, Capt. Al Krankota and Publicity Director George Kelly participate, with Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, and Leland Becraft, WCAE announcer, directing.

Theme background and a specialty piano number will be offered by the "Twenty Flashing Fingers," the Misses Lillian Zitzman and Ruth Ley, with Eddie Barry in whistling accompaniment, while Joseph Pentek, local singer, will introduce Duquesne's new Drinking Song, a toast to the Sons of Duquesne, written by the Rev. Thomas J. Quigley, of Duquesne.

PIRATES BUY COAST STAR

Harry, 18, is typical of the young performers who come from the coast. He is a strong reminder of Tony Lazzeri, another star of that region. Lavagetto's home is in Santa Rosa, a suburb of San Francisco. He is within a half inch of six feet in height, weighs 168 pounds, and will not be 19 until December.

Cookie has played in 120 odd games for Oakland this season. He is batting around .315 and has driven in 78 runs. Among his 139 hits are 20 doubles, seven triples and six homers. The Oakland park on which he plays most of his games is one of the largest in the Coast League. He has stolen 17 bases.

LOOMS AS REGULAR

Commenting on the purchase, Benswanger said:

"On account of Lavagetto's extreme youth we had concluded he needed another year, but Clarence Rowland, who tried to land him for the Cubs, informed me that Harry was ready and would be a regular on the Pittsburgh infield next year. He will report to us in the spring."

A very small crowd saw two mound classics yesterday as the Buccos twice blanked the Dodgers in a doubleheader. Heinie Meine and Waite Hoyt were the pitching heroes of the afternoon, Heinie winning the opener, 1-0, and Hoyt copping the afterpiece, 2-0.

Meine yielded only five hits and the veteran scored the winning run in the ninth on his single, a one-base blow by L. Waner, Lindstrom's sacrifice, an intentional pass to P. Waner, and Traynor's single. Hollis Thurston gave Heinie a real contest all the way.

Hoyt recorded the two-hundredth victory of his major career as he whitewashed the foe in the nightcap. Waite was so clever he did not allow a batter to reach third and he permitted only four hits.

Catcher Tommy Padden, just back from Albany of the International League received Hoyt in the second encounter.

Miss Betty Abernethy, of Oakmont; Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, of Allegheny, and Mrs. J. Raymond Price, of Oakmont, entered the semi-final round of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania tournament at the Allegheny Country Club today as a result of victories scored in the quarter-final matches this morning.

Miss Abernethy defeated Mrs. Louis K. Friedman, of the Westmoreland Country Club, 5 and 4; Mrs. Rose eliminated Mrs. Frank Campbell, Stanton Heights, 3 and 2, while Mrs. Price defeated Mrs. C. I. Wendt, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, 1 up.

In the fourth quarter-final match, Miss Mary Kuhn, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, defeated Mrs. H. W. Christie, of Butler, 1 up.

In the semi-finals tomorrow, Mrs. Rose plays Miss Kuhn, while Miss Abernethy will clash with Mrs. Price. The cards:

Deal for Giants To Go Through, Said

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(INS.)—Despite vigorous denial on the part of some of the principals involved, the International News Service was assured by an authoritative source today that its story of yesterday telling of the sale of Charles A. Stoneham's majority interest in the New York Giants baseball club is correct.

It is expected that formal announcement of the sale will be withheld until after the world series, when former Mayor James J. Walker will be ready to return from Europe to assume the presidency of the club.

Stoneham denies that he even contemplated a sale, although it is well known that papers have been drawn up several times in the last two years.

Eddie Zivic

Fritzie Zivic

From the sublime to the ridiculous, or the Fistic Follies of 1933. . . . That is the story of the local boxing situation. . . . Several weeks ago we drew the largest crowd that ever witnessed a boxing show in Pittsburgh, for the Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee battle, with a $21,000 gate. . . . And now we don't have a single club operating. . . . The outdoor season has died a horrible death and no indoor spot is ready to jump into the breach. . . . Motor Square Garden and the Arena, which held forth last winter, both are unable to announce plans.

Business being conspicuous by its absence in a fistic way, two of the city's finest prospects are pulling up stakes tomorrow and hieing themselves away for sunny (or at least they tell us it's sunny) California . . . They are Eddie and Fritzie Zivic, brother lightweights, and they will be accompanied by their manager, Luke Carney . . . The trip will be made in Eddie's gas chariot, with stops en route at Chicago and elsewhere . . . They have offers for bouts in Houston, Tex., but likely will not hit the Southern route until they begin the homeward trek.

The Zivics' immediate destination is Los Angeles, where they are sure of an opportunity, for Manager Carney has some good connections there which may pave the way for big things for them . . . Both have a lot of ability and seemingly only lack of work has kept them from going ahead here . . . The local fans will be pulling for them to make good.

The Pittsburgh Pro footballers will split their squad to play exhibition games at Uniontown at 5 p. m., Friday, and at Tarentum at 8:30 Saturday . . . The former Carnegie Tech player, Tesser, picked by Business Manager Dick Guy for the Pros' squad, looks like the makings of a star . . . He is a 200-pounder and stands more than 6 feet tall and is a product of Titusville . . . Johnny Hazel, local lightweight boxer, has been ordered to quit boxing by his doctor because of a nose (schnozzle to you) condition, and is doing right well by himself as the successor to his late father in the conduct of a shoe repairing establishment.

Harry Temple, a back from Altoona, succeeds Joe LaMark, also a back, from the Beaver Valley, as the captain of the N. Y. U. eleven this year. . . . Dr. John Martin, who died recently in Florida, was the captain and a tackle on the W. U. P. team of 1902. . . . Leo Furtwangler, of Greensburg, who was an outstanding end on the old Greensburg A. A. eleven, has been named conservator of the First National Bank in Verona, with Eddie Cramer, a former Greensburg catcher, as his assistant.

The All-America football broadcasts, featuring the coaches who write regularly for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will be heard again this fall over the Columbia chain, with WJAS as the local outlet. . . . The first program is scheduled for Friday night of next week. . . . Tony Herrera returns to these paris next Monday night, when he boxes the hard-hitting Edouardo Duarry at Erie—HARRY KECK.

DORMONT TIES CITY SERIES

Hitting timely and hard behind Elmer Knetzer's steady hurling, Dormont squared the series for the City League championship by defeating the Books on the Dormont field last evening, 10 to 4. The Books won the first game, played last week, and the teams tied in the second. The deciding game will be played at Olympia Park tomorrow evening.

It was the brilliant hurling of the Carrick Baron that turned the tide of victory to the South Hills club. Knetzer pitched shutout ball for four innings, and then eased up when his mates had given him a big lead.

ROSS RETAINS TITLE

LOW PUNCHES COSTLY TO CANZONERI

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Three low blows cost Tony Canzoneri his lightweight title fight against Barney Ross at the Polo Grounds last night Referee Arthur Donovan said today.

Referee Donovan, whose vote ultimately decided the fight, said he penalized Canzoneri for the punches he considered low. He said:

"I think I gave Canzoneri four rounds, Ross eight and three were even. I thought it was a close fight, but the three fouls simplified the verdict from my standpoint. I penalized Canzoneri on every round he struck low, and these rounds I gave to Ross."

REFEREE EXPLAINS

Donovan was asked if Tony had not hit the low blows would he have given the verdict to Canzoneri, adding three rounds to Tony's four and taking three away from Barney's eight won rounds? He replied:

"That's right. I never thought of that. However, the low punching was there. I thought Ross was badly hurt once. He was game, though, and made no complaint."

The crowd felt Ross had earned his victory, although the judges disagreed. Judge George Kelly voted for Canzoneri and Judge Harold Barnes for Ross.

PRAISED BY VICTOR

In the dressing room, smiling and unmarked, Ross paid a grand tribute to his beaten foe. He said:

"If Tony fights anybody but me, I'll bet on him. He's a great fighter and he can punch. Believe me, he hurt me several times. But I think he's about through, and I'm so sure I can beat him, I'll give him a return bout if he wants it any time and right here in his own home town."

In the other dressing room, Tony sat on the dressing table, his head bowed in dejection as he half sobbed through swollen lips:

"Gee, I thought I won. I'd like to fight him again."

29,000 SEE BATTLE

The paid attendance was announced today as 29,000. Five thousand complimentary tickets were issued.

The total gross gate was $114,000. Federal taxes reduced this to $103,728.62 and State taxes left a net gate of $98,542. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund for Babies will receive 10 per cent of this amount, the fighters being paid off on 52½ per cent of the balance.

Ross will receive about $35,600 and Canzoneri about $10,000.

A graph of the battle shows that Ross withstood Canzoneri's early barrages, caught up with him midway in the battle and then outlasted him in the chase down the stretch. It was just a case of a classy youth having a little too much in reserve for a slipping veteran.

BARNEY WITHSTANDS BLOWS

The two best punches of the fight were scored by Canzoneri, left hooks to the paw in the ninth and eleventh rounds, which rocked Ross, but couldn't put him down.

PANTHER GRID HOPES BRIGHT

big Harvey Rooker, who may develope into one of the greatest terminals in Pitt history, as well as fine reserve prospects in Timmons, Seiffert and Craft.

Ten of the aforementioned linemen are lettermen, Onder, Hartwig, Ormiston, Skladany, Walton, Shotwell, Hoel. Love and Meredith already having seen enough service to have won them their "P's."

Shotwell would figure to be a cinch for the center post vacated by Joe Tormey were it not for the fact that Nick Kliskey, with his edge in weight and his fight and grit and defensive ability, covets the spot himself.

Filling Heller's shoes is the big problem of the backfield. So far, Howard O'Dell and Leo Malarkey are engaged in almost a neck and neck fight, with O'Dell holding whatever edge may be discerned due to his experience. He's a good boy any way you take him, however, and he's tough to take, despite his relatively small size.

Miller Munjas came back to school this year weighing better than 190 pounds, which is some 25 pounds more than he weighed a year ago, and immediately the quarterback situation became muddled. Bob Hogan, still tipping the beam at better than 200, is kicking as well as ever, but he's getting, and will continue to get, a tough argument from Munjas.

The fullbacking will be handled by the speedy Heinie Weisenbaught and powerful Izzy Weinstock. The two of 'em will share the job on about a 50-50 basis. Weisenbaught is the fastest man on the squad aside from Sebastian, and Mike doesn't beat Heinie by more than the whiskers on his chin at 100 yards.

Heller's passing will be missed but Sebastian's tricky southpaw heaving, and Hogan's long tossing will be dangerous enough, and besides, both Rooker and Skladany can come back into the backfield and called upon to heave 'em.

Hogan, Rooker and Munjas are all fine booters.

The schedule calls for major contests each week with the Notre Dame, Minnesota, Navy, Nebraska and Tech struggles topping the card. The Dukes will be met again and Pitt will be pressed to equal the 33-0 count of a year ago. Wash.-Jeff promises formidable opposition in the inaugural.

through the years to become one of the strongest and most widely known Negro teams in the United States.

DERRINGER MAY APPROACH DEFEAT RECORD

Paul Derringer, a pitcher who only two years ago was a reigning sensation and considered good enough to start a world series for the Cardinals against the A's, has fallen so far toward the other extreme as to become the champion loser. As a Cardinal and Red this year he has lost 25 games, and if he works enough before the season ends he may approach the record for pitching defeats.

Paul Derringer

The all-time major league mark for games lost in one season by a pitcher is 39, charged against George Cobb while he was hurling for Baltimore in the National League in 1892. The modern record is 29 defeats in one season, and the victim was Vic Willis, who later became a Pirate, while flinging for the Boston Nationals in 1905. The American League record is 26 games lost in a year, set by Jack Townsend, of Washington, in 1904, and equaled by Bob Groom, of the same club, in 1909. The greatest number of games ever lost in succession in one year was 19 by John Nabors, of the A's, in 1916.

ROSS PROVES REAL CHAMP BY REPEATING

Charges that it was only a home-town decision that had enabled Barney Ross to take the world lightweight championship from Tony Canzoneri in Chicago early in the summer were spiked last night, when Ross repeated his victory and retained his title by again winning the verdict, even though a split one, over the former champion in a 15-round bout in New York.

The jinx that had toppled many other title holders this year failed to bother the Chicago Jewish boy. Ross proved himself a worthy champion in one respect by giving the former king a return match immediately in his first defense of the title, and he proved it over again in a fighting respect by defeating Tony a second time, in the latter's home city and over a longer distance. There can be no doubt of the championship rights of a lightweight who twice beats so great a fighter as Canzoneri, even in the latter's declining days. The 135-pounder who can dethrone Ross is not in sight.

BEATING TRAINING RULES IN FOOTBALL

Sometimes the grind of football training may become monotonous to many a high-spirited youth. It is not unknown under these circumstances for a player to sneak off to a dance some evening. Some boys sidle out back of the chemistry laboratory and indulge in a few puffs on a furtive cigaret. This year it may happen that when things are getting too tough for a young athlete to bear he will inhale a glass or two of 3.2.

What is a coach to do if one of these infractions of the training rules is brought to his official notice? Of course, he can call a general assembly of the student body and explain in ringing tones why he has made the offender turn in his suit.

JOCK MAKES 'EM PAY IN DIFFERENT WAY

Or the indignant mentor may penalize the kid, and incidentally the team, by not letting him play in the next big game. Jock Sutherland, at the University of Pittsburgh, favors a somewhat different plan, especially if the offender is a back. During practice, Jock instructs the quarterback to make the bad boy run from 15 to 20 reverse plays in a row. This is followed sometimes by about 15 long forward passes, with the criminal ticketed for the receiving end.

Jock Sutherland

After a halfback has run down the field 30 or 40 yards at top speed, then back again at three-quarters speed, and has repeated this over and over until his tongue is hanging out, he should, Sutherland figures, be sufficiently leg-weary for his soul to be in a receptive mood for a little homily. All that Jock says is "Condition counts in this game," but the lesson usually goes home.

STOGIES TRAIL ZANESVILLE

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Silenced for a time by the tightest sort of hurling, the big guns of the Zanesville Grays and the Wheeling Stogies are booming again.

Battling for the championship of the Mid-Atlantic League, the two clubs are back in Wheeling today with Zanesville leading, two games to one, by reason of an 8-to-7 victory in last night's slugfest. They clash tonight in the fourth game of the playoff series of seven battles, with the result still a tossup.

It took two big innings, the eighth and the ninth, to bring Zanesville its triumph, after the Stogies apparently had clinched the game with a three-run rally in the eighth.

Al Quaill Adds To Victory String

Al Quaill, local 160-pound amateur star, soon to desert the ranks of the simon-pures for a fling at the pro game, has his thirty-sixth consecutive triumph in the bag today.

Last night, at the final outdoor amateur show of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, Al defeated Farmer Bill Schwerin, of the Monon Valley A. C., in three rounds. Other results: Don Demco defeated Herb Lamberger, Frankie Karnash defeated Jimmy O'Donnell, Harry Krause defeated George Martzo, Steve Walls defeated Whitey Schramm, Jackie Walls defeated Tony de Cello, Tony DeSanders defeated Frank Herp, Jake Pulley defeated Ray Eberle, Ted Lindsey won by technical knockout over Jimmy Auth, 3 rounds.

In bouts staged at St. Colman's School, Turtle Creek, last night, George DeForest knocked out Jim Hunter and Angelo Palarino stopped Young Pegorra. Other results:

Bank Insurance Plan Center of Bitter Controversies

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

GOVERNMENT PLANS for insurance of bank deposits have become a center of bitter controversies between bankers and administration leaders. In addition they have been responsible for some of the tardiness in releasing bank credit.

The Glass-Steagall banking act provided for the organization of the Deposit Insurance Corporation to insure bank deposits. The insurance plan is scheduled to become operative on January 1. The corporation is to be financed by the banks themselves.

One phase of the opposition to the insurance plan rises from the larger and stronger banks which feel that they have nothing to gain while they will have to pay for the mistakes of weaker institutions. The stronger banks point to the fact that deposit insurance has failed when tried by some of the states. In most of these cases it put a premium on bad banking and a heavy burden on good banking when the time came to meet losses.

Weaker Institutions Also Have Objections

THE PLAN HAS few friends among bankers. The small institutions also are raising objections. It is quite obvious that banks which cannot show sufficient strength to have their deposits insured will not be able to stay in business. If the requirements of the insurance fund are too severe, small banks will not be able to meet them and to continue operations at a profit. This would mean that they would have to be consolidated into larger institutions or would be forced into liquidation.

Washington officials have attempted to reassure the small banks, but bankers still look on the program as inimical to their interests. When the requirements for eligibility for insurance are generally known there may be less apprehension about its dangers.

Federal Bank Credit Policy Hits Conflict

IN SOME RESPECTS, the deposit insurance plan has come into conflict with the administration's desire to liberalize the granting of bank credit. On the one hand, the President is asking banks to deviate from the desire for extreme liquidity and to put money into commercial channels. On the other hand, some banks are so anxious to meet the requirements for deposit insurance that they are working to increase their liquidity.

Charges have been made that bank examiners still insist that banks keep highly liquid positions in spite of the pleas from President Roosevelt for a more liberal policy in granting loans.

Bankers, particularly small bankers, find themselves the center of an administration tug of war. They cannot follow the request to grant more loans without thwarting the desires of both state and national bank examiners and running the danger of not being eligible for insurance. They cannot meet the demands of examiners and qualify for insurance without ignoring the presidential demand that they help business.

CODE PROBLEMS RETARDING STEEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Iron Age says: "With the steel trade still wrestling with the details of filing prices and standardizing market practices under its new code, mill bookings and operations continue to decline. The national average of ingot output has fallen four points, from 45 to 41 per cent. Further losses were reported in the valleys, in the Cleveland-Lorain district, in Eastern Pennsylvania, in the Wheeling area and at Chicago. Only the Buffalo district showed an increase, its rate rising from 41 to 44 per cent.

"While perplexities growing out of new code prices and regulations have undoubtedly played their part in checking buying, there are increasing evidences that consumption itself is diminishing.

TEST THIS MONTH

"In many cases labor difficulties are blamed for the shrinkage in steel demand, but, whatever the reasons, there is growing apprehension over the current business trend and an increasing conviction that September will prove the critical month in the NRA program.

"As the automobile industry approaches the time when it will bring out its new models, the need for support from the heavy industries becomes more pressing. Government-aid construction projects are slow in maturing, although pressure from Washington has hastened the taking of bids on 16,000 tons of steel for the Triborough Bridge, New York, and 52,000 tons of cast iron segments for the Mid-town Hudson River Tunnel, New York.

RAIL BUYING LIGHT

"Railroad buying remains at a low ebb and for that reason proposals of the government to help finance expenditures for the carriers are of timely interest to the steel trade. Announcement that rail purchases would be financed only on condition that prices be reduced was, however, regarded as out of keeping with the spirit of the recovery program.

"An incidental result of the adoption of the steel code is that the Steel Corporation unfilled tonnage reports in the future will not reflect bookings beyond the succeeding quarter. Scrap markets are weak throughout the country. A decline of 25c a ton at Pittsburgh and 75c a ton at Philadelphia, has reduced the Iron Age composite from $11.75 to $11.42 a gross ton. The pig iron and finished steel composites are unchanged at $16.71 a gross ton and 1.979c a pound."

August Building 17 Per Cent Over 1932

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Further expansion in the building industry is reflected in August reports to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

The value of last month's building permits for 215 cities was $32,422,968, as compared with $27,565,795 for the same cities a year ago, an increase of 17.6 per cent. There was also a gain of 10 per cent over July, whereas a seasonal rise of 1 per cent is normal.

August was the third successive month to register an increase over the previous year.

URGES BANKERS TO ADVERTISE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Asserting that if the nation is to have a strong banking system, sound at all times, the public must appreciate its own interest in a desirable system, H. A. Lyon, president of the Financial Advertisers Association, today urged bankers to embark upon a program of education to attain this end.

Opening the convention of the association, Lyon, advertising manager of the Bankers' Trust Company, said that everything pointed to an era of greater public enlightenment, but suggested that present publicity requirements covering banking were not enough. He said:

"It is not enough to restore immediate confidence in a system which may buckle under the next strain. It is not enough for a number of bankers to adhere to sound banking. Good banks suffered because there has been bad banking. It should be the responsibility of thoughtful bankers to see that bad banks are not permitted to operate.

"It makes little difference how well a bank may be run if the public is unable to distinguish it from a bad bank. And it makes little difference how excellent are the plans devised to improve banking unless the public can be brought to approve. This is our job."

STOCK MARKET ENDS SHORT DAY FIRM

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Security markets, closing at noon today for the huge New York NRA demonstration, generally followed a narrow and featureless range. Except for a few specialties, which were run up for gains of as much as 2 points, most stocks were content to hold just a little better than their levels of yesterday. The finish was firm. Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.

While business was rather quiet on the Stock Exchange, a rally in grains at Chicago served to bolster sentiment and some of the farm issues were given late attention. Wheat got up about 2c a bushel. Cotton improved moderately. Bonds were slightly mixed. The dollar showed further declining tendencies in foreign exchange dealings.

The agricultural shares recorded their principal gains just before the close, with Case and Sears, Roebuck advancing some 2 points each, while International Harvester, Deere and Montgomery Ward came back for about a point. The more active specialties, up around a point, included Great Western Sugar, American Sugar Refining, Motor Meter, Kelvinator and Mathieson Alkali. The alcohols were up fractionally to a point, although they were not overly enthusiastic. Most of the rails did better, with Hudson and Manhattan gaining more than 2 points. Fox Film was in demand for an advance of 1½ and Loews was up nearly a point. United States Steel, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, General Motors and other leaders were slightly higher.

Wall street, despite the brighter economic picture, had a number of worries which probably were partly responsible for the hesitation of some of the larger operators in expanding their trading commitments. Plans of the New York City administration to levy additional taxes on brokers and stock transfers were not received with enthusiasm. The financial district was also uncertain regarding the government's fiscal program, France's maintenance of the gold standard, pound-dollar stabilization rumors and inflation.

Iron Age reported that mill bookings and operations in the steel industry continued to decline as the trade struggled with details of price filing and standardization of market practices under the code. The output ratio was placed at 41 per cent of capacity against 45 per cent a week ago. The review found evidence of decreasing consumption. Public works projects are maturing slowly, while rail buying remains as dull as ever.

Labor Day week witnessed the expected contraction in electric power output from the previous week. Production for the period ended September 9, however, showed a gain of 11.1 per cent over a year ago, compared with a rise of 11.8 per cent the week before, and some major districts of the country reported larger increases from 1932 than in the previous week.

WHEAT MAKES QUICK GAINS

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. — Quick early upturns took place in grain values today. An outstanding feature was news that export of 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels of Pacific Coast wheat would be financed by the United States government. Argentine crop advices were unfavorable. Opening ⅝-1⅜ up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ⅝ advance, and subsequently gained all around.

More than 2 cents a bushel upturn for wheat in Chicago was soon witnessed. Corn and oats prices were strengthened. Hog price upturns steadied the provision market.

BOND MARKET QUIET, FIRM

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The bond market was disposed to work irregularly higher in quiet dealings today, with an improved tone the rule in rails and the better grade investment issues.

While the abbreviated session prevented any aggressive buying of speculative carrier favorites, the majority of leaders moved higher.

The top notch utility loans were higher.

United States Governments were mixed with Liberty 3¼s a strong spot with a gain of 5-32.

The foreign government list was featured by activity and strength in the Dutch East Indies group, with gains up to 2 points the rule in the various issues.

Domestic corporation loans were slightly lower, with International Telephone 5s off ½; National Dairy 5¼s down ⅞; and Remington Rand 5½s off 1. Oil company bonds ran into profit-taking, after their recent sustained upturn.

'BUY' CAMPAIGN RESULTS FELT IN WEST

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13.—The first real test of the reaction of the consumer to the "New Deal" comes now.

Mr. Rukeyser

The consciousness of emergence from depression and the approach to a higher price level reached the general public too late to prove decisive in spring retail buying.

With the fall season at hand, business will hear from its real boss — the consumer. Initial tests here, spurred by the Hearst newspapers' "Buy in September and Buy American" campaign, have been distinctly encouraging.

On this side of the continent, men of finance and trade are less sensitive to immediate fluctuations than in the East.

SENTIMENT IMPROVED

Sentiment here has been distinctly improved by the prospects of better oil prices under the new code.

Moreover, the relaxation of restrictions on gold exports has stimulated that phase of mining.

Incidentally, the upturn on the West Coast apparently did not swing quite as far as elsewhere up to mid-July, and the setback in forward buying since then has been much more moderate.

There is a general feeling here that at no stage of the depression was suffering comparable to what was experienced in the East.

REVIEWS CONDITIONS

In giving me a preliminary insight into the forces at work out here, Harry W. Sack, California economist and broker, with headquarters at San Francisco, reviewed conditions in the Golden State.

He told me:

"Conditions on the Pacific Coast hold great promise. Three of this section's widely diversified activities, aided by NRA are leading California forward along a broad front.

"Early gains here were not so spectacular as in the East, where steel, the automobile industry and textiles surged forward. Similarly, recent sharp declines in the East's sensitive industries have been followed in but a small degree here. The Far West's great diversification has always made it less subject to violent fluctuation. Our Strassburger Weekly Index of Coast business stands at 75.1 per cent of the 1930 average, as against an average for the nation as a whole of 82.8. Recent highs for these two indexes were 79.9 and 99.0 respectively.

OIL MEN OPTIMISTIC

"Oil men feel more confident over prospects for their business than at any time since the bononza year 1926. It is in this field that an NRA program has long been needed and where it can now work promptly and effectively. 'Dollar oil' is here again and proration can be enforced from Washington. Moreover, betterment comes at a time when it counteracts normal seasonal influences toward lower activity.

"With the price for new gold raised above $29 an ounce, sizable quantities of the yellow metal—which have been stored awaiting a higher price—are being converted into cash, bringing a moderate inflow of funds into the district. Exploration of old properties and prospecting for new ones has been stimulated greatly. Many of the old 'ghost towns' are experiencing revivals. Parenthetically, I believe the President's recent gold action to be the first practical step in a virtually necessary monetary inflation policy.

CROPS NORMAL

"Other sections to some extent have found recent price advances in their agricultural produce counteracted by short crops. This situation does not apply here, where crops are estimated to be about normal. A supplementary aid is the impending repeal of prohibition. This has already stimulated speculation and higher prices for grape lands and actual stocks of wines.

"Large scale governmental expenditures in this area, supplementing the foregoing factors, are making for a gradually firming banking structure. A recent trend is renewed stimulation of branch banking especially in the Pacific Northwest, dictated by the new Glass-Steagall banking law, around which debate promises to continue for some time to come."

In summarizing West Coast sentiment, Mr. Sack added:

"The Pacific Coast's recovery path is still beset, of course, with myriad rough spots and actual hurdles, not the least important of which is unemployment. With so many feeling, however, that actual inflation will follow the NRA 'when, as and if' the NRA requires the follow-up, this district's characteristic optimism is undiluted."

Male Help Wanted 4

MEN—STEADY WORK
We will hire 8 men at once who live in Pittsburgh, train them thoroughly at our local branch at our expense, and employ them immediately in permanent positions, full time. Married men preferred, as these positions are responsible and we require no investment or deposit—but you must be reputable, and able to learn this work as taught. This is steady, profitable sales work, but our method of putting the prospect into the market for our invention is so unusual that you must be trained in it. While learning, new men must be satisfied on earnings of $35 to $45 per week, but later can increase this substantially. Previous experience not important because our method is so unusual, but applicants must be willing to work hard and steady to qualify for the higher incomes. Apply tomorrow morning, 9 to 12 and 1 to 3, at 305 Investment Bldg., 239 Fourth ave.

MAN—Over 25, for steady sales work. 201 Law & Finance Bldg.

PERMANENT—Pittsburgh territory available to responsible young married man with sedan to manage lady crews distributing Ecco Hygienic Powder; weekly earnings $25 to $50; sales or organization experience not necessary; we organize crews which assure income; quick action needed. Write Ebv Chemical Co., Box 1069, Harrisburg, Pa.

Salesmen
Neon Signs
3 neat appearing high grade specialty salesmen; fair education and good character essential. Must have cars to follow leads. Men selected will be given thorough training to qualify for a permanent position. Apply after 4 p. m.
W. H. McBride, Alpha Claude Neon Corp., 2900 Liberty Ave.

SALESMEN
We require two men desiring a permanent connection under very desirable working condition. For an interview apply at SOUTHERN BUICK & PONTIAC CO., 758 Brownsville rd., Mt. Oliver.

Penthouse

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

fall in love with another man, then her love for him had not been a thing of permanence.

And that was funny, too. Because if he knew character, and without conceit he assumed himself that no one knew it better—then Sue was not the kind of person to be careless in the gift of her love, to withdraw it on a whim and to bestow it on another whim. If she weren't loyal, steadfast to the core of her, true unto death itself, then there was no decency or loyalty in this world. And yet she had given her heart to another man. Well, that was what made life interesting, its paradoxes.

As he stepped out of the elevator at the tenth floor, the door of the small anteroom in which he found himself opened. A solemn butler took his hat.

"It's good to see you again, Mr. Durant," he said. After which lapse from decorum, he stiffly stated that Miss Leonard was in the library and would receive Mr. Durant there.

Gets a Warning

Durant passed through the great living room and reached the library. He had always loved to see Sue perched in the huge old-fashioned armchair by a desk. She was perched there now, or rather curled up, her feet beneath her, as entrancing a bit of blonde fluffiness as any man had ever looked upon. She held in her hand a late edition of an afternoon paper.

"Jack, they found a pawnbroker who swears that Tom bought the revolver from him yesterday. He can't be telling the truth. Tom dined with me last night. If he'd bought a gun he'd have mentioned it to me. He told me that he'd walked all the way uptown; the market was terrible yesterday and he needed exercise to take his mind off business troubles. Jack, have you been able to do anything? Jack, tell me that you know Tommy wouldn't kill a woman."

"Of course he wouldn't," he assured her.

He sat down in a chair opposite her; the telephone on the desk rang and she picked it up.

"Someone for you, Jack," she said.

His eyes widened in surprise. Who on earth knew that he was calling on Sue?

"Hello. This is Jackson Durant. Who is it, please?"

"Never mind names," said a man's voice. "Just a friend of yours telling you to lay off the Siddall case if you know what's best for you. Understand? Let it alone; don't touch it; you're not his lawyer; mind your own business. Got it?"

A Different Durant

There was a click as the speaker hung up the distant receiver.

In the days when Sue Leonard had loved him, the face of Jackson Durant had been as legible to her as a primer to a precocious child. The world at large might have difficulty in deciphering what emotion actually lurked behind his sad, grave face, but Sue was never in doubt. And she thought that she knew every mood possible to him. But, looking at him now, she realized that she had never been even faintly acquainted with the man who replaced the telephone upon the desk.

For this was no philosopher; this was no tolerant man of the world; this was not even the keen-eyed inquisitor to whom she had listened while he expounded theories of law or evidence. This was Torquemada come to life.

His eyes were deep-set, but now they seemed twin pits in which coals blazed. The thin lips, so mobile in mirth, were twisted in a snarl that frightened her, revealing even teeth that seemed strangely like fangs. Even his body seemed to acquire a feral quality.

Not six months of separation, not half a year of that wild dissipation of which she had heard rumors, had changed the man. She had understanding enough to realize that always the savage ruthlessness which she saw in him now had been hidden behind a calm exterior. What the eyes of love had never been able to discern, a ferocity bordering on the fanatical, her eyes beheld now.

"What was it? Who was it?" she asked.

Recently someone had sent her a toy; a paper-mache bulldog, esconced in a little house, emerged from his shelter if one called him. The waves of the human voice hit against something or other—she didn't try to comprehend—and released a spring which sent the toy dog scurrying into the open. And now the sound of her voice released a secondary self in Durant and sent that self scurrying back behind the countenance of the Jackson Durant she knew and once had loved. So quickly was he hidden behind the mask she had known so long that she almost doubted the existence of the other person so briefly revealed.

Hides Facts

But the quick glimpse had taught her more of Durant's character than all the years that had gone before. For the first time she understood how he had been able to give up friends, his place in society, the woman he loved, to follow the path he preferred.

"Fool clerks that follow one with business into someone's home annoy me," he said. His voice was calm, hardly showing the annoyance which he stated. Yet it had been more than annoyance which had brought that expression to his countenance.

She laughed uneasily. "I thought something terrible had happened. You looked—I never saw you look like that, Jack."

He shrugged slightly. "Nerves, my child. Be grateful to the routine of life that spares you that."

She felt a faint resentment. Was he patronizing her; was he tolerant of her youthful ignorance? But she banished anger. He was going to save Tom Siddall, and if the life he had led of late had changed him, had made his temper so uncertain that the intrusion of a clerk could enrage him, she must not be censorious even in her heart.

"I'm glad it's no more than that," she said. "And I hope you'll get over them shortly."

He grinned engagingly now. "Two days on the water wagon and I'll be okay. And just so that you won't worry about my drinking myself into inability to clear Siddall—I've already climbed aboard that wagon."

"No? I failed you pretty badly when I took the road I did."

"Perhaps," she said softly, "I failed you."

He looked at her; not flame, but cool amusement, gleamed in his eyes now. "Perhaps you did. But then—I asked too much."

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Please don't forget that the Junior Patrol Club always needs new members, and if you belong to a patrol club, you should try to have just as many of your friends as you can in your club with you.

That's the best way for friends to work and play together. When you make a new friend, tell him about the Junior Patrol right away, and ask him to join. There are thousands of fellows who would like to join and they are waiting for a member to ask them. You ask them—and show them the Junior Patrol pledge.

The letter from Mrs. Forsythe yesterday telling all apout the activities of the Laurel Gardens Junior Patrol gives us an idea. For just a small party, your home is probably the best, but if you have a large patrol with 20 or 30 members maybe you could have more fun if you did like the Laurel Gardens fellows and found a large hall in which to hold your meetings. Especially now that it's getting toward fall when often the weather won't be so pleasant out of doors. Maybe your church would let you meet in their playroom or gym. There are lots of halls and big barns where you could meet—and even decorate the room to suit yourselves.

A new captain today is Edward Shapert, of 722 Ridge avenue, McKees Rocks. He tells us that he has read about the patrol here in the Mail Box and now he has organized a patrol of his own. Good work, Edward, and let us know any more news about your club.

And today Junior got another letter and cartoon from Howard Watkins, of Timblin, Pa. His cartoon today shows Junior asking a pretty little girl if she would like to join his patrol. We're sorry we couldn't print your other cartoon in the Mail Box, Howard, but cartoons have to be drawn with black ink on white cardboard, and yours was drawn with pencil on paper. Real artists always use black ink, you see.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

THE COST OF DISOBEDIENCE

There is no careful parent or teacher who does not forbid children to play on streets, climb lightpoles, go into unknown water, play with fire and try other hazardous undertakings. In 1930 not less than 18,000 children were killed accidentally in the U. S.—one every half hour—and many more were crippled for life.

In great part, these accidents were due to disobedience, a "small offense" but the death penalty was decreed so often for it!

Obedience—to do what is directed by those in authority (parent, teacher, law) is not childish. It is one of the most manly virtues found in great statesmen and soldiers. (Character Building.)

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS LANDING AT SAN SALVADOR (OCT. 12, 1492.)

Columbus, born at Genoa(?), became a mariner in his early years. He concluded that there were to be discovered in the Atlantic Ocean lands belonging to Eastern Asia.

He approached the city of Genoa, the kings of Portugal, England and Spain for support but was rejected. Finally after eighteen years of struggle, Queen Isabella of Spain provided him 3 small ships (Pinta, Nina, Santa Maria) and Columbus sailed from Palos, August 3, 1492.

After a tedious voyage with mutiny threatening, Columbus arrived at San Salvador (named so for his preservation), (West Indies) which he mistook for the Orient. The artist shows him in the attire of a Spanish admiral, drawing his sword and planting the Spanish Royal Standard as a symbol of taking possession of the country.

Although the new world was named after another explorer, Columbus is honored as the greatest discoverer of all time (d. 1506). (Ellis: Story of the Greatest Nation.)

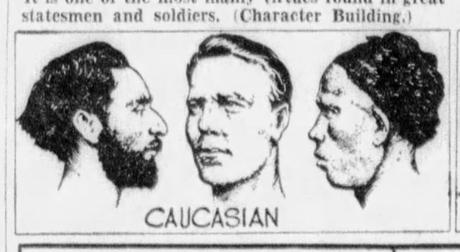
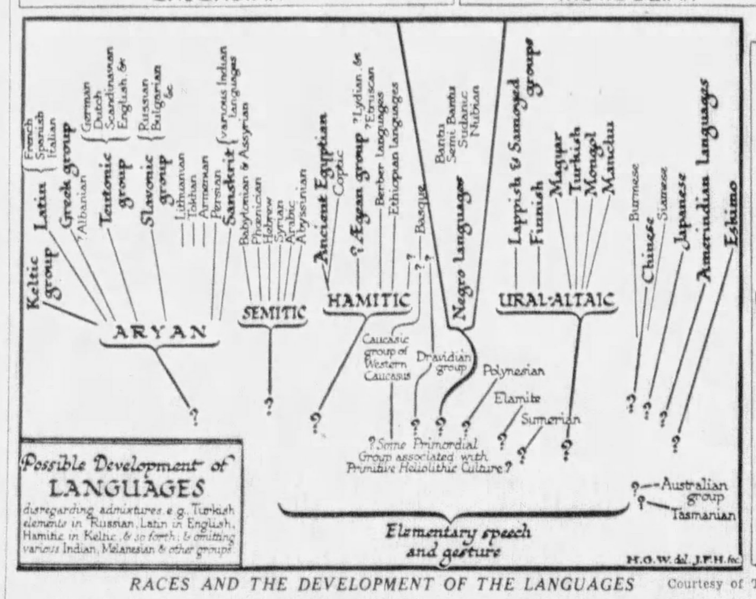
THE FIRST GASOLINE AUTO BUILT IN THE U. S.

It is the Duryea—from 1893 with its builder at the steering stick. When people saw at that time an auto in the streets they cried out: "Get a horse." In 1895 there were only four automobiles in this country. The comparison to the many millions of today shows the progress of one generation. (Craig & Johnson: Pathways in Science.) (Transportation.)





RACES AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE LANGUAGES Courtesy of The MacMillan Co.

Men in the various parts of the world differ in their physical characteristics, such as color, headform and texture of the hair, which reflect the long influence of climate and natural environment. These physical characteristics are known as race-distinction. Linguistic differences, shaped very early in history, relate a fairly definite association with the races, a characteristic that enables scientists to trace the origin and relationship of peoples, as above chart shows. (Wells, Outline of History).

ELEMENTS OF THE EARTH'S CRUST AND IN THE HUMAN BODY

Chemistry is the study of composition, properties, and energy relations of the substances. It knows today 90 elements. (An element cannot be decomposed into two or more different substances by ordinary chemical methods unlike a compound). The existence of two additional elements is proven, but they are not yet produced. Below: The estimated percentage of the 12 most abundant elements is shown, which are contained in the outer layer (10 miles thick) of the earth and in the atmosphere. Above: The 19 elements from which the human body is built. (Holmes: Introductory College Chemistry.)

RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONS IN U. S.

Religion has often been the cause of serious problems, even wars. Hence religious freedom is basic for the peace and prosperity of any country. The United States is an outstanding example of a land where everybody can worship as he wishes without interference. (Problems of Democracy.)

THE WORK OF U. S. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATIONS

An important task of our government is to search for methods and means to improve all activities and to inform the people of the results. For that purpose the Dept. of Agric. conducts experimental stations at different locations, and publishes bulletins, leaflets, etc., obtainable from the Sup. of Doc., Washington, D. C. Leaflet 85 instructs the farmer how to prevent erosion by "strip cropping." Left: Unprotected land eroded. Right: Land protected by "strip cropping." As soil containing 126 billion pounds of plant food is washed away annually the importance of protection against erosion is evident. (Agriculture.)

The Overture From "La Bologna"

They have had marvelous success in the old country if we can believe their press agents.

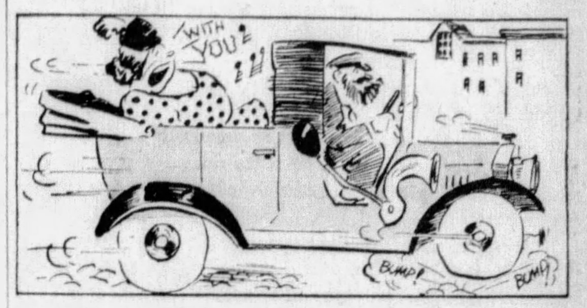
"Mme. Frowzella Blowso," says her publicity bandit, "was a sensation in the ruins of the coliseum. She clicked like false teeth on an ear of golden bantam. The crowd followed her to the railroad station. When they yelled for her to come back Mme. Frowzella blushed in back of 18 policemen."

"In France she sang in the taxicabs that saved Paris. The audience went mad. Those who came to sneer remained to do so.

Mme. Blowso has so much gold in her teeth she is almost a cornetist.

"She wowed them in the Vienna Opera House. The place was being painted at the time.

"Mme. sang by request before the Washa of Tubba who was so enamored with her voice he built a silver bird cage for her. The Washa made her an offer of marriage and gave her the highest decoration in the Kingdom of Tubba—a necklace of gummy marshmallows.



"Mme. Frowzella wishes to deny that there are any romantic ties between herself and the Prince of Wales. She never met the Prince of Wales anywhere at any time. But that is one thing every press agent must deny in order to hold his job with these three-chinned canary birds.

"The diva has offers from the Metropolitan, the Manhattan and Ripley's odditorium.

"When asked about 50-cent grand opera in the Hippodrome on Sixth avenue, the diva remarked coyly, 'One avenue at a time.' She is on Tenth now.

"Her concert in the Alps was postponed by a landslide and blizzard. Not having had the pleasure of hearing her voice, the Swiss still love her.

"Her opening vehicle in America will be Rigoletto followed by Omelotto and Operahouse Toletto."

That's what we admire about press agents. They're so truthful they could name the five great lakes on the fingers of both hands.

Fewer Army Posts

Concentration of Regular Troops in Smaller Number of Garrisons Will Increase Efficiency.

If President Roosevelt carries out his intention to concentrate the combat units of the Regular Army in fewer posts and to provide them with decent housing, he will save the American taxpayers millions of dollars, strengthen their national defense and provide employment for thousands of jobless wage earners in the building trades.

Several years ago, after a thorough study by the General Staff of the needs of the military service, General MacArthur, chief of staff, recommended the abandonment of 53 military posts no longer needed.

This recommendation was influenced by reasons of military efficiency as well as wise economy.

The Regular Army has been so drastically reduced since the Great War that it must be re-distributed if it is to perform its main peace-time mission of training its citizen components.

Several of these military posts listed for abandonment are of temporary construction. If retained, they could only be made habitable by large expenditure of funds.

Other posts on this list have long outlived their usefulness because, under modern conditions of rapid transportation, strategic locations of garrisons have little value.

A military post is in reality a small town. It has its own water, light, sewer and heating systems, its own walks, roads, parks, lawns, laundries, garages, stables, and quarters for officers and enlisted men.

Due to the fact that what is left of our dwindling Regular Army is widely scattered, from one-third to one-half of the combat forces of these smaller garrisons are constantly involved in "post-housekeeping" and receive little or no combat training. Under such conditions, companies of only 16 to 24 soldiers can turn out for combat instruction and battalions can seldom get together more than 150 men or less than a war-strength company.

So small, so scattered and so involved in the housekeeping of many garrisons is the reduced combat strength of the Army today that efficient training of these units is well-nigh impossible.

The Regular Army is not to blame for the waste and inefficiency of this distribution.

The blame rests upon past administrations which have supinely surrendered to the greedy demands of pork barrel politicians that military posts be maintained without regard to military needs.

By taking upon himself the task of deciding, in the light of military studies, what posts shall be retained and by authorizing enough new construction to house the Army decently, President Roosevelt shows common sense and courage. He can rely upon public sentiment to support this program.

Child Labor

The Need of Tightening the Pennsylvania Law Is Seen in the Effect of the NRA Ban.

Now that children are barred from factories by the NRA ban on child labor, parents are in some cases seeking to place their daughters in domestic employment.

Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, calls attention to the matter in a warning that girls between the ages of 14 and 16 who hold domestic service permits must attend continuation schools for eight hours a week.

The situation is another illustration of the need for tightening the Pennsylvania law for the protection of children.

More Prisoners

A Larger Part of the Population Is In Jail Now Than Formerly, But It Is Hard to Tell Why

Twenty-eight of every hundred thousand Pennsylvanians were committed to state penitentiaries last year and 105 others to county prisons—a total of 133.

In 1875, out of every hundred thousand residents of the State 15 were committed to state prisons and 59 to county penal institutions—a total of 74.

During the intervening years there has been a steady rise in the annual commitments to prison per 100,000 of population, until now the rate is almost double what it was 57 years ago.

The State Department of Welfare has been studying the rise, and has just issued a report on it. It is a pleasure to note that the department does not finally accept it as proof of greater wickedness.

It is hard to say what is responsible for the rise. One cannot lay a finger on some particular thing and say, "This is the cause." It may have been due, as the Welfare Department suggests, to an improvement in the efficiency of the police or to the fact that there are more crimes now than formerly—that is, more opportunities to run afoul of the law—because of new prohibitions imposed by statute.

Another suggestion is that the crowding of the people into cities, and in the cities into apartment houses, has led to an increased interference with the rights of others. If that is the case, there is additional cause for gratification in the recent trend from the cities "back to the farm."

A Foregone Conclusion

Petitions Filed by Repeal Candidates Leave No Room for Doubt as to Pennsylvania's Sentiment.

That Pennsylvania will vote for repeal is certain. There is not the slightest reason to doubt that the Keystone state will take the same view of the proposal as the other states that have so far voted on it.

The only question of interest in connection with the matter is the size of the majority that will be rolled up for repeal.

Before the name of a candidate for delegate to the convention that is to pass on the Eighteenth Amendment can be placed on the ballot he must file petitions signed by at least 2,000 voters from each of 10 congressional districts.

Already a number of repeal candidates have filed sufficient petitions, and they average more than 3,000 signatures for each district. But only a few scattering petitions have been filed by the prohibitionists.

It looks as if Pennsylvania's drys are having difficulty.

Stepping Stones?

For the fifth time since the Cuban people received independence, internal troubles have compelled the United States to take some kind of action.

In 1906, American troops were sent to Cuba to restore order.

In 1912, troops again were sent to Cuba.

In 1921, Gen. Crowder was sent to Cuba to reform the electoral laws.

A few weeks ago, American destroyers were sent to Cuba to watch the revolution; and counter-revolution almost immediately called forth new measures.

This country is obliged to maintain order in Cuba under the Platt Amendment. If not, some other nation will—and in that event, the Cubans will suffer and Uncle Sam may have a hostile Power stationed at the gateway of the Caribbean, fronting the Panama Canal.

And what about our national safety in the Pacific?

Hawaii and the Philippines are our outposts in that ocean.

Japan, obtaining the former German isles under a League of Nations mandate, has refused to surrender the mandate in withdrawing from the League.

Those islands, if made a permanent part of Japan's oceanic empire, will be fortified into airplane and naval bases, forming a strategic wedge between Hawaii and the Philippines.

And in case of war in the Pacific, which many experts predict, the islands will be MILITARY STEPPING STONES to American territory.

Why Plastic Surgeons Get Rich

The most interesting study of mankind is woman's quaint reasoning. He is never weary of figuring out why-a-woman-does-things.

For instance, men have always attributed woman's love of dress and her ceaseless efforts to beautify herself to VANITY. Now Mr. Gelett Burgess advances the theory that women run around to beauty parlors and patronize plastic surgeons because they want to be in STYLE. They are simply seeking "this season's style in form and facial furnishing."

As a matter of fact, it is neither vanity nor love of style, which gives the average woman the courage to go on a starvation diet and have her nose chiseled or her double chin removed. It's her Inferiority Complex. Her LACK of vanity, self-confidence and self-esteem.

A woman will struggle, suffer and deny herself all her life to IMPROVE her appearance. She always has the uncomfortable, self-conscious feeling that her cheeks might be pinker, her nose might be shorter or her hair might be wavier and glossier. But a man doesn't bother with such self-improvements; because he suspects that he's attractive enough just as the Lord turned him out.

A woman knows when her nose is too prominent or is out of drawing, and has it revamped nearer to her heart's desire and more attractive to the masculine eye. But if a man is born with a prominent nose he calls it "characterful" or "artistocratic"—and lets it go at that.

Some of the greatest actors who ever graced the stage have been men with positively plain faces. No woman with the same sort of face would have dreamed of facing the footlights, even if she knew that she had all the genius of Ellen Terry and Bernhardt combined. She would have had her face completely remodeled before daring to go to see a theatrical agent.

When a woman sits for a photograph she implores the photographer to "take out all the lines," retouch it a lot and "make it beautiful." But a man wants his photograph to RESEMBLE him. All he asks of a portrait is that it will look as attractive as the original.

Of course women do waste a lot of time and energy pursuing the changing styles—chiefly in the hope that every new style will make them look more alluring or more beautiful. Or in the fear that they may not come up to the sartorial standards. But that is not a sign of vanity.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Likely no figure in the Manhattan parade has remained so indelibly the homespun country jake as Ewing Galloway. A tall, gangly Lincolnian type in store suits and during the winter a Daniel Boone coonskin cap, he is a widely traveled and polished citizen of the world.

He is known where magazines and newspapers are printed by the circled c "by Ewing Galloway" underneath pictures. His boyhood was spent in Henderson, Ky., where he was by his own admission the poorest boy in town. But his flair for amateur photography so impressed Collier's they sent him around the world.

Fiftyish, as Time would put it, he is one of the best amateur tennis players on the local courts. In repose, with his shock of iron gray hair, he is remindful of the middle-aged squire at Tory Hall whose face records the self-congratulatory despair of one bred to be contemptuous of his own kind.

His one-gallused expressions delight a select coterie of artists and writers who inveigle him now and then—and to their sorrow—in the national vice of draw poker. Film producers have angled for him to portray backwoods parts. But he prefers to snap his own pictures.

New Yorkers like to picture Chinatown to strangers as exciting. It has atmosphere, but in reality is a dramatic theme howling for a plot, a stage that cries for drama. Whenever I have escorted strangers there, as I did today, I try to stimulate imagination as though we were tracking down Fu Manchu. But invariably I find them soon yawning.

"Chuck" Conners, self appointed Mayor of Chinatown, had a way of making the quarter fascinating to tourists. "Chuck" drew a long bow on his rapid-fire comments while serving as guide. To him every broken down laundryman was a hatchetman and every low cafe a cut throat rendezvous. Into each place he entered he created an atmosphere of something suddenly stopped. The truth is cadgers hoped "Chuck" would induce the visitor to buy a round. Anyone's safe in Chinatown.

Amelia Earhart continues to express the wholesome vigor of an entire team of girl hockey players. Perhaps no feminine life in New York is so intensely active. An early riser, she may play a round of golf before going to her office, fly a group of friends to Atlantic City for lunch, and lend her vital personality as a speaker to some celebrity banquet in the evening. Despite her capacity to play, she is richer in serious ideas than most of her generation. And most commendable of all, her small chit of a pancake hat fits her still.

The estrangement of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., with his family has ended. The chief difficulty was the son wanted to become a newspaperman and, despite a bust-up in Miami and California, did. He now visits his parents regularly in Newport and New York after being away any length of time. Mostly he is a bird of passage always on the wing. He was comforted recently when an old taxi driver who used to hack in his father's day remarked: "Your father gave his parents about as much to think about as you have."

William Fahnstock, senior head of one of the wealthy and old established brokerage firms, at 70 takes vocal lessons. He has no operatic or concert ambitions, nor does he even sing in private. It is his quaint method of keeping up spirits. The elder Rockefeller also likes to warble alone.

P. G. Wodehouse is probably the only writer in America who slips into a dinner jacket for dinner. He is an Englishman, but in following his custom is not putting on the lug. He noticed on ocean crossings that after a tub, fresh linen and correct dinner clothes, he ate more heartily and enjoyed his food more. He kept it up after landing and has for years.

Left to my own devices in Paris one evening, I top-hatted, full dress suited and ebony caned myself and dined alone in melancholy splendor in the small room at Ciro's. I had everything from potage to pecans and a dusty flagon of vintage wine to wash it down. Later with fresh cigaret I stepped with what I thought was seasoned jauntiness into rue Danou. I glanced archly into a mirror waiting a taxi. I was not wearing a necktie that evening.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Before health can ever come back to America, you and I must tackle one tough job.

WE'VE GOT TO GET SIMPLE AGAIN.

Simplicity—that's something that America has forgotten. Perhaps that statement startles you. You've always thought of Americans as hardy individualists living two-fisted lives. You remember your grandparents, that sturdy couple who built their cabin in the wilderness 50 miles from the nearest neighbor. You think of their meager furniture, their scant comfort, their patience and fortitude in the face of it all, and you're sure you could do the same.

But you couldn't. Neither could I. We're just kidding ourselves with America's favorite fairy-tale. The plain truth is—

MOST OF US HAVE HAD IT SO SOFT AND SLOPPY FOR THE LAST TWO GENERATIONS THAT WE'D YELL LIKE COMANCHES IF WE HAD TO LIVE HARD AND SIMPLE.

And that doesn't refer to the Idle Rich. It means everyone who has lived within "the American standard of living." It's fine to have modern conveniences—elevators, automobiles, telephones, radios, electric lights, running water—the countless contrivances and services which make modern living so swift and pleasant. These things are all delightful. They mean comfort for the individual and profit for the merchant; which is quite as it should be, provided we don't have to pay too heavily for that comfort or those profits.

BUT WE HAVE PAID TOO HEAVILY.

We have paid too heavily in things much more precious than money—in courage, endurance, initiative, patience, good old "hoss" sense. And this is inevitable. Why should men be courageous if life is padded against all danger? Why should they develop initiative if they are surrounded by conveniences created by other men's brains? The answer is—they don't.

It is also inevitable that, in a world too crammed with excitements and contrivances, men's minds become maudlin and messy, and their lives become either a dreary squirrel-cage routine or a feverish fumbling after sensation.

So then, what? We still boast, we still believe, that we are hardy, independent old Yankee breed. But the shameful truth is that we're not one tenth the human beings which our fathers were. Our young men and women drive fast cars and planes, break swimming and tennis records, engage in dance marathons. But one week of the monotony, loneliness and hardship which their grandparents faced would set most of them jittering. Yet these conditions—not speed records—are the real tests of courage, strength and ingenuity.

We prate much of our modern freedom and force. But actually few of us are either free or forceful. We live synthetic, parasitic lives, 99 per cent of us depending on the other 1 per cent to do their thinking and provide their makings. Esau sold his heritage for a mess of pottage. We've sold ours for a mess of comfort. And unless America is to go completely to the dogs WE'VE GOT TO GET SIMPLE AGAIN.

We must learn once more how to think for ourselves; how to do things for ourselves. We must learn to do without—to clear up our clutter—to stand on our own hind legs—to rediscover our backbones.

Does that, then, mean that we should go back to pioneer ways and pioneer days? Of course it doesn't. We couldn't if we would. But we can, an we must, go back to the essentials of pioneer spirit.

Let's have our modern world, by all means. Let's have it swift and strong, magnificently ingenious, gloriously reckless. But let's also have a little of that swiftness and strength, that ingenuity and courage IN OURSELVES, and not just in the machines contrived for us by those rare 1 per cent brains.

FOR AS THINGS NOW STAND, LIFE HAS JUST ABOUT CALLED OUR BLUFF. WE MAY STILL KID OURSELVES INTO THINKING WE'RE TOUGH GUYS, BUT WE CAN'T KID HISTORY — NOT FOR LONG. UNLESS WE MEND OUR WAYS PRONTO IT WILL WRITE US DOWN FOR WHAT WE REALLY ARE—A WEAK-KNEED, SWELL-HEADED GENERATION OF PIP-SQUEAKING PUPPETS.

Dr. Ritter and Frau Koerwin, Self-Exiled in the Galapagos—Fresh Roses on Charlotte Stanley's Grave

By EDWIN C. HILL

ODD RUMORS come from the far off Galapagos Islands about those two strange exiles from Germany who have settled upon the barren Galapagos to spend together the rest of their lives, Dr. Karl Ritter and Frau Dore Koerwin, of Berlin.

The Galapagos Islands lie directly on the equator, off the coast of Ecuador. The best guess as to how they got there is that an underseas eruption lifted them as volcanic peaks from the bottom of the ocean. They are a strange group, abounding in strange life, and strange tales have been told about them—about the pirates under Sir Henry Morgan and Blackbeard and the other red-handed old buccaneers who buried treasure there and went on to well-earned hangings at Execution Dock, or to beggary and death in some common boozing den.

Charles Darwin went to the Galapagos nearly a century ago to study the giant turtles that live there, turtles as big as a washtub and four hundred years old, the oldest of all living things except the great trees of California. Brave men and strong, like Sir Malcolm Campbell, have dug there for pieces of eight and gold vessels and the jewels of the Incas, but all in vain.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Crusoe

AND NOW it is four years since Dr. Karl Ritter and Frau Koerwin landed from a sailboat on Charles Island, and there they remain today, content, apparently, and sufficient unto themselves, the masters of all they survey. This German physician was operating a chemical laboratory, practicing among the poor and advocating uncooked food as the best diet. And then he grew weary of cities and civilization and abandoned it all, with one of his patients, Frau Koerwin.

No South Sea Islands for him, with their traders, their ukelele-playing natives, their tourists and their musical comedy atmosphere. To barren Charles Island of the Galapagos they went, and there they live in a hut made out of blocks of lava, living on turtles, fish and bananas, and working a little farm of dates, sugar cane and cocoanuts. Now and then they are visited by the natives of Ecuador, and once in a blue moon some rich man shows up on the horizon with his big white steam yacht—Vincent Astor or W. K. Vanderbilt or Eugene MacDonald, of Chicago.

Vincent Astor visited the German exiles first in 1930, and left with them seeds for growing coffee, cabbages and other vegetables. But a Crusoe's life is not always a happy one, even when the man Friday is a woman. Anyone who might be all set to hop off for the Galapagos might pause to read what Dr. Ritter wrote last year to his nephew in Germany:

"It's plain foolishness for anyone to come out here. We have only a small oasis for ourselves. All the rest is a barren desert."

The Sad Story of Charlotte Stanley

STRANGE AND tragical are the vagaries of the phenomena of love. Just the other day I found in New York, on the very edge of roaring Broadway, down among skyscrapers that shoot 60 stories toward the drifting clouds, a shrine of disappointed and despairing lovers.

For 150 years fresh roses have regularly been placed upon the tomb in Trinity churchyard of a woman who never lived—Charlotte Temple. For Charlotte Temple was the name of a character in a book—a sorrowful novel of betrayed love and blighted romance.

The body in the tomb is actually that of Charlotte Stanley, an unfortunate English girl who was betrayed and cast aside by a dashing officer-lover, and who came to an unhappy end in 1777. She was buried under her own name, but about 1850 her own name was removed from the tomb and upon it, mysteriously and unaccountably, was carved the name of Charlotte Temple, heroine of the novel over which millions of women—and men, too—have shed tears. For the story of Charlotte Temple was the story of Charlotte Stanley.

Charlotte Stanley was an innocent young girl of noble birth. While she was in a fashionable boarding school in England a young officer named Montraville, passing one day with his crony, Belcour, fell madly in love with her. Through the connivance of her governess he met her and persuaded her to elope to America, and without the formality of marriage. Her father disowned her.

Here in New York, in that long ago, Colonel Montraville listened to the lies told him by Belcour—that Charlotte was unfaithful. In jealous rage he turned her into the street, into the snow. She had no money, no friends. But she found refuge in the humble home of an old servant of her family.

Colonel Montraville, repenting, sent her a letter and a sum of money, but the faithless and heartless Belcour, who hated Charlotte because she had repulsed him, kept the money and destroyed the letter. The old servant sent word to Charlotte's father. He arrived from England as his daughter was dying. As he forgave her and accepted the care of her baby daughter, Montraville himself, wild with grief and regret, burst into the room.

That was 154 years ago—yet not a day has passed in all that time without someone laying upon the tomb an offering of fresh flowers. Do not believe anyone who tells you that romance has fled from this old earth!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may be bright—even more intelligent than those who have made a more public success.

And you have been surprised that certain persons have been able to advance in a bigger way, while you have achieved so little worthy of note.

But isn't it true that you have depended too much upon your natural brightness?

You want to win success with a minimum of effort.

In minor ways you have been able to do this.

In school, for instance, you were able to get good marks and seldom "cracked a book," as you are fond of saying.

When you should have been studying you spent your time amusing yourself and others or carrying out some sort of devilry.

The lessons were arranged for those of ordinary mental power, but you had an unusually quick mind and so could slide through easily.

If you will examine the records of those who have gone nearest the top you'll find practice, perseverance and a habit of "combing fine."

If you had applied the same to your course you might have reached a far more worthy position than they.

Too much mental capacity has caused many a downfall.

ISN'T IT SO?

A "hot head" usually means "cold feet."

Some women are so curious that they will listen to advice just to find out what it's like.

It is impossible to get anywhere without starting.

If a man has information he may shift his position, but if he has only prejudice he will stand his ground until he is run over.
